CITY TO NEGOTIATE FOR ELEVATED ROAD IN FIGHT ON I. R. T.

Seeks an Operating Alliance With Owners as Part of Plan to Seize Subways.

STOCKHOLDERS ARE UNEASY

Fear Contest Over Fares Will Result in Voiding Manhattan Line Lease.

UNTERMYER LAUDS WALKER

Asserts Mayor Is in Dead Earnest and With Proper Support by Public Will Get Relief.

Transit officials of the City Administration and the Transit Commission plan to enlist the aid of the owners of the Manhattan elevated lines in their fight to prevent the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which operates the elevated under a lease, from collecting a seven-cent fare on both systems.

The plan to form an alliance with the elevated owners, as divulged yesterday, is part of the larger scheme, which involves seizure or recapture of the subway lines if the Interborough puts the higher fare into effect. The city, it was learned, hopes to effect an agreement with the Manhattan stockholders, whereby the elevated lines would be turned over to the city for operation with the subway system in order that the two systems might be continued as one in operation.

Information has reached the authorities that the principal owners of the Manhattan are greatly concerned over the Interborough's increased fare move, feeling that the probable effects of it would be the repudiation of the Manhattan lease, with the consequent return of the elevated lines to them for operation.

Sees Violation of Contracts.

Samuel Untermyer, the Transit Commission's special counsel in charge of the unification efforts and counsel for both city and the State in the forthcoming 7-cent fare litigation, declared yesterday in a guarded statement that the Interborough's contract with the city "has for years been flagrantly violated." While not admitting in so many words that the authorities planned to seize the Interborough lines under the default provisions of the contract, he agreed with city officials who favor that move that the actual putting of an increased fare into effect would be a violation of the contract which would entitle the city to take over the lines forthwith. He said he did not believe the Interborough would be foolhardy enough to put the increase into effect over the ruling of the Transit Commission.

The plans of the city and the Transit Commission, it developed yesterday, were now in definite shape. The program includes court action of a temporary nature to restrain the Interborough from raising the fare and practical steps looking to the elimination of the Interborough from the transit situation entirely.

The move to obtain an understanding with the Manhattan owners is part of the practical end of the program. In the event the city is enabled to take over the Interborough system on the ground of default the I. R. T. will be left with the elevated lines alone. At present these lines are not earning the 5 per cent. which the Interborough has to pay to the Manhattan owners under their lease of the property.

Fear Voiding of Lease.

It is understood that the Manhattan interests were fearful lest the Interborough's attempt to increase the rate of fare provided in the contract with the city would be construed as a breach of the contract. Should the Interborough be left with merely the elevated lines to operate, it was figured, the company would probably go into receivership and the courts would void the Manhattan lease.

The present owners of the Manhattan are not the original owners who operated the elevated lines long before the Interborough came into being with the construction of the first subway. The present owners have no facilities for operation and would be greatly embarrassed if forced to take the lines back.

The elevated system, however, is regarded by the city authorities as an important part of the rapid transit facilities of the city and cannot be abandoned without serious congestion in the subways resulting. To guard against the possibility of service on the elevated being halted, therefore, some of Mayor Walker's advisers favor an arrangement whereby the Manhattan interests would turn the elevated lines over to the city.

To Start Negotiations Soon.

It is understood that negotiations with this end in view are to be undertaken probably before the end of this week. The city officials, it was said last night, would urge that the elevated lines would have to be torn down within a few years anyway and that it would be to the interest of the Manhattan owners to cooperate with the city at this time, since they could then expect more favorable terms. It is planned eventually to substitute subways for the present elevated lines.

Although the Interborough's lease on the elevated lines runs for 999 years, it is inevitable, it was pointed out, that this lease would be voided

'Big Stick' of Kipling's Pen Is Defied by Rural Council

TICEHURST, England, Feb. 12 (AP).—Rudyard Kipling's pen looks more like a big stick than it does a sword to the Ticehurst Rural District Council.

In a dispute regarding flood damages to Kipling's Burwash property, the author recently wrote the council that, although he was "extremely adverse to litigation," he would place the matter in the hands of his solicitors unless the council soon made amends. After reading the letter to his colleagues, Chairman Spring-Rice declared:

"We can see the big stick which Kipling has waved at us, and I consider it most uncalled for."

The council then unanimously adopted a resolution denying all responsibility.

CLUB DANCER TRIES TO DIE IN PARK LAKE

Mlle. Roseray, a Night Club Performer, Refuses to Explain Her Act.

Mlle. Simone Roseray, Paris dancer starring at the Casa Lopez night club, Fiftieth Street and Broadway, was rescued against her will from drowning in the lake in the middle of Central Park early yesterday morning by Thomas Moore, 25 years old, a security company investigator, of 22 Post Avenue, who broke his way through the ice as he swam toward her.

A photograph of Vincent Lopez, orchestra leader and proprietor of the night club where she began a contract a week ago, was found among her belongings after she had been taken to the Lexington Hospital, a private institution in Lexington Avenue near Fifty-seventh Street. Detectives said words of endearment, in French, were written on the photograph.

Restored to consciousness after Dr. J. M. Blank of 15 Central Park West had worked over her for nearly three hours, the dancer would give only her name and occupation to detectives of the Arsenal Station, declining to tell why she had jumped into the lake or to reveal the names of friends or relatives, saying it would only "embarrass them."

Knows of No Romance.

Lopez spent yesterday at New Rochelle and his partner, Eugene Geiger, who occupies an apartment with him at 200 West Fifty-seventh Street, said late in the afternoon that he did not believe the orchestra leader knew of the affair.

"No, I don't know if there was any romance between the two," Geiger said, "but if there was, it was very secret, because there was nothing to show on the surface. Besides, I know Lopez was interested in another girl. Whether that had anything to do with the occurrence, I don't know."

Geiger said he had tried to see the dancer at the hospital to ascertain when she might be able to resume her appearances at the night club, but she had refused to see him. He added that she was suffering from shock and submersion. The hospital Superintendent declined to discuss Mlle. Roseray's condition.

The dancer's rescuer, who also was taken to the hospital suffering from chill, was discharged yesterday afternoon. Moore's family, talking over the telephone, said they had "heard something" about the rescue, but did not know the details, "as Tom hasn't come home yet."

Moore and a companion, John Reagan, of 141 West Ninety-fourth Street, were driving through Central Park toward Fifth Avenue at 4:30 A. M., when they heard screams from the direction of the lake. Without even slipping off his coat, Moore jumped from the car, ran to the edge of the lake and started out on the thin ice. He had gone only a few feet when he crashed through. Breaking the ice ahead of him with his hands, he threshed his way

LINDBERGH LEAVES HAVANA AT 2:26 A.M., FLYING TO ST. LOUIS

Hops Off by Moonlight on 1,250-Mile Trip, Which Concludes His Tour.

THRONG SEES HIM START

And Cuban Band Plays a March for His Plane—Takes Sandwiches as Only Food.

TOOK UP CUBAN PRESIDENT

He Piloted Machado and Pan-American Conference Delegates in Nine Flights Yesterday.

By The Associated Press.

HAVANA, Monday, Feb. 13.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off at 2:26 o'clock this morning on his return trip to St. Louis.

Eager to see the "Lone Eagle" start on his flight of about 1,250 miles to his home port of St. Louis, spectators began arriving at Columbia Field at 1:15 o'clock.

His route is from Havana to Key West, Fla., the only hop over water. Then he will go along the Gulf of Mexico to a point directly south of St. Louis and then turn directly north.

The moon rose soon after 1 o'clock, and arrangements were being made for the flight, although the Spirit of St. Louis was still in the hangar.

Colonel Lindbergh arrived at the field at 1:30. He was accompanied by the United States Ambassador, Noble Brandon Judah.

The Spirit of St. Louis was taken out of the hangar immediately after Colonel Lindbergh's arrival.

The flier walked about the field looking for a suitable place from which to take off. He announced he would start as soon as possible.

As the Spirit of St. Louis appeared on the field, accompanied by twenty-five attendants, the Cuban band struck up a spirited march.

Soon after 2 o'clock, Lindbergh started the plane's motor.

"The motor sounds perfect," he announced.

Before starting, Colonel Lindbergh stowed several sandwiches in the plane.

He decided to taxi the plane the whole length of the field to the far end from the hangar. He would then be able to take off in the face of the wind and have the whole length of the field before him.

Lindbergh appeared rested and smiling. Mrs. Judah arrived at the field with the flier and the Ambassador.

As the flier taxied down the field an automobile preceded him to show the way over the bumpy ground.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made another Presidential convert to aviation today when he took up President Machado of Cuba for his first airplane ride. The President was as pleased as a child, and when he came down seemed eager to go again.

While he was in the air in a big three-motor Fokker of the Pan-American Airways, which plies between Key West and Havana, he could not keep still and walked up and down the aisle talking to his wife and members of his Cabinet who were in the party and looking out of the windows.

President Machado was much delighted with the view of the National Palace from the air and the old Spanish forts, which form such a picturesque part of Cuban scenery. Once he stuck his hand out of a window in the plane and laughed like a boy when the wind slammed it back against the casing.

It was a busy day for the "flying Colonel," for he took up most

Olympic Crowd Rebels When Swiss Ski Race Utterly Exhausts Youths on 20-Mile Trail

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 12 (AP).—Popular feeling was aroused to a high pitch at the utter state of exhaustion of the young soldiers finishing the twenty-mile military patrol ski race today and may cause an elimination of the event from future Winter Olympic sports.

France, it is understood, is preparing to present a motion to eliminate the race at the next meeting of the International Olympic Committee.

The rules provide that contestants, carrying a rifle, rations and other field equipment, must be soldiers in active service. Many of the nations with military service requirements of a year or eighteen months had mere youths of 20 and 21 years in the event.

Gendre, a French youngster who collapsed three miles from the finish and was carried on the shoulders of his comrades the rest of the way is reported to be delirious and to have a high fever tonight. He is a slender youth of 20. The Finns recovered quickly from the effects of the long hike and were up and around after a few hours of rest.

Norway won the event, with Finland second and Switzerland third. Two of the four members of the Finnish team collapsed after crossing the finish line and had to be carried to a hotel where hot grog and other stimulants were administered.

Some of the youthful soldiers dropped exhausted in the mountain passes and others staggered over the finish line to fall headlong in the snow.

Norway's winning time over the twenty-mile course, in which the difference of altitudes between the start and finish at some points was 3,000 feet, was 3 hours 50 minutes 47 seconds. The hardy men from the Northland, fresh and erect, finished, singing the national anthem of Norway at the top of their lungs, five minutes ahead of the Finns.

Clear, Crisp Weather Draws Throngs to Seaside Resorts

Yesterday's clear, crisp weather sent city dwellers in thousands to near-by resorts. Coney Island, the Rockaways, Asbury Park and scores of other places along the seaboard were thronged. A crowd estimated at more than 100,000 at Coney Island caused the Police Department to detail about fifty additional traffic policemen for duty.

A continuous stream of automobiles passed over the Cross Bay Boulevard and Beach Channel Drive to the Rockaways throughout the day, and Asbury Park accommodated an unusually large number of visitors. Atlantic City reported the largest Lincoln Day crowd in its history.

The coldest hour of the day in this city was at 7 o'clock, when the temperature was 24 degrees. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the mercury had risen to 37. According to the Weather Bureau forecast last night, today should be warmer, with rain probably this evening and tomorrow.

FIND QUEEN'S TOMB AND RICH ART IN UR

U. of P. Excavators Bare Gold Crowns and Rings, Vases and Other Sumerian Treasures.

ARCHES OLDEST EVER FOUND

Date to Fourth Millennium, B. C., Director Says—Attendants Lie With Queen.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—From the tomb of a Sumerian Queen just discovered in Ur of the Chaldees by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British Museum have come contributions to archaeology and the history of architecture that may rival in importance the secrets given up by the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen in Egypt, a report received here from C. Leonard Woolley, director of the expedition, today indicated.

Besides the rich treasures surrounding the body of the Queen, Shubad, whose name appeared on a cylinder seal worn on her head with two crowns, the excavators brought to light what are declared to be the oldest arches ever discovered.

The tomb of the Queen adjoined that of a King, which was discovered recently and with which were found the bodies of his grooms, servitors, musicians and wives who had been slain to accompany the King into the next world.

Each of these tombs had a doorway, above which was a true arch of baked bricks. The chambers were vaulted with arches, of which a few rings still remained.

Date Put at 5,000 Years Ago.

Director Woolley said that the oldest previous arch known to archaeologists was that found over a drain at Nippur, a Babylonian city, dating back to the third millenium, B. C.

Excavation of the tombs in Ur reveals," the director said, "that corbel vaulting, the true arch and the dome all were familiar to the Sumerian builder and were carried out both in brick and stone in the fourth millenium, B. C."

Archaeologists in charge of the expedition have concluded, on the basis of the evidence they found, that the robbery of the King's tomb adjoining was done by the persons who buried the Queen, and done at the very time of her burial, probably 5,000 years ago.

Queen Shub-ad's tomb had evidently been left undisturbed by the vandals. The director described it as follows:

"The main interest here centered in the tomb itself. There were vessels of clay and copper, stone and silver, many of them broken and distorted, but others wonderfully preserved. At the other end, on a wooden bier, at the head and foot of which were crouched the bodies of attendants, lay the bones of the Queen, Shub-ad.

Marvelous Headdress.

"The Queen's headdress, worn originally over a great wig, was a marvelous sight as it was laboriously disengaged from stones and earth. Coil after coil of gold ribbon surrounded the hair. Above these and across the forehead ran a frontlet of lapis and carnelian beads, from which hung heavy rings of gold.

"Higher up was a wreath of large gold mulberry leaves hanging from another string of beads, and above this another wreath of leaves resembling willow leaves, with large gold flowers, whose petals were inlaid with lapis and white shell.

"Under the edge of the ribbon hung enormous gold earrings, and towering over the top of the head was a golden ornament like a Spanish comb, shaped like a hand with seven fingers, each of which ended in a gold flower.

"The Queen wore a tight-fitting necklace, of lapis and gold and a cloak entirely covered with beadwork, vertical rows of beads in gold and lapis, carnelian and agate, with a border of beads set in horizontal groups of ten and fringed with dangling gold rings.

"The cloak was fastened on the right shoulder with three gold pins with lapis heads, and by the fastening were amulets—two goldfish and one of lapis—a lapis fringe of a re-

SMITH TO OPPOSE AN EVASIVE PLANK ON PROHIBITION

Friends Expect Him to Fight a Straddle if He Is to Be the Candidate.

FOR CONSTRUCTIVE STAND

He Would Expect the Party Declaration to Set Forth His Views, Supporters Say.

HE NEVER URGED REPEAL

But Has Advocated Right of States to Fix Non-Intoxicating Alcoholic Percentage.

By W. A. WARN.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—No mild or evasive plank on prohibition for the Democratic national platform will have the approval of Governor Smith, in the event he should be the choice of the Houston convention for the Presidential nomination. No plank merely pledging the party to law enforcement, following the pattern of other Presidential years since the Eighteenth Amendment has been in force, will pass muster with him. That is what his friends are saying.

There has been no departure by the Governor from the policy of aloofness he has adopted for himself and consistently pursued with regard to the activities in which his friends throughout the country are engaging, to clinch what now appears to be his firm hold on the Democratic nomination.

Even though they believe now that it is nearly a foregone conclusion that he will be picked at Houston, the Governor consistently has declined to be drawn into any full discussion of national policies or the prospect of the nomination coming his way, and this in the face of much pressure brought to bear on him to toss his hat into the ring and give public expression to his views on questions that will figure prominently in the campaign this year.

For a Constructive Platform.

But in recent weeks, especially before the meeting of the Democratic National Committee and the Jackson Day Dinner in Washington last month, the Governor discussed with some of his friends and advisers in advance the contents of his letter, read at the dinner, which formed his first public expression upon matters having a bearing on the Presidential fight.

According to friends and advisers, the Governor strongly feels that in order to do justice to the opportunity that will come to it to win a victory this year, the party should provide a platform constructive from beginning to end; upon prohibition as well as upon all other questions of national import.

While there is no desire on the part of Governor Smith or his friends unduly to feature the prohibition question in the platform, the Governor is said to feel that if he should run it must be on a platform containing a prohibition plank that would leave no room for suspicion that he had sought to evade that issue, controversial though it be even within his own party. Consequently the Governor is credited with a determination to have the prohibition plank, in the event that he should be the standard bearer, set forth the views he has consistently expressed since prohibition in its present stage has been a topic of public discussion.

His Record for Enforcement.

The Governor, despite his approval of the repeal of the State Prohibition Enforcement law in 1923, has always strongly advocated rigid enforcement of the Volstead law, not only by Federal enforcement officials but by the peace officers of the State and of localities.

In connection with this it was recalled that after President Coolidge had summoned the Governors of the several Commonwealths to Washington for a discussion of ways and means for better prohibition enforcement throughout the country, Governor Smith was the only Chief Executive of a State to follow up the decisions reached at that gathering by calling together a council of public prosecutors and peace officers for the purpose of impressing upon

HOOVER COMES OUT FOR THE PRESIDENCY ON A PLATFORM OF COOLIDGE POLICIES, ENTERS OHIO PRIMARY, BARS ANY BIG FUND

Text of Secretary Hoover's Letter to Ohioans Announcing Candidacy for the Presidency

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—The text of Secretary Hoover's letter to his Ohio supporters is as follows:

Feb. 12, 1928.

Colonel Thad. H. Brown, Columbus, Ohio.

My Dear Colonel Brown: I have received through you and others requests from very many Republicans of Ohio that I permit my name to be entered in the Presidential primaries of that State. I do so.

I shall be deeply honored by whatever support the people of Ohio may decide to give me at the Republican National Convention. I shall be glad to serve the American people through the Republican Party in any way that I can in finding constructive solution to the many problems which confront our country.

My conviction that I should not strive for the nomination and my obligations as Secretary of Commerce preclude me from making any personal campaign. I must rely wholly upon my friends in Ohio to conduct it and to conduct it in a fair manner and with steadfast regard for Republican success in the State and the nation. It is my special desire that expenditure of money shall be strictly limited and rigidly accounted for.

If the greatest trust which can be given by our people should come to me, I should consider it my duty to carry forward the principles of the Republican Party and the great objectives of President Coolidge's policies—all of which have brought to our country such a high degree of happiness, progress and security.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER.

CRITICIZED OFFICIAL RAIDS A PUBLISHER

TRIP TO EUROPE ATTACKED

Rowland Planned to Go Abroad Again for Prisoner—Won't Tell Why He Seized Books.

Books and accounts of Terence A. Brady of Yonkers, whose newspapers have been attacking District Attorney-new Arthur Rowland of Westchester County for planning a second trip to Europe to bring home a criminal, were seized in Mount Vernon last Thursday at the instance of District Attorney Rowland, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Rowland said yesterday that the books and accounts had been seized because of a complaint made to his office and that the attacks on him had no bearing on the case.

"I am not at liberty to divulge the nature of the complaint at present," Mr. Rowland said. "I have no malice or enmity against Mr. Brady. The attacks on me have not annoyed me in any way and have nothing to do with the matter. It is unfortunate that the complaint came at such a time as to suggest that it was a retaliatory act on my part."

The attack by the Brady newspapers, which are The Yonkers Sunday Record, The Yonkers Sta- and The Mount Vernon Star, began on the announcement of Mr. Rowland that he planned to go to Europe personally to bring home a prisoner, John Wenzel of Yonkers, who is under arrest in England on a charge of stealing bonds from his wife.

The Brady newspapers criticized the District Attorney on the ground that his duties required his presence in the county; that he had no authority outside of Westchester, and that the duty of bringing home criminals from foreign parts should be performed by ordinary peace officers. Mr. Rowland went abroad a year ago on a similar mission, which, according to the Brady newspapers, involved a waste of the money of Westchester County taxpayers. In their campaign against him the Brady newspapers referred to the official as "Westchester County's seagoing District Attorney."

Terence A. Brady said he did not know the cause of the seizure of his

NAVY TUG HITS ROCK, 5 OF CREW MISSING

The Mohave Smashes Her Hull on a Ledge Outside of Boston Harbor.

RESCUE SHIPS SPEED TO HER

Fourteen Men Taken Off, Six Others Reach Shore in Boat.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 12.—Five members of the crew of the navy tug Mohave are missing as the result of the craft striking on Harding's Ledge off Point Allerton late this evening while she was returning to Boston from Provincetown. Six others reached shore in a dingy and the remaining fourteen were rescued by naval vessels.

A big hole was smashed in the tug's bow by the collision in the darkness and water began to pour in. The radio operator at once sent out S O S signals and Admiral Andrews, commander of the naval district, started all available ccraft to the scene.

Thanks to this swift action, Patrol Boat 242 was able to reach the Mohave and take off the survivors. Because of the near-by rocks no attempt was made to salvage the Mohave, and with the waves breaking over her bow it was feared that she would probably become a total loss.

According to survivors, the Mohave struck with a tremendous crash just before 9 o'clock. She was carried high on the rocks and her hull was ripped for several feet.

Most of the crew were in their bunks when she struck, the impact hurling them on the deck. Wearing meager attire, the men rushed out and were drenched by the high waves breaking over the tug.

Two men were found to have disappeared overboard. After a few minutes the radio apparatus went dead and the commander of the tug, Boatswain Powers, sent three sailors off in a punt to carry news ashore of the disaster. Soon after they put off they shouted for help, and six more of the crew lowered a dingy and started on a vain hunt for them.

The six men in the dingy came ashore later on Nantasket Beach, but those in the punt have not been seen since. Late tonight the rescue force was still hunting for them in the near-by waters.

When the first S O S messages from the Mohave were picked up, naval officers here realized that they were confronted with an unusual accident and with the fate of the lost 8-4 still fresh in their minds made all haste to render aid.

Admiral Andrews ordered the navy tug No. 71 to proceed at once to Point Allerton while the Coast Guard vessels 78, 244 and the Dix departed on the same mission.

Other vessels which raced to the assistance of the Mohave were the Bushnell, mother ship of the S-4, and the naval tug Sagamore, which steamed out from Provincetown.

The names of the six men who reached Nantasket on the dinghy are Charles Thompson, Clifford Alexander, Francis Sliney, Edgar Townsend, Richard Connelley and James Colbert.

Meanwhile the Coast Guard crew at Point Allerton had been notified by telephone of the wreck. They launched a surfboat and were forced to go by way of the Gut to reach the tug.

Klan to Establish National Headquarters Near Large Catholic Church in Washington

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Ku Klux Klan is to establish a new national headquarters in this city at 1,723 Rhode Island Avenue, Northwest, which is separated by only one residence from St. Matthew's Church, one of the most imposing Roman Catholic edifices in the capital. The property is but two squares from Dupont Circle, around which are grouped many of Washington's fashionable residences, including the mansion which President Coolidge occupied during the recent renovation of the White House roof and attic.

Arrangements by the Ku Klux Klan for leasing the property were made a few days ago with Miss Laura Harlan, a real estate agent here. She said today, however, that she had no detailed information as to the plans of those with whom the lease was negotiated.

The lease, which will expire in the Fall unless renewed, she added, has not yet been returned to her. It was sent to Atlanta following the call of the persons wanting the property, who saw her sign as the real estate agent.

The residence belongs to the estate of former Representative Richard Wayne Parker of New Jersey, and has been vacant since his death. It is a substantial old house, semi-detached, and was built some fifty years ago. Its construction is of brick, there are four floors and about twelve rooms.

None of the Klan's officials could be reached here for details of plans for moving the national headquarters into the building.

WRITES TO OHIO BACKERS

'Shall Be Glad to Serve the American People,' Secretary Says.

INSISTS ON A FAIR FIGHT

Believes He Should Not Strive for Nomination and Will Make No Personal Campaign.

HE'S WELCOME, SAYS WILLIS

Senator Ready for Knockdown Battle—Hoover Soon to Enter Other State Contests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, tossed his hat into the ring today when, in a letter to Thad Brown, leader of his Ohio supporters, in which he consented to have his name entered in the Republican Presidential primaries in that State, he announced that if nominated and elected he would carry forward the principles of the Republican Party and "the great objectives of President Coolidge's policies."

Mr. Hoover writes that his conviction that he should not strive for the nomination and his obligations as Secretary of Commerce preclude him from making any personal campaign, and he must rely wholly upon his friends in Ohio to conduct it. He says he wants the campaign conducted "in a fair manner," and emphasizes his desire that "expenditure of money shall be strictly limited and rigidly accounted for."

The decision by Mr. Hoover to get out in the open and fight was generally accepted in political circles here as the most important development in the pre-convention campaign since President Coolidge made his "I-do-not-choose" statement at Rapid City in August. It is expected that the Secretary's message to Mr. Brown will be accepted by his backers in all parts of the country as a signal to go into action in his behalf.

"Perfectly Welcome," Says Willis.

Senator Frank B. Willis, who will appear as a favorite-son candidate in Ohio and whose attitude in refusing to permit Hoover to appear as a second-choice candidate is held to be in part responsible for the bitter party contest which is now certain in that State, had just returned from delivering a political address in Utica, N. Y., when the Hoover message was made public.

"Oh, very well," said Mr. Willis. "He's perfectly welcome to come in. I have been known to the people of Ohio for about thirty years. I know them and they know me. He will find out at the close of the primary contest whether he has been correctly advised by those assuming to be his friends."

Despite Mr. Hoover's expressed hope that the fight in Ohio will be carried on with "steadfast regard for Republican success in the State and in the nation," there is every indication that the campaign leading up to the primary election on April 24 will be marked by such warfare as the party has not known since 1912. Senator Willis in a recent statement following Representative Burton's first suggestion that Mr. Hoover enter the Ohio contest said that it would be no kid glove affair and, in effect, that he intended to call a spade a spade.

Complete Hoover Ticket in Ohio.

Hoover candidates for delegates and alternates will be entered in each of the twenty-two Congressional districts of Ohio and for the seven delegates-at-large. Each district elects two delegates, thus giving a total of fifty-one, and the Hoover campaigners are going to battle for them all.

There is held in Ohio also a State-wide preference vote, which, however, is not legally binding on any of the delegates after the first ballot in the convention. While a final decision has not been made, it was indicated tonight that the Secretary, now that he was in the battle, would try to win this preference vote as well.

In 1920, when Leonard Wood contested the Ohio delegates with Warren G. Harding, the General won nine of them but was defeated by about 15,000 ballots in the preference vote. The backers of Hoover feel confident that they will win the preference vote and also get at least twenty of the district delegates and the seven delegates-at-large. To the Hoover forces thus are virtually conceded twelve delegates, including six from the three Cleveland districts, four from the two Cincinnati districts and two from Toledo.

Burton May Head Hoover List.

It is expected here that Representative Burton will head the list of Hoover candidates for delegates-at-large. The name of William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, who was in command of the Leonard Wood campaign in 1920, has been suggested as another candidate for delegate-at-large. He is among the backers of the Hoover movement.

Publicly none of the Hoover leaders will admit that there is not a chance of carrying all of the districts, and conservative adviaers of the Secretary insist that he certainly will obtain a majority. The Willis camp scoffs at such forecasts. The Senator's advocates feel that Hoover has a chance to win twelve delegates, but no more.

It had been substantially agreed among Mr. Hoover's advisers that, as stated in his letter, he would not personally go into the State on a speaking tour. But it was said tonight to be within the range of possibilities that this decision might not stand if developments during the campaign made it appear imperative that the Secretary show himself to the people.

Walter F. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who is among the Secretary's chief advisers, left for Ohio yesterday to look over the situation. Mr. Brown was Ohio manager for Theodore Roosevelt in 1912. The Hoover forces must complete their efforts of organization and the declaration of candidacy filed by Feb. 24, and therefore have less than two weeks to complete the job. It is proposed to organize the movement in all parts of the State, and also to find speakers who will put punch into the Hoover candidacy.

Strategy as to Other States.

Now that the Ohio decision has been made, the Hoover strategy board will take up the question of his entering other primary States. It has been definitely decided that he will go into New Hampshire, New Jersey, Michigan, Maryland, California and Oregon. Final decision as to the course to be pursued in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will be made soon, as the last filing day in Pennsylvania is March 5 and in Massachusetts March 20.

If Mr. Hoover stays out of the Massachusetts primaries, Ohio will be the only favorite-son State to be invaded, a point that the Willis backers probably would seek to capitalize. It has been virtually decided that Mr. Hoover will not go into Indiana, where Senator Watson is the favorite son, or Kansas, where Senator Curtis is the State's favorite.

The decision in regard to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania will be determined by developments in the next two weeks. If it appears that Mr. Hoover will be assured a number of delegates from these States without making a fight, he may keep out. If this appears improbable, he will permit his name to be entered.

Friends of Secretary Hoover took note today of the reference made by Senator Willis in his speech at Utica last night to those who supported the late President Wilson's appeal for a Democratic Congress in 1918. One of the Hoover advocates said that Mr. Hoover was a good enough Republican in 1920 to be invited into Ohio by Senator Willis to speak at Cincinnati and Springfield in support of the Willis campaign for re-election to the Senate, and was thanked by the Senator for doing so.

Willis Ready for the Fight.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Informed over the telephone tonight that Secretary Hoover had permitted his name to be entered in the Ohio Presidential primary, Senator Willis of that State, who announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination some time ago, said he was ready for the contest and "perfectly confident of the result."

Senator Willis had not read Mr. Hoover's letter, but he authorized the following statement:

"Personally I am in no fear of the results. The people of Ohio know about my Republicanism. I have been there all my life, and all of my activities have been there. I have had a part in helping every Republican.

"My platform and platform are well known. When the primary is over Mr. Hoover will know that whether these self-appointed friends of his who have dragged him into this contest apparently against his wishes have advised him correctly.

"Mr. Hoover is perfectly welcome. I am perfectly confident of the result."

OHIOANS PREPARE FOR WAR.

Hoover-Willis Fight Expected to Be Among State's Bitterest.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 12 (AP).—One of the most bitterly fought Presidential primaries in Ohio's history was predicted by two Republican factions tonight, following Herbert Hoover's announcement in Washington that he would permit his name to be entered in the Ohio primary in opposition to Senator Frank B. Willis.

The announcement was the signal for friends of both candidates to concentrate their efforts. Charles A. Jonas, Secretary to Senator Willis, said that Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, the Senator's campaign manager, would be here tomorrow for a conference.

Thad H. Brown, head of the Ohio Hoover committee, will speed up his plans for gathering the support of Republicans not immovably in accord with the State Central Committee's endorsement of Willis. Cincinnati, a Hoover stronghold, reacted to the announcement with plans for a county club to boost the Secretary's candidacy.

Fred W. Warner, Chairman of the State Central Committee, took occasion to renew his warning that the Hoover movement would "disrupt the party" and deliver the State into the hands of the Democrats next Fall.

"It cannot be done," Mr. Warner said, in commenting upon Mr. Hoover's statement that he must rely upon his friends in Ohio "to conduct the campaign in that State and conduct it in a fair manner and with steadfast regard for Republican success in the State and nation."

The State Chairman charged that politicians handling Hoover's campaign "will go through the State promising all the appointments possible to swing votes to the Secretary."

"The only result can be disruption of the party," he said.

"Our action in endorsing Senator Willis had the purpose of keeping some semblance of an organization in the State, and this drive for delegates will work only toward the breaking down of that organization. Though I anticipated Mr. Hoover's entrance, I think it is regrettable under the circumstances."

The names of 4,000 Ohio Republicans, obtained by circulation of petitions during the last week, will form the nucleus of the Hoover-for-President organization to be extended immediately into all of the eighty-eight counties. The organization already has formed contacts in seventy-five counties, it is said.

KENTUCKIANS FOR HOOVER.

Bankqueters Endorse Him, but Opposition Appears in State Committee.

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 12 (AP).—Kentucky Republicans who attended a Lincoln Day banquet here last night authorized a resolution endorsing Herbert Hoover for President. The resolution was drafted by a committee headed by Henry J. Stites as Chairman and including Senator Frederic M. Sackett, Representative John M. Robsion, Governor Flem D. Sampson and J. Matt Chilton. About 1,000 attended the banquet.

Earlier in the day a meeting of the Kentucky Republican State Central Committee ended in sudden adjournment when Lunsford Phelps, former United States District Attorney, raised the floor and declared that the rank and file of the Republican Party of Kentucky was against the nomination of Hoover.

Still somewhat calm just after the committee had decided to hold the Kentucky State Party convention in Louisville on April 6. After several attempts to gain the floor Mr. Phelps was about to be recognized by Robert Hunter, the Chairman, when Paul Burlingame, a member of the committee, interrupted with a motion to adjourn. Mr. Burlingame refused to withdraw his motion until Mr. Phelps would be heard. Mr. Phelps speaking above the noise of the gavel of the Chairman, consisted a portion of his statement, the remainder being lost in Hunter's declaration that the meeting was adjourned.

Mr. Phelps declined to say whom he favored for the nomination, declaring that "as long as the Republican Party has a Longworth, a Lowden and a Dawes, I am not for Hoover, and the people of Kentucky are not for Hoover."

DENIES DAIRYMEN OPPOSE HOOVER

Ex-Commissioner of Agriculture Praises Candidate's Work in State During the War.

Denying that the dairymen of New York State were opposed to Secretary Hoover, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, Charles S. Wilson of Geneva, former State Commissioner of Agriculture, issued a statement yesterday explaining Mr. Hoover's part in fixing milk prices while he was Food Administrator during the World War. The statement was made public by the New York State Hoover-for-President Committee, 11 West Forty-second Street.

"A good deal has been said in certain opposition circles about Mr. Hoover's record among the dairymen during the war period," Mr. Wilson said. "The facts, however, speak for themselves. Mr. Hoover's wartime mediation in the milk situation was undertaken at the farmers' request, and it put an immediate stop to the prosecutions of farmers which had been initiated by the State and Federal Governments.

Mr. Wilson said that the only real controversy that ever arose in the administration of milders in New York was in November, 1918.

"In this controversy, the milk producers for the first time since the Food Administration had set up the arrangement, felt aggrieved at the action of the Food Administration representative in New York," he added. "There was some intemperate criticism on both sides, but Mr. Hoover withdrew the representative who had caused the dispute and the meeting of the next month was most harmonious."

Mexican Federals Say They Shot Three More After Fight.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—Twelve rebels were killed and three were wounded in a fight with Federals, and the wounded were executed after a summary court-martial, according to a special radio message from Los Tres, Federal headquarters in the State of Michoacan, this evening.

The message stated that an expeditionary column under General Juan Dominguez was continuing its successful drive against rebel elements which have been carrying on guerilla warfare, that there had been frequent exchanges of fire as the column advanced and that the Federal troop has destroyed several rebel encampments.

General Dominguez detached a column composed of the Twelfth Battalion of the line and the Fiftieth Regiment of Cavalry with a field gun yesterday to pursue a band of about 300 who were located in a hilly position at Laurel, the report continues. The rebels were commanded by Fermin Gutierrez and Father Francisco Del Rio, it says. The encagement lasted for four hours, the rebels losing twelve dead and three wounded.

Rebel documents containing interesting information were captured, according to the message, which says that the band fled in disorder.

Girl, 15, Stricken at Dance, Dies.

While more than 600 other members and guests of the Caltabellottese Colony, an Italian fraternal organization, were dancing at the second annual mutual benefit dance of the organization at the Ambassador Hall, Third Avenue, near Claremont Parkway, the Bronx, shortly before last midnight, Anna Amaro, 15 years old, of 345 East Sixtieth Street, was stricken with a heart attack and died almost instantly. She was carried to an afternoon and the news of her death was withheld from others.

PLAN TO ADJOURN CONGRESS BY JUNE

Republican Leaders Back a Program by Which They Can Get to Convention.

ECONOMY DRIVE OUTLINED

Tax Cut Sought by Extreme Stashlieg—Compromise on Flood Bill Likely.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Republican leaders in Congress have tentatively decided on a program that calls for extreme economy in all appropriations in the hope of making a tax reduction possible, with adjournment perhaps by the end of May, so that members can get to the Republican Convention June 12. It is believed that the plan will be carried out.

It is understood that within the next week the party managers will have worked out a flood control program acceptable alike to the majority in Congress and the President. It is recognized that flood control legislation must be enacted in this session and work started on the project this Summer. So many plans have been presented that there is no agreement in Congress on the subject with Southern States, especially those affected, demanding that the Federal Government assume the entire financial responsibility. This proposal is objectionable to President Coolidge.

Deferred Flood Payments Backed.

Among Republican leaders a proposal that seems to meet with the greatest favor, and one which, it is thought, will be accepted by the President, provides that the flood States be relieved of the 20 per cent. payment provided in the Administration plan for the first five years.

Republican leaders assert that about $300,000,000 is necessary, and that about $60,000,000 a year should be expended for ten years. For the first five years the money to be expended would be appropriated entirely by the Federal Government and in the last five years the States would be compelled to pay 20 per cent. of the cost of the remaining construction.

Flood control, the naval program, tax revision and a farm relief measure are the principal things before Congress, aside from the regular Republican bills. There is no certainty, the Republican leaders say, that a farm relief program will be offered in this session, because of a division in the farm bloc. If one appears, the belief exists that it will embody the equalization fee, and if passed by Congress will again meet with the Presidential veto.

In the opinion of some of the leaders concerned, no naval program will be authorized in this session of Congress. The opposition of the country is so great as to influence the leaders to reject the Administration program and favor not more than fifteen or seventeen ships to be built in a period of five years. Many of the House leaders desire to avoid taking a position this year and the farm bloc and Democrats in the Senate are reported to be opposed to a large program.

Would Await Next Naval Parley.

The Senate opposition to the Administration plans is based on the fact that there will be another conference of the signatories to the Washington Treaty in 1932, and that therefore it would be unwise to enter upon a costly program until after a decision as to what is to be done with the 5-5-3 ratio on capital ships agreed upon in 1922.

In discussions of the legislative situation in the last few days the leaders have agreed that if flood control plans do not require a large amount this year, and all other emergency legislation is cared for in an economical way a tax reduction within the figures recommended by Secretary Mellon, $225,000,000, may be possible.

It is understood that all the appropriation bills will have been passed by the House in the next three weeks, and by that time the Senate Finance Committee will have a more definite idea of the expenditures, and then tax revision can be considered by the middle of March. If the majority fails to hold down the expenditures for flood control and the Navy, it would appear, some leaders feel, that tax reduction is improbable.

FIVE SANDISTAS SLAIN IN FIGHT WITH MARINES

Sergeant Fred Smith Heads Patrol in Brush With Nicaraguan Rebels—Americans Unhurt.

MANAGUA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Five rebels were killed and one was wounded in a sharp encounter with a United States marine patrol early this morning between San Gregorio and Murray, according to a report of the commanding officer at Jicaro, Nuevo Segovia, to brigade headquarters here. There were no marine casualties.

A patrol, under Sergeant Fred Smith, encountered the rebels at 6 o'clock. While details of the skirmish were lacking, brigade officials believe that Smith located the band the night before and engaged them as soon as daylight permitted. The country in that section is very rough and is heavily timbered.

Sergeant Smith is well acquainted with the topography because on Dec. 5, while commanding a patrol working out of Jicaro, he cut his way through an overwhelming force without losing a man.

Airplane patrols returning from the Matagalpa region this afternoon reported no sight of Augustino Sandino, the rebel leader. It is believed that he has gone to the northeast of Matagalpa instead of to the southeast as previously reported.

Word of the safe arrival of an 8-cart loaded with supplies and guarded by only two marines has been reported from Matagalpa.

BERGER ASKS TEETH FOR 1ST AMENDMENT

Socialist Representative Drafts Bill for Penalty on Curbs of Free Press and Speech.

SAYS DRYS IGNORE RIGHTS

Guarantee of Liberty Also Violated in Pennsylvania and Colorado Strikes, He Charges.

Representative Victor L. Berger of Wisconsin announced here yesterday that he would introduce in the House a bill making violation of the First Amendment punishable by law. The First Amendment, declared in force Dec. 15, 1791, reads:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

Mr. Berger, who is National Chairman of the Socialist Party, came to New York yesterday for a conference with local party leaders.

Contrasts Dry Enforcement.

The considerable time and energy devoted to enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, Mr. Berger said, made interesting the ignoring of the First by "anti" leagues. This was especially so, he added, in view of the opinions of Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, who disagreed on most political questions, yet both believed that the amendment providing free speech and the right to meet peaceably at any time was the most important of the original ten amendments.

Mr. Berger's statement said:

"Putting teeth into the Eighteenth Amendment has become a favorite phrase with the Anti-Saloon League and its servants in public office ever since the Amendment has been adopted. The Volstead act was passed with that object in view. It has never been suggested, however, by any group of 'reformers,' and least of all by the Anti-Saloon League, that teeth ought to be put into the First Amendment to the Constitution.

"I also regard the First Amendment as most essential to the preservation of fundamental rights of Americans. It is one of the provisions which extend the freedom of the citizen. Moreover, I believe that the First Amendment can be enforced without trouble if a law is passed, because it is to practice liberty, while the Eighteenth Amendment cannot be enforced, as experience has shown.

"Of course I realize that many Americans of today are different from those of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. American business men today worship Mussolini, who has boasted that he wipes his feet on liberty, and who just last week wiped out the last vestige of democracy in Italy.

Says Rich Want Dictators.

"Many wealthy Americans today envy Italy, Spain and Greece their dictators. They find fault with the Russian Communists, not on account of their methods or because a small oligarchy is ruling Russia, but because these Communists laid hands on the sacred rights of property. One hears every day business men deplore the fact that Congress is in session and wishing that Congress would adjourn forever if possible. And such an obedient Congress as we have in our country!

"Of course we hear a great deal of Americanism and of Americanizing. In the main this means that children should be compelled to salute the flag, or to write essays about the Constitution, even though the most important parts of that Constitution are a dead letter and are to remain so.

"Patriotism today does not mean the greatest good for the greatest number. It means military display, Flag Day, Navy Day, Defense Day. And democracy today means jobs for 'deserving party Democrats.' If Thomas Jefferson, the patron saint of the Democratic Party, would rise from his grave today, the Democratic statesmen of the South would put him into jail immediately as a dangerous radical, since he said that a violent revolution is needed about every twenty-five years to preserve liberty.

"Our Constitution is an eighteenth century document. The right of the people to speak freely, write freely and assemble, nevertheless lies at the basis of all other rights. Yet this amendment, like several other amendments, is a dead letter.

Sees Free Speech Suppressed.

"At this very moment we find conditions in the strike regions of Pennsylvania and Colorado unparalleled even in Russia under the rule of the Czar. People are thrown into the dungeon because they dare to exercise their right to free speech. Citizens are forbidden to sing certain hymns in the churches. Free speech has become a privilege of the ruling class.

"During the wartime, the first amendment was openly disregarded by the Democratic Administration with the unanimous consent of the Republican Party under the pretext that there could be no free speech during war. It was supposed at that time that this was to be only a war measure, but what has actually been predicted at the time has happened. The most important rights contained in the Constitution are still suspended. Unless re-established they will remain dead."

COMMUNISM SPREADS FROM KWANGTUNG

17,000 Hunan Reds Join Movement—Canton Bank to Dishonor $42,500,000 in Notes.

CANTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Red menace to life and property throughout Kwangtung Province is spreading. The Communists of that province are being reinforced by 17,000 Red Hunanese troops who are advancing into Northern Kwangtung.

The activities of Communists, whose last outbreak in Canton in December resulted in death to 1,000 persons, are again assuming considerable importance. Wholesale slayings of land-owners and merchants have been committed by the forces of the commune established by more than 1,000,000 farmers, fishermen and salt makers who have adopted the Communist cause.

Repudiation of the entire note issue prior to 1923, amounting to $42,500,000 (gold par value), is planned by the Canton branch of the Nationalist Central Bank, established in 1926 by T. V. Soong, the present Minister of Finance of the Nanking Nationalist Government.

The bank's reserves have been plundered many times by successive short-lived dictators of Kwangtung Province, the most recent plunderer being General Chang Fak-wei, who ousted the Reds from Canton in the closing months of last year. It is said that he took $2,500,000 of notes from the bank before the re-establishment of the present dictator, General Li Chai-sum.

The intended repudiation is for the purpose of partly discounting these losses. The bank plans to issue $100,000 in new notes.

NOTED MEN'S 'SECRETS' REVEALED BY REISNER

He Tells Why Hays Joined the Film Industry—Finds Religion Guides Lindbergh, Tunney.

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Chelsea Methodist Church, 178th Street and Broadway, continued in his sermon last night what might be called "the confessions of prominent men." He said that Will Hays had told him he had been "impelled to enter the moving picture industry when he found his son and the latter's young cousins yearned to be movie actors instead of American heroes." Dr. Reisner recently disclosed that Mayor Walker had told him that his health was much improved since he stopped drinking.

Although he characterized prize fighting as "reprehensible," Dr. Reisner lauded Gene Tunney as "exceptional" because he does not "drink, smoke, swear, gamble, carouse, or loaf with louts, but studies and seeks culture, and is also devoutly religious."

"Lindbergh," he continued, "is fortunately the highest type of youth. No land or time has ever created a finer type of noble manhood, and he is absolutely inexplicable without the Christian faith and its consequent training."

Dr. Reisner also quoted from a speech by John D. Rockefeller Jr. before the "26 Broadway Club," in which Mr. Rockefeller said that his three boys earned their own way on a recent European trip.

"One attended to the auditing and paying of bills and the handling of funds," Dr. Reisner went on. "Another looked after the baggage. The third did errands. Each received a weekly pay commensurate with the service rendered."

SMITH TO OPPOSE EVASIVE DRY PLANK

By W. A. WARN.

them the importance of vigilance in enforcing the Volstead law.

He did this with the severe admonition that if charges were brought before him and substantiated of laxity in this respect, it would mean the immediate removal of any public official against whom complaint had been made.

If Governor Smith entertains the belief that it was a mistake to incorporate the Eighteenth Amendment in the Federal Constitution, he has never gone so far in his advocacy of liberalization of the prohibition laws as to urge the repeal of the amendment. He has advocated the application of the principle of States' rights, which has become a tradition with his own party, in the enforcement of prohibition, if for no other reason than to promote better enforcement.

Stands for States' Rights.

What the Governor has advocated with this end in view is that the Volstead law shall be amended to give the States power to depart from its arbitrary one-half of 1 per cent. of alcoholic content and substitute in local statutory enactments provision for a different percentage, as long as this remains within the prohibition contained in the amendment itself against traffic in beverages that are in fact intoxicating. The Governor has often expressed his firm conviction that what is or is not in fact intoxicating is susceptible of scientific determination.

There is no doubt, according to friends of the Governor, that this was in his mind when in his Jackson Day dinner letter he emphasized the fact that Jeffersonian Democracy involved as little interference as possible with the personal tastes and habits of the individual. The Governor at that time urged that the party adopt nationally what has been the practice in the Democratic Party in this State ever since Mr. Smith has been Governor, and have a tentative national platform prepared in advance of the National Convention.

The powers that be in the Democratic national organization did not take kindly to this suggestion, which, as the situation is viewed here, would have gone a long way to avert a fight over a platform in the making at the convention itself.

Preparations for Campaign.

What course the Governor's friends will pursue when they go to the convention with regard to the platform and its inevitable prohibition plank no one here is either in a position to say or is willing to say. Generally, however, there appears to be a desire among promoters of Mr. Smith's Presidential aspirations to avert a fight at the convention on the wet and dry or any other issue.

While the Governor himself has not as yet, so far as his friends are aware, given any detailed study to matters which will become his immediate concern in the event of his nomination, there is reason to believe that some preparation is already being made for such an eventuality. A great deal of material is now being compiled with a bearing on national finance, the tariff and the economies and tax reductions which it is the chief hope of the Coolidge Administration that it has effected.

The Governor himself has not definitely made up his mind whether to attend the convention or remain at his post in Albany. He will give no thought so long as the legislative session is in progress to any questions except those of State concern. He expects to complete consideration of the thirty-odd bills by the beginning of April in the event that the Legislature should adjourn in the middle of March and be free then to take up subjects with which he must familiarize himself to be in a position to respond to the call his friends believe cannot fail to come to him from the Democratic National Convention.

OLVANY CRITICIZED ON DELEGATE SLATE

Some Leaders Dissatisfied by Plan to Pick Those Regarded as of Most Value to Smith.

SEE SOCIAL DISCRIMINATION

Only Two District Chiefs Likely to Go to Houston—Persons of Southern Strain on List.

The decision of George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, to make the basis of selection of Congressional district delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Houston, Texas, next June, the value of each delegate to Governor Smith's Presidential candidacy, has caused much dissatisfaction among the district leaders and other influential members of the local Democratic organization, it was learned yesterday. This dissatisfaction is not expected to reach the stage of a revolt, as Judge Olvany's program has the support of Governor Smith and his friends. The delegates will be elected at the primary election on April 3.

Although the slate of district delegates has not been completed, it was said that Joseph Charles W. Culkin and Nathan Bijur were the only Tammany district leaders who were reasonably sure to be on the delegation. The eleven Congressional districts in Manhattan all are represented by Democrats and each of the eleven Representatives is an aspirant for election as delegate. Representative John F. Carew, dean and leader of the Tammany delegation in Congress, was said to be the only one sure to be selected.

Charge Social Standard.

Dissatisfied members of Tammany, including both men and women district leaders, have charged that an effort is being made to make social standing one of the principal qualifications in the selection of candidates and have gone so far as to use the word, "snobbery," in connection with a list which is understood to have been prepared by Judge Olvany and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, member of the Democratic National Committee.

Friends of Governor Smith denied that social position had had anything to do with the preparation of a tentative list of delegates. It was said that, while it was undoubtedly true that the list contained the names of men and women prominent socially, these had been selected in the belief that they could do more to advance Governor Smith's candidacy with delegates from other States than most of the district leaders of Representatives in Congress.

It was explained, for example, that George Gordon Battle and District Attorney John H. Banton, who are virtually certain to be chosen as delegates, were born in the South and would be expected to help the Governor's candidacy among Southern delegates. Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, who was Chairman of the Governor's 1926 Campaign Committee, also is understood to be slated for election as a delegate. As a member of the banking firm of Lehman Brothers, Colonel Lehman has a wide acquaintance in the West and South and his presence as a delegate at the convention is expected to be helpful to the Governor. Other men of this general type are understood to be on the tentative list of delegates.

Similar qualifications, it was said, have been considered in the selection of women delegates, a list of whom has been prepared by Miss Marbury after consultation with various groups of Democratic women. Among these are several women of Southern birth and undoubted social position, but it was denied that the primary factor in their selection had been their social position.

Only twenty-two delegates and twenty-two alternates can be elected in Manhattan and there are reported to be several hundred aspirants for these forty-two places. One result of the pressure has been to reduce the number of women on the delegation.

"New Tammany" Favored.

In selecting the delegates, it was said, an effort will be made to present to the Democrats of the rest of the country what has come to be known as the "new Tammany." It has been reported that no man who has sold liquor and no leader whose clubhouse has been raided for alleged gambling will be among those chosen. An effort also will be made to avoid the selection of too large a delegation of Roman Catholics, in view of the opposition to Governor Smith on account of his religion in certain sections of the country.

The effort to bring about the selection of delegates who will be helpful to the Governor's candidacy will extend to the rest of the State, but will not be carried to the same extent as Manhattan, the home of both the Governor and Tammany.

This plan of campaign already has been carried in the tentative selection of the four men delegates-at-large, Mayor Walker, John W. Davis, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Norman H. Mack of Buffalo, the National Committeeman. It is now thought that United States Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner, who ordinarily would have been named for delegates-at-large, will go as alternates-at-large. It was said that with this as a precedent, places as district alternates would be offered to a number of the New York City Representatives.

Brooklyn Republican Slate.

The Brooklyn Republican organization has adopted just the opposite method in selecting district delegates to the Republican National Convention. The tentative slate, which became known yesterday, is composed almost entirely of district leaders, with former Senator William M. Calder being the principal exception.

The list of the sixteen proposed delegates follows:

Third District, Jacob Bartacher and Supreme Court Justice John MacCrate or Richard Wright; Fourth District, Harold L. Tuck and Charles S. De Voy; Fifth District, William M. Calder and Charles F. Murphy; Sixth District, F. J. H. Kracke and Lewis M. Swasey; Seventh District, Paul Windels and J. Lefkowitz; Eighth District, Edwin L. Rowland and John F. Fanning or Frederick Oppikofer; Ninth District, Jacob A. Livingston and Ernest C. Wagner; Tenth District, Charles C. Lockwood and John K. Cowen.

Mr. Lockwood is Chairman of the Kings County Republican Committee and Mr. Livingston is Chairman of its Executive Committee. All the prospective delegates, except former Senator Calder, who is for Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, are believed to support the policy of Charles D. Hilles, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and State Chairman George K. Morris for an unpledged delegation.

MACCRACKEN URGES CARIBBEAN AIR LINES

Assistant Secretary Cautions Americans Not to Neglect Chance to Win Trade.

EUROPEANS SEEKING IT NOW

He Agrees With Lindbergh That There Is Big Field for Plane Services in Latin America.

By WILLIAM P. MacCRACKEN JR. Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Pioneering flights by American and European pilots over South and Central America and the islands of the Caribbean have centred attention on the history, geography and economic importance of those portions of our hemisphere.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who refuses to commercialize his aviation exploits for his personal gain, but who is ever watchful for opportunities to stress the importance of patronizing existing air transportation services and to point out to all the possibilities for sound expansion of commercial air lines, has focused our thought upon the importance of air transportation to this particular territory over which he has recently flown.

In a dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES from San Juan, Porto Rico, he suggests that "one of the greatest opportunities for the establishment of an air line lies in this part of the world." There should be no argument about the correctness of this conclusion.

Air Transport Expands.

Transportation is indispensable to commerce and industry as they exist today. To the south of us there are vast areas rich in natural resources awaiting further development as improved transportation facilities become available. In certain portions of this territory air transport has for several years demonstrated that it is both practical and profitable.

Several new air lines were inaugurated during the year just closed, and still others are in various stages of development. Most of these operations to date have been confined within the limits of a single country or between important cities in two countries, such as the Key West-Havana service.

Undoubtedly, before long, an international air line should and probably will be established connecting the United States with all the capitals and important commercial centres of this hemisphere.

Colonel Lindbergh, in his article, points out that air transport to the south of us will not be competing with well-organized systems of transportation such as exist in this country and in Europe. While there is no doubt as to the accuracy of this statement, the fact should not be overlooked that the volume of traffic available there at the present time is much less, and the difficulties confronting the operator are much greater, than in the United States.

Problems to Be Solved.

Lack of suitable terrain for the establishment of air ports in the vicinity of many important cities, as well as for intermediate fields along the routes, scarcity of population in areas which must be flown over, and inadequate weather and communication service along the airways will all present problems from an operating point of view.

None of these, however, is insurmountable, and there can be no question but that the establishment of such a service is of the utmost importance to the economic welfare of all nations on the route.

During the past fifteen years our commerce with the other nations in the Western Hemisphere has increased enormously.

This was in a large measure due to the temporary inability of most of the European traders to supply the commodities required in the Americas, or to purchase their products in competition with the United States.

The reasons for our temporary advantages are rapidly disappearing, but the fact will always remain that our commercial centres are nearer to the commercial centres of South and Central America and the West Indies than are the trading centres of Europe.

Says Europeans Are Busy.

It is reasonable to believe that for some time to come commercial air transportation across the Atlantic Ocean will present more difficulties than a similar means of transportation between the continents of this hemisphere. Notwithstanding that fact European nations are actively engaged in establishing air transportation service in South and Central America, and have projects under way for an air service from Europe to South America via Africa and across the South Atlantic.

Our business men may easily lose the favorable advantages with which nature has provided them in the Western Hemisphere by neglecting opportunities to improve the carriage of mail, express and passengers—essentials of commerce.

For some time the Administration officials in Washington have recognized the truth of these statements and taken action preliminary to the establishment of foreign mail air lines.

There is now pending legislation in Congress which would authorize the Postmaster General to contract for foreign air mail service on terms that should make it possible for the inauguration of commercial air lines such as are herein suggested.

It is particularly fortunate that under these circumstances Colonel Lindbergh has emphasized the feasibility and importance of extending our commercial air line activities to the West Indies and Central and South America.

REPAIR LEVINE PLANE'S TAIL

Mechanics Expect to Have Craft Ready for Record Try Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

CURTISS FIELD, L. I., Feb. 12.—Mechanics worked today on the broken tail section of Charles A. Levine's Bellanca monoplane Columbia. Yesterday morning Levine and his pilot, Wilmer Stultz, twisted off the tail skid of the plane as they were starting to take off for an attempt at the duration record.

Stultz said today that the plane ought to be ready again by tomorrow afternoon and that they might take off for the record attempt Tuesday morning.

Lindbergh Notes That Flight Today Marks Year Since He Quit Air Mail

He Recalls Building of Spirit of St. Louis and Its Career as He Prepares to Return From Cuba to City Which Gave Plane Its Name.

By Colonel CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

Copyright, 1928, in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Central and South America, Europe and the British Dominions by The New York Times Company. All rights reserved.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—Tomorrow I will leave Cuba on the last flight of this tour, a non-stop flight to St. Louis.

The day is an interesting anniversary to me, for it was just a year ago on Feb. 13 that I made my last flight as a mail pilot from St. Louis to Chicago and then went to San Diego, Cal., where the Spirit of St. Louis was built. The longerons were laid down on Feb. 28, only a few days after my arrival, and two months later the ship was ready for test.

Since then the plane has flown over seventeen independent countries, three colonies of Great Britain, the West Indian Islands, forty-eight States of the Union and the District of Columbia, the Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands and Porto Rico.

When I return to St. Louis I will make a flight or two on my old mail route.

Retains His Interest in Air Mail.

I am particularly interested in the air mail, for it has been the basis for development of commercial aviation in the United States, and I believe that eventually most of our important mail will be carried by air.

I would like to see much more of Cuba before I leave, but there is not time because of arrangements made some time ago for my arrival in St. Louis on Feb. 13. Havana is a beautiful city, and I do not wonder that more and more Americans are coming here every year.

My last few days have been busy, for Cuba has been generous in its hospitality. Yesterday and today, however, I was able to do some flying, and this morning I was glad to have the opportunity of taking President Machado of Cuba up for his first flight.

He was able to see his capital from the air, and it is one of the most colorful cities from an airplane I have ever seen. I believe the President was well pleased with his ride.

Sees Cuba as Link in Air Lines.

Cuba is certain to be one of the most important links in the future air lines which will connect the United States with Central and South America and the West Indies, and at present it is the terminal of the only air line operating from the United States to a foreign capital.

The operation of this line has been 100 per cent. I understand all of its scheduled mail trips have been completed.

The flight tomorrow will bring to an end my journey over the Latin-American republics. It has been carried out on schedule, and I hope that it will be productive of good; that it will not only aid the development of aviation, but perhaps contribute a little to Pan-Americanism.

of the Pan-American Conference during the nine trips he made in the morning. The passengers averaged about ten a trip, much more than are permitted on the flight across the water to Key West, when the weight is kept down for safety. Altogether he must have carried about ninety persons, most of whom were delegates to the conference.

He Readily Handles Big Plane.

Colonel Lindbergh amazed the pilots at the field by his ease of handling of the big plane. He had never flown a three-motor Fokker before. The first time he went up the craft "floated" more than he anticipated and he went about half way across the field before he managed to set it down. But after that there was no difficulty and he made a perfect three-point landing each time.

"That boy is certainly a pilot," said Eddie Musick, one of the Airways pilots, who had flown big airplanes for years. "Nobody could make better landings than he is making, and he takes off beautifully."

After completing the rides Colonel Lindbergh went back to the American Embassy with Ambassador Noble Brandon Judah and spent a quiet afternoon, and then after a private dinner turned in about 8 o'clock to get rested for his take-off on his non-stop flight to St. Louis.

Spectators Throng at Field.

By The Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—From early morning until almost midday, while Colonel Lindbergh continued to pilot the eight-passenger plane of the Pan-American Airways Company with Cuban officials and Pan-American Conference delegates aboard, Camp Columbia flying field was crowded with prospective passengers and curious spectators. It was estimated that fully 3,000 people were on the field.

Among the Pan-American Conference delegates who flew with Colonel Lindbergh were Drs. Aguirre of Uruguay, Dennis of Haiti, Cuello of Colombia, Key Ayala of Venezuela, Garcia of Mexico, Antenanza of Bolivia, Correa of Brazil, Chiari of Panama, Alfaro of Ecuador, Tello of Guatemala, Bianchi of Chile and Peynado of Santo Domingo.

Invitations to the Havana race track and other near-by places were declined by Colonel Lindbergh. After the passenger flights he visited the hangar where his own plane is housed and satisfied himself that the Spirit of St. Louis was in readiness for an early start and capable of tomorrow's hop homeward.

Colonel Lindbergh had previously expressed complete confidence of making the Havana-St. Louis jaunt without special effort. On his arrival from Port au Prince he declared the tanks of his plane contained enough gasoline to carry him all the way home.

The airman's route, as announced yesterday, will take him from Havana to Key West, the only hop over water. The route follows the west coast of Florida and skirts the Gulf of Mexico along the coast of the Gulf States to a point directly south of St. Louis. Here the coast will be abruptly abandoned for a line due north to St. Louis.

Shortly before retiring last night Colonel Lindbergh confided to correspondents his intention of temporarily retiring from all public activities. He intends dropping out of the limelight for an indefinite period and will take time to enjoy a complete rest.

Although Colonel Lindbergh insisted that his plans are still vague, it was understood he is considering an invitation from St. Louis associates to go to the Maine woods for a protracted vacation after he has made several trips over his old airmail route between St. Louis and Chicago.

Cuban Air Line Is Planned.

To the stimulus imparted by the visit of Colonel Lindbergh was attributed the conferences held today between Dr. Rafael Sanchez Abalil, the Cuban Secretary of Communications, and J. H. Trippe, President of the Pan-American Airways Company, regarding the establishment of a mail and passenger line from Havana to Santiago.

Tentative plans were made today for the clearing of landing fields at Santa Clara, Camaguey and Santiago, along the proposed route. The military authorities have promised their full cooperation.

An official party is going by rail to Camaguey, where it will be met by a personal representative of President Machado and a representative of the Communications Department, who will survey the route from the air.

St. Louis Field Is Prepared.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—Flood lights were installed at Lambert-St. Louis Field today in case Colonel Lindbergh should arrive after dark.

Colonel Lindbergh will spend the night with friends and Tuesday will give a flying exhibition over the riverfront for the entertainment of the pupils of St. Louis schools.

PILOT LOOPS 1,093 TIMES.

Charles Holman Outdoes World Record of 515 at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—A new world's record of 1,093 loops in an airplane was established at Wold-Chamberlain Airport today by Charles (Speed) Holman of Minneapolis, chief pilot for the Northwest Airways. The former record of 515 was established Feb. 4 by Gene Shank of St. Paul. Lyle Thro of Minneapolis, also beat Shank's mark when he looped 543 times.

Holman, who won the Class A cross-country air derby last Fall, was in the air from 11:10 A. M. to 3:47 P. M. He used the same plane today in which he won the national race.

One hour and fifty-eight minutes after he had taken off he had completed 516 loops, passing Shank's mark. He came down after his seventy-five gallons of gasoline had been exhausted.

Holman left Chicago at 5 A. M. today and arrived here shortly before 8 A. M. After breakfast and tuning up his engine, he started on his record-breaking stunt.

Thro ascended at 10:30 A. M. His engine developed trouble and he came down at 2:35 P. M.

Three officials of the Minnesota Aeronautic Society witnessed the flights and will forward their figures to the national body at Washington.

ROBBERS ESCAPE IN CHASE.

Policeman in Auto Fires Shots at Four Who Held Up Restaurant.

Four robbers who early this morning held up an east side restaurant escaped in an automobile after a policeman standing on the running board of a taxicab pursued them from Second Avenue and Seventy-fifth Street to Lexington Avenue and 125th Street, firing more than a dozen shots at them as they fled.

Six patrons, three men and three women, were in the restaurant, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rubin, at 309 East Seventy-fifth Street, when the hold-up took place. Two of them came in singly and seated themselves at tables and a few minutes later the other two entered with pistols in their hands. The four lined up Mr. and Mrs. Rubin and the six patrons.

The robbers took $90 from the cash register and money and jewelry worth $350 from Paul Wager of 352 East Seventy-ninth Street, a patron. The four intruders then left the restaurant and made off in a sedan automobile with New Jersey license plates.

The shouts of the persons who had been robbed brought Patrolman James Hammill of the East Sixty-seventh Street station and he commandeered a taxicab and pursued the robbers' car until he lost sight of it at 125th Street and Lexington Avenue.

FRENCH FLIERS REST; TO BE FETED TODAY

Costes and Lebrix to Be Guests of Cartier at Luncheon and of Birdmen in Evening.

10,000 VIEW PLANE AT FIELD

Further Tour in America of the Nungesser-Coli Depends on Instructions From Paris.

The French transatlantic fliers, Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, who finished their 23,000-mile flight from Paris to New York by way of Africa and South America at Mitchel Field on Saturday, spent a quiet Sunday. In the morning they sat for a sculptor, John Delasser, who made a bust of Colonel Lindbergh last Summer. Shortly after noon they motored with Clarke D. Pease of the Hispano Suiza Company to the home of Mrs. Julius Fleischman Holmes at Port Washington, L. I., for luncheon and in the evening they dined with their host, Raymond Orteig, and Mr. Pease at the Brevoort.

Both fliers said they were glad of the respite New York has given them after the celebrations in the Latin American countries. They have no plans for the immediate future except to rest and enjoy themselves. They are ahead of their schedule as it was drawn up before they left France and are awaiting instructions from home before they do more flying in this country. They would like to fly to the Coast and show their Breguet to as many people as possible, and there is some talk, which they discount, of a flight to Honolulu.

"It has been done," Lebrix said, "so why do it again?"

A transpacific flight to Tokio with a stop at Honolulu is out of the question. Both laughed at the idea, and said they would much prefer to return to Paris and either make the crossing directly to New York or try a flight to India for a new distance record.

Guests at Luncheon Today.

"We would have arrived in New York sooner but for the fêtes," Lebrix said, "and now we will rest. In fact, when we get back to France we'll probably go to some watering place to recuperate."

Neither he nor Costes, however, appeared in need of such treatment, and they were ready for whatever programs their hosts had in store. They will be the guests for luncheon of Pierre Cartier today at Sleepy Hollow, and tonight, as guests of the Quiet Birdmen, they will dine and attend "Sunny Days" at the Imperial Theatre. Among those who are expected at the dinner are Clarence Chamberlin, Commander Byrd, Bernt Balchen, Floyd Bennett, Roger Williams and Bert Acosta.

Their big green biplane, the Nungesser-Coli, veteran of 70,000 miles of flights, was on exhibition yesterday under a soldier guard at the Visiting Ships hangar at Mitchel Field. The crowds started coming early in the morning and before dark the guards estimated that almost 10,000 persons had examined the famous plane.

The Breguet is an open cockpit plane with two compartments. Costes, the pilot, sat in the first, while Lebrix sat directly behind him in the second.

"We have a gasoline capacity of more than 900 gallons," Lebrix said. "On the 2,920-mile flight from Paris to the Senegal we carried 650 gallons and we had enough left for an eight-hour flight after we landed. Across the Atlantic we started with 475 gallons in the tanks and when we arrived at Port Natal, Brazil, we had enough left for ten hours or another thousand miles. We have taken enough with a load equivalent to fuel enough for nearly 5,000 miles.

Carry a Special Compass.

The instruments on the plane differ somewhat from those on the American transatlantic planes. In place of an inductor compass and a magnetic compass the Breguet is equipped with two Morel magnetics which Lebrix considers superior to any other compass for aerial navigation.

At Natal they struck a stump on the poor landing field and injured their propeller.

"We had no spare propeller and had to repair our broken one with any means at hand," Costes said, "and so we were forced to postpone our arrival at Rio de Janeiro where the landing field was said to be hazardous, for a night landing."

Although using an unbalanced, makeshift propeller the Frenchmen flew 900 miles over broken and forested country to Caravellas. This was on Oct. 17 and the next day they reached Rio de Janeiro, 465 miles, in 4 hours and 19 minutes.

On Oct. 19 flying through intermittent violent storms they started for Buenos Aires. They landed instead at Pelotas, a distance of 900 miles, which they made in about eight hours in spite of the weather. They went on to Buenos Aires the next day. Using that city as a base they flew to other cities in the Argentine. After side trips to Uruguay where they stopped at Montevideo and other cities, they returned to Buenos Aires. On Nov. 25 they flew to Asuncion, Paraguay and returned to Buenos Aires, 1,430 miles, in 11 hours and 47 minutes flying time. That journey, by ordinary means of travel, takes from eight to ten days.

Flew Over the Andes.

After another trip north to Rio de Janeiro they returned again to Buenos Aires on Dec. 12 and on the next day they laid their course west over the Andes to Santiago, Chile.

In addition to the ordinary instruments of flight the plane carried a small sending and receiving radio set, a navigraphe Le Prieur, which is an instrument for ascertaining and correcting their drift, and a second drift indicator which was used as a check by the navigator by sighting over the tail surfaces of the plane as they flew. The plane also carried a gyroclinometre, which both pilots said was very useful. This instrument apparently combined the functions of an inclinometer and bank-and-turn indicator and was of great use in fog flying in helping the pilots to keep their craft on an even keel and plane.

"With it to help us," Lebrix said, "we were able to drive straight through fogs, clouds and storms without the usual horizon aids. It was a perfect help in flying blind."

The Breguet was forced to bore through more than 400 miles of thick fog over the Atlantic. During the South American tour, which was made on schedule in spite of severe rain storms, the fliers faced much thick weather and blind flying. They said that they did not mind the weather particularly although their open cockpits made it necessary for them to take the force of the storms full in the face.

They made the 2,115-mile water jump from St. Louis, Senegal, to Brazil in 19 hours and 15 minutes.

From Rio, with a six-hour stop at Buenos Aires, they made the total distance of 2,180 miles to Chile in 20 hours and 38 minutes flying time. They crossed the Andes before dawn at 20,000 feet. On Dec. 21 they left Santiago, and, flying all day over wild country and high mountains, they reached La Paz in Bolivia, where the landing field is 13,000 feet above sea level, the highest in the world. The distance was 1,305 miles, and the time was 12 hours and 19 minutes. From La Paz, with gasoline for ten hours, they flew out of the mountains to Lima, Peru, thence to Guayaquil, Ecuador, 816 miles, and a day later 995 miles along the ridges of the Andes to Panama, where they crossed trails with Lindbergh and met him at France Field.

On Jan. 15 they flew 1,055 miles from Colon to Caracas, and four days later they started north, arriving at Mexico City Jan. 29.

PRESTON GIBSON FACING DETENTION IN CANADA

Accused of Fraud in China, Playwright Will Be Held at Vancouver, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 12.—William Preston Gibson, playwright, of Washington, D. C., charged with having defrauded Shanghai merchants of about $7,000, arrived at Victoria, B. C., tonight from the Orient on the liner Empress of Asia, but was permitted to proceed to Vancouver with the vessel.

It is stated that he will be detained by the Canadian Immigration Department on the ship's arrival here early tomorrow morning in compliance with a request from the United States authorities. Immigration officers were prepared to hold him if he landed at Victoria, but they doubted their authority to force him to leave the vessel.

Gibson refused to discuss his case at Victoria, according to the police, but his reception was a great surprise to him. He is about 45 years old. His wife is accompanying him.

William Preston Gibson is the son of the late Senator Randall Gibson of Louisiana and a nephew of the late Chief Justice Edward White of the United States Supreme Court.

Gibson is also said to be a lineal descendant of Patrick Henry. He served during the war, first in a British ambulance corps and later with the marines, being decorated with the French Croix de Guerre.

WOMAN IS KILLED IN LEAP AT A FIRE

Jumps Four Stories From Tenement in Brooklyn—Other Tenants Rescued.

Separated from her husband by blinding smoke and flame when fire swept through a four-story tenement at 110 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, early this morning, Mrs. Ida De Cola, 40 years old, jumped from a top floor window and was killed when she dropped to the rear yard. Firemen scaled ladders to rescue men, women and children from other apartments.

The fire started on the ground floor, which housed a vacant store. The smell of smoke awakened Mrs. Mary Sullivan, who lived on the second floor. She roused a boarder, John Sullivan, who ran through the house awakening the other tenants.

By the time firemen arrived some of them had made their way to safety down the rear fire escape. Others were hovering at front windows framed by leaping flames which had flooded the stairway and cut off their escape. Ladders were quickly run up and firemen carried them to safety.

Mrs. De Cola's husband, Vincent, and her brother-in-law, John, hurried to the rear at the alarm. They groped to the fire escape and started down. When the woman arrived there, after having lost them in the smoke, it was believed, she became terrified and jumped.

The fire swept through the entire building. hTe damage was estimated at $20,000. Vincent De Cola and several others were treated for slight burns at the Holy Family Hospital four doors away. While inmates of the hospital were roused by the shouts and clanging of fire bells, it was said that no great excitement had been engendered there.

A report that the flames were of suspicious origin caused Fire Marshall Thomas Brophy to begin an investigation.

CITY BREVITIES.

Rachel Madeley Richardson has an exhibit of paintings at the Pen and Brush Club, 16 East Tenth Street, which will continue through Feb. 26. Miss Richardson first studied at the Students' Art League here, and later at the Academie de Leclase in Paris. Last Summer she studied mural painting under Paul Baudoin at Fontainebleau.

On Feb. 21, 367 Friedmans will assemble at the Manhattan Square Hotel for the nineteenth anniversary get-together of the Friedman family. The assemblage will come from thirty-six States of the Union, and one member is coming from Poland.

Manley O. Hudson, Bemis Professor of International Law at Harvard Law School, will lecture on the development of international law since the war at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, Thursday evening. Preceding the lecture, Dr. Hudson will be guest of honor at a dinner at the Harvard Club.

PUEYRREDON HOLDS KEY TO PARLEY NOW

Argentina Gives No Sign of a Compromise at Havana in Deadlock on Intervention.

MAY IGNORE INSTRUCTIONS

Dissatisfaction of His Government Believed Offset by Bid for Popularity at Home.

GUERRERO JOINS WITH HIM

Salvadoran's Backing of Opposition to the United States Darkens Outlook for Final Week.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine Ambassador to the United States, still holds the centre of the stage which furnishes the setting of the Sixth International Conference of American States. He gave no sign today of willingness to recede one step in the opposition on his part which, unless modified, will result in preventing the conclusion of a treaty for the reorganization of the Pan American Union and sections of another treaty embodying principles of international law with respect to intervention.

Reports from Buenos Aires that his Government had sent him instructions to adopt a compromising spirit did not affect Dr. Pueyrredon. From all that was learned, his intention is to keep up his opposition in spite of the expressed wishes of his Government.

The conference would end in a spirit of harmony and with a record of accomplishment if it were not for the Argentine Ambassador. While he has been joined by the Mexican and Salvadoran delegations in part of his opposition, it is generally agreed that he holds the key to the situation and harmony would prevail if he showed a willingness to compromise.

Doubt Pueyrredon Will Change.

There are reports in conference circles that Dr. Pueyrredon will show a less hostile spirit when the conference resumes work tomorrow for what probably will be its last week. Every effort is to be made to bring it to a conclusion on Feb. 20. But nothing comes from Dr. Pueyrredon to justify that optimism.

It is the understanding here that while the Argentine Government may be miffed with Dr. Pueyrredon and has told him so, he is strengthened in the fact that his opposition to the United States is popular in his country. Incidentally, the course he is following is extremely helpful to the political fortunes of a man who is regarded as a foremost candidate for the Presidential nomination in Argentina.

All his original supporters have deserted Dr. Pueyrredon in his insistence that the treaty for the reorganization of the Pan American Union can shall call for the removal of economic barriers between the American States. Nominally, at least, he is still being backed by Salvador in his contention that intervention must receive a black eye in the codification of international law which the Committee on Public International Law is drafting. Mexico has quit him in that crusade.

The situation presented is not that the conference is asked to endorse the intervention of the United States in Nicaragua. No point has been raised that intervention as practiced by the Washington Government is free from criticism. The issue is subdivided with one phase of it found in the contention of the United States delegation, and most other delegations in the conference, that the proposed outright condemnation of intervention without qualification or explanation, has no place in a codification of international law.

As the practice of nations has never sanctioned a principle that "no State may interfere in the internal affairs of another," it is claimed that such a rule has no place in any international law code. Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Salvador, who is supporting Dr. Pueyrredon, has set forth the dictum that this principle must be adopted not merely for the American republics but for the whole world.

All of which, according to the other side, is ridiculous for the reason that it never will be accepted by the great powers of Europe and by Japan, as witness the announcement of Foreign Minister Chamberlain in the Commons the other day that Great Britain had intervened in China to protect her nationals and intended to follow that course whenever the lives or property of her subjects were in danger anywhere.

Way Open to Pueyrredon.

The contention to which the Brazilian, Peruvian, United States and other delegations are committed does not reject the view that intervention by one State in the affairs of another is against public policy. They are willing to subscribe to the principle that the independence of nations must be respected and preserved.

But they hold that coupled with a declaration along that line must be a statement of the duties of nations, including an obligation to protect the lives and property of foreigners who live within their borders.

Dr. Pueyrredon would have the conference adopt as a principle of international law that a national of one country residing in the territory of another, shall forego his right to redress if he is injured during a revolutionary disturbance in the country of his residence and must not have the privilege of seeking the assistance of his Government if his rights are trampled on.

If Dr. Pueyrredon would agree to couple with a declaration about intervention a statement of the duties which States must observe toward their neighbors and the citizens of their neighbors, the troublesome question would be ended and the conference would pass happily into history.

The important point of the whole situation is that here in Havana the impression is being created that Argentina is an enemy of the United States and is taking every occasion offered in the Pan-American Conference to seek to injure the prestige of the Washington Government.

Tomorrow the conference will have a plenary session to give its approval to reports from various committees.

Guerrero Firm in Opposition.

HAVANA, Feb. 12 (AP).—The possibility of another deadlock in the deliberations of the Pan-American Conference was seen today in the announcement by Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, chief of the Salvadorean delegation, that he would continue to maintain that intervention of one State in the internal affairs of another should be internationally prohibited without exception.

An identical attitude on the part of Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon of Argentina had prevented a subcommittee studying the fundamental rights and duties of countries from coming to any decision.

Delegates informed of Dr. Guerrero's pronouncement regarded the resulting situation with misgivings.

"Although by common agreement of the sub committee I can say nothing as to what has been going on there," Dr. Guerrero declared, "my attitude on the subject of intervention is well known. I do not recognize the right of intervention of one country in the internal affairs of another under any circumstances.

"This attitude, to which I have always held, I still hold and will continue to hold unswervingly. I have already publicly announced in committee that I am favorable to the approval of the recommendations of the Rio Janeiro jurists' conference's report on the subject, and I have seen no reason to change my attitude."

Pueyrredon Reiterates Stand.

The situation was made increasingly grave tonight by a reiteration by Dr. Pueyrredon of his stand against intervention and also his refusal to agree to any convention to regulate the future activities of the Pan American Union unless it specifically condemned high tariffs in inter-American trade.

The Argentine Ambassador added that he would maintain this attitude notwithstanding reports from Buenos Aires indicating that his Government might be in favor of a less intransigent stand.

He appeared sure tonight that in denouncing flatly and unconditionally all intervention he would have his Government's full support no matter what might be the attitude of Buenos Aires on the advisability of insisting upon establishment of economic Pan-Americanism.

It was said that while Dr. Pueyrredon and Dr. Guerrero are alone in the subcommittee opposing adoption of the Maurtua definition of national independence, some other delegations were prepared to uphold in full committee the Argentine and Salvadorean views.

American Equality Is a Lesson to Europe, Parisian Says, but New York Din Is Terrible

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—One of the greatest points of superiority of American civilization over European is the true feeling of equality, which has abolished envy between classes, according to André Maurois, one of France's most talented writers, comparing in La Matin today the merits of life in America and Europe.

"Nothing," he writes, "so closely resembles the American bricklayer arriving in his automobile in front of a building under construction as the American professor leaving his car in front of a university lecture hall. Servants are rare in America, their work being accomplished by mechanical perfections, and life for the worker is very much the same as for the rich bourgeois. A poor university student can wait upon his comrades at table and do scullery work and thus make his way through college and experience no shame. Some of wealthy men often seek employment during college vacations, doing the work of shop clerks, plumbers or lumbermen or in the crews of transatlantic liners. Thus a carpenter's son does not hate a millionaire, because he thinks that tomorrow he himself may be managing a millionaire's affairs. Whence arises a condition of great moral and political health for the country."

After commenting on America's perfection of material life and its spirit of generosity M. Maurois goes on to indicate some things which he says America is learning from Europe.

"The foremost of these," he writes, "is a better use of leisure. The American does not know how to rest, and nothing is more terrible than the incessant agitation of a normal day in New York. A business man returns home at 7 o'clock worn out, but he goes out then for dinner and to the movies. There are many exceptions, but in general, the American home sees very little of its inmates.

"In the United States a wife is seldom interested in her husband's affairs. It is generally she who brings all the cultural interests to the home, since the husband is too busy to pay any attention to such matters.

"Even though education is at present making tremendous progress in the United States, it must be admitted that an American can still gain great profit from contact with the old European culture."

clining calf and a group of two antelopes in gold.

Apart from these personal belongings, the tomb produced in all about 150 objects. I have little doubt that this is the missing tomb belonging to the grave shaft described by me in my last report, namely, the one in which were found the golden harp and the decorated chariot drawn by asses, and that Queen Shub-ad was the wife of the King buried in the plundered vaulted tomb.

"Certainly the contents of the upper grave shaft seemed to show that it belonged to a woman rather than to a man, for, except for decorative examples in precious metals there was a striking lack of tools and weapons in the upper grave shaft.

"Moreover, the chariot, with its elaborate decoration of gold and silver animals, contrasted with the utilitarian simplicity of the bullock wagons in the lower grave, and the decoration of the gold vessels in the upper shaft and in the tomb is identical.

"Altogether the tomb has given us such a collection of rich objects as until this year we had never hoped to secure, and has thrown new light on the early civilization and art of the Sumerians."

Silver Model of Rowboat.

In the looted tomb of the King, the director said, the vandals had overlooked a few articles, chief of which was a two-foot silver model of a rowboat, with high stern and prow, "just such a boat as may be seen on the Euphrates marshes today."

"Like the Egyptians," he said, "the ancient Sumerians believed the dead must cross the water, separating this world from the next, and the ferryboat was commonly placed in the grave for the man's use. Only here, however, have we found anything so delicate and so costly.

"There are six benches for the rowers, each with its pair of leaf-bladed oars laid across the gunwale, and amidships is the arched support for the awning designed to protect the owner from the Mesopotamian sun. Though it was deeply embedded in the fallen stones of the wall, the model is perfect and only the awning support is crushed."

POPE'S ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED IN ROME

Pontiff Pronounces Benediction at Mass Attended by King of Sweden.

ROME, Feb. 12 (AP).—The presence of King Gustavus of Sweden and his Queen made particularly notable the solemn pontifical high mass celebrated in the Sistine Chapel this morning, in observance of the sixth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI.

Cardinal Locatelli and the Sistine Choir intoned the mass. The Pontiff, clad entirely in white, was carried in the sedia gestatoria, the portable throne used only on occasions of ceremony. The Pope himself pronounced the benediction.

King Gustavus came here last week to join Queen Victoria, who has been staying through the Winter, as usual, at her villa here. Besides the Swedish sovereigns, the mass was heard by former Mayor and Mrs. W. B. Hendrick of Philadelphia and several members of foreign legations, including Jonkheer H. H. Van Karnebeek, former Foreign Minister of the Netherlands.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Nearly 5,000 English Catholics joined today in a remarkable celebration in Westminster Cathedral of the sixth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI. The celebration, with its imposing ritual, testifying spiritual fealty to the head of the Church, was held at vespers.

Cardinal Bourne was assisted by a great gathering of church dignitaries. Among those in attendance, beside priests and nuns, were Ambassadors or Ministers of sixteen countries, members of both Houses of Parliament, and many of the Catholic nobility.

The diplomats included representatives of Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Spain and Venezuela. Cardinal Bourne afterward presided at a reception.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Montparnasse and the Latin quarter are greatly excited over the action of a young French painter, Maurice Vlaminck, who, discovering paintings labeled with his name, which were not his work, on exhibit in a gallery on the left bank of the Seine, drew out a pocket knife and slashed the pictures to ribbons.

Vlaminck declares he acted not only on his own behalf but for many other young painters who are being exploited in like manner. He says that as soon as an artist makes anything of a reputation dealers do not hesitate to hire other and poorer artists to make pictures and sign them with the more celebrated artist's name in order to make sales.

Vlaminck was arrested for slashing the pictures but released when he proved his identity.

FOUL AIR PREVENTS RESCUE

Survivors Crawl Two Miles Amid Choking Dust to Shaft at Whitehaven on Irish Sea.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Thirteen members of an exploration party seeking the body of a miner lost in an explosion in December in the Haig Pit at Whitehaven, on the Irish Sea, one of the most modern mines of Northern England, were killed today following four explosions in the portion of the mine where they were walking early this morning. Eight others of the party, dazed and partly gassed, crawled two miles through choking dust to the shaft.

Two of the dead were officials of the Ministry of Mines. Foul air, which filled the pit after the last of four blasts in ten minutes, foiled the rescue of the entombed men and necessitated the sealing of the mine at noon. An outbreak of fire is believed to have caused the explosions.

Prince of Wales in Pit Last July.

Although the mine is considered one of the most modern, it is recalled that in an explosion there in September, 1922, thirty-nine men perished. The Prince of Wales descended into the pit during his visit to Whitehaven last July.

In the December explosion four men died. Fire had broken out and the walls were sealed. When the mine was reopened one man was not found. The exploration work previous to today's disaster began yesterday.

Just after midnight this morning, the eight men who ultimately revived withdrew about 100 yards in the pit toward the shaft to get food and recharge oxygen apparatus. In the midst of their meal the men heard four explosions. The first two were merely rumbles, the third raised volumes of dust and the fourth, a violent blast, threw the men off their feet and filled the mine with foul air.

As they emerged at the pithead, a rescue party was formed to seek the others. Equipped with respirators the squad descended, but encountered heavy falls of coal and such foul air that they were only able to reach the brick stoppings behind which the lost explorers had vanished.

During the day other parties followed, but none was able to proceed beyond the partially demolished brick barrier. When the fire became a more serious menace, the brick wall was resealed and all hope for the explorers was given up.

Survivor Tells of Fight for Life.

WHITEHAVEN, England, Feb. 12 (AP).—One of the eight men in the Haig mine disaster today who reached the surface, exhausted and so covered with dust they hardly appeared like men, related their harrowing experience.

"Excellent progress was being made in the exploration work," he said, "and we found both original fires had burned themselves out. There must have been a third fire further in, which caused the explosion. We had left the main party to recharge our batteries and to eat a lunch and we were probably about 500 yards behind them.

"Just as we finished eating, we heard a dull rumble, then came a second explosion and we all started to get our apparatus and go to the rescue of the others. A third explosion blinded us and before we could find our equipment we were knocked semi-conscious by a fourth. Only one lamp remained lighted.

"Half crawling, half walking, guided only by wagon lines, we struggled the two miles to the pit shaft. It seemed an eternity and at times I never thought I could win through. The explosions had filled the air with thick dust and we reached the surface completely exhausted."

Among those killed in today's disaster were William Loudon and F. Burdess, Government Inspectors of Mines; Robert Steel, manager of the works; Henry Hanlon, a miner's agent; John Tyson, Secretary of the Cumberland Colliery Officials' Association; Robert Fell, under manager of the Haig Mine, and several minor officials.

The region about Whitehaven, a port of the Irish Sea near the entrance of Solway Firth, has extensive coal and iron mines which supply the numerous foundries, shipyards and factories of neighboring cities.

GERMANS HALT USE OF FORD

Refuse Licenses, but Cars Will Be Altered to Meet Regulations.

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—Because the hand and foot brakes on the new Ford model automobile do not conform to requirements of the official German board controlling steam boilers, licenses to operate the latest Ford turnouts have for the present been refused.

The new Ford system of working hand and foot brakes with the same mechanism is in violation of the German regulations prescribing a distinct mechanism for each brake.

This, however, is considered only a transitory complication that will have no influence on the sale of new Fords, which are not expected to arrive on the German market before six or eight weeks. The required mechanism has already been designed and will be mounted at the Ford plant in Berlin.

New Jersey and the District of Columbia both recently found the new Ford braking system to be not in accord with their regulations and refused to issue licenses to operate the new model in their jurisdictions. Several other States had similar regulations, so the Ford Motor Company decided in January to equip the new model with a separate parking brake to meet these State requirements.

POLICE AGAIN CALLED BY ENGLISH VICAR

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The bitterness between the orthodox members and Anglo-Catholics in St. Cuthbert's Church at Darwen resulted for the third successive Sunday in the police being called in by the vicar during this morning's service. The police took the names of twenty-one parishioners who were accused of making a disturbance.

The uproar began when the vicar crossed himself in the pulpit. Thereupon most of the congregation of 800 rose and began to sing the hymn, "The Church's One Foundation."

Taking off his stole, the vicar shouted:

"Owing to the blasphemy which has taken place, there will be no further service this morning."

The members of the congregation answered loudly:

"This is the Church of England. Give us the Church of England service."

The vicar then called the police and left the church. Emerging under the protection of two detectives, he lit a cigarette in the face of an angry crowd of townspeople, who followed him down the street, hissing and shouting.

ROSTAND REFUSES TO FIGHT A DUEL

Author Whose Play He Criticized Not Justified in Challenging, Young Writer Says.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Maurice Rostand, son of France's great playwright and himself a poet and critic, considers his acceptance of a challenge to a duel might set a dangerous precedent for Paris critics. He so informed the seconds of Pierre Weber, a young dramatist, who called upon the poet today.

M. Weber, whose intimates admit that he can scarcely boast of being an adept at even instructed in the use of broadsword, pistol or dueling blade, was deeply affronted at a criticism which Rostand wrote of one of his plays now showing in Paris. Rostand described the play as vile, besides "not containing a single amusing word."

Weber's seconds, Armand Massard and Georges Rolle, called upon Rostand several times, only to find him out, but yesterday interviewed the poet, who asked for the weekend to think the matter over. Today he made it known that he would not take part in a duel.

"Criticism of a critic by recourse to arms is inadmissible," he said. Acquaintances of Rostand add that he is further incapacitated for dueling because duels take place at dawn, while Rostand never rises until afternoon.

ALL ALSACE JOINS TO GREET POINCARE

Mayors of Regained Province Give French Premier Great Banquet at Strasbourg.

HE IS SURE IT IS LOYAL

Referring to Autonomy Movement, He Voices Conviction That People Do Not Want Separation.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Strasbourg and Alsace gave Premier Poincaré such a reception today as he could have had nowhere else in France. Out of a total of 662 Mayors in the Department of Bas Rhin, as Alsace is now called, 559 joined in the invitation to the Premier to come today to speak at a great banquet in his honor. And of those who did not join in the invitation there was scarcely any who did so for other than merely internal political motives.

Premier Poincaré had said before he left Paris that he would not make a political speech. However, he was forced to make several direct allusions to the autonomist movement in Alsace and the action of the Government in arresting several of the leaders and suppressing certain newspapers. When the trial revealed the activities of those who had been arrested and showed not only their political manoeuvrings but the kind of people they were, the Premier declared, he was sure that Alsace would have none of them within her borders.

Bilingualism and Patriotism.

Alsace, he reminded the people, is not the only place in France where two languages exist side by side. The Bretons, Flamands, Basques, Provençals and Corsicans still kept their own languages but were not for that the worse Frenchmen. In Belgium, Switzerland and Canada there are peoples who speak different languages, but they are none the less all good Belgians, Swiss or Canadians, M. Poincaré declared.

When at the coming elections, he continued, Alsace, like every other department of France, would have to choose who would represent it in Parliament, the people would do as they had done before and send there men of all parties, like every other part of France, but men who were "French without reserve, without condition, without reticence."

If they wanted others they were free to elect them, and the Government would have to listen to their claims, their grievances and their desires, M. Poincaré went on. This election would give them their third chance to express freely their choice. But, for himself, he said, he had no doubt whatever that the representatives they would choose, whatever their party, would not belong to the party of separation.

Alsace's History Recalled.

In many eloquent passages the Premier told over again the story of Alsace's separation from France after the Franco-Prussian War and the long and patient wait which followed, when on the French side of the frontier, he said, Frenchmen schooled themselves not to let their feelings lead them into acts and words provocative of war.

"Without ever daring to formulate the idea of revenge," the Premier declared, "we waited, immobile and anxious, before the sphynx of destiny until the day when the Imperial Governments of Austria and Germany, drunk with pride, loosed on their peoples and ours that catastrophe which until the last minute we tried to avoid.

"On that day we were free again, and then we swore never to lay down our arms before we had assured the double deliverance of Alsace and Lorraine."

During the Premier's speech he was interrupted at times by enthusiastic cheering, and in the Place Broglie he was received with an enthusiasm which recalled the moving reception given to him in 1918 when, as President of the French Republic, he paid a formal visit to Strasburg for the first time after the deliverance of Alsace-Lorraine.

The exhibits of the arts and culture of Soviet Russia, now being shown at the Russian Exposition at 119 West Fifty-seventh Street, have been viewed by 70,000 persons during the first two weeks, according to an announcement made last night by Miss Lucy Branham, secretary of the Exhibition Committee. The showing is sponsored by the American Society for Cultural Relations with Russia, of which Miss Branham is Executive Secretary, and the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce.

BIRTH RATE IN SPAIN IS NOW ON DECLINE

Figures Show Drop in Marriages There—Cardinal in Italy Urges Larger Families.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Feb. 12.—The shrinkage in the Spanish birth-rate, which has recently caused a widespread controversy among the leading newspapers in Madrid and elsewhere in the country, is receiving serious consideration from the Government. Statistics show that although the population of Spain, which was 20,802,000 in 1913, increased to 22,128,000 in 1926, the birth-rate per thousand in 1926 was only 29.9, compared with 30.03 in 1913.

The principal reason to which the decrease is attributed is the diminishing number of marriages, although also there is a noticeable decrease in the size of families throughout Spain. During 1900, when the population was 18,566,000, there were 161,201 marriages; whereas in 1926, with the population given above, there were 162,035 marriages, a proportionate falling off of .1 per cent.

Ten years ago the average Spanish family was much larger than it is today. It was not unusual then for middle-class families to have from five to ten children. But lately, despite the efforts of the Government to encourage large families by offering prizes to the parents and increasing the salaries of such parents in the employ of the State, or providing free educational facilities through college for the children of families numbering more than eight, the size of families is shrinking gradually.

Fifty thousand more boys than girls are born in Spain every year, and out of every 10,000 births 220 are either twins or triplets. But even among the working classes and in the small towns, where the birth-rate formerly was high, a decrease is making itself felt.

With the efforts the Government is making to develop agricultural territory, it is feared that unless steps are taken to bring about an increase in the birth-rate within the next few years the decreasing birth rate is likely seriously to affect the Government program, since a lack of man power is certain to be felt.

Cardinal Laments Drop in Italy.

MILAN, Italy, Feb. 12 (AP).—The gospel of large families, which Premier Mussolini has been preaching, is endorsed in the Lenten pastorale of Cardinal Tosi, Archbishop of Milan, wherein he laments the falling birth rate and extols the Premier for his courageous stand in the matter.

He cites "a neighboring country," presumably France, where each census shows fewer children, and says that Italy does not want such a condition, which would amount to a catastrophe for the country.

Cardinal Tosi says that the need of the day is for purification of the atmosphere tainting society. He says that a revival of Christian sentiments rather than worldly ones is necessary unless there is to be a complete renovation of the world conception of life.

AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR GOING TO PRAGUE

Will Discuss Important European Questions With Masaryk and Benes.

VIENNA, Feb. 12.—Dr. Seipel leaves for Prague tomorrow to deliver lectures before the high school on "The World Outlook and National Spirit."

The Austrian Chancellor is journeying to Prague at the invitation of the Christian Social School Association, but will take advantage of the trip to discuss politics with President Masarky and Foreign Minister Benes.

The statesmen it is expected will discuss a number of outstanding problems in Europe which affect both countries, foremost among which is the movement for the union of Germany and Austria and the plan to move the headquarters of the League of Nations to Vienna. Lidove Noviny of Prague says that the proposition of moving the League is definitely on the agenda for the meeting of Dr. Benes and Dr. Seipel, which will be one of the first important steps by the Austrian Government toward making the capital the seat of the world organization, a plan which would be of the greatest benefit to Austria and is known to be favored by a number of the Balkan Governments.

The Pan-American leaders in Austria are opposed to the idea, seeing in it a blow to union with Germany.

INDIA'S MODERATES TURN AGAINST SIMON

Statutory Commission Fights Losing Campaign in Its Endeavor to Mollify Hindus.

GANDHI RENEWS ACTIVITY

Plans Return to Politics if Health Permits—Revenue Revolts in Madras Presage Trouble.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Sir John Simon is fighting a losing campaign in his endeavor to mollify the offended Hindus in India and induce them to cooperate with the Statutory Commission, according to dispatches from various points in India received over the week-end. Not only are the extremists flouting the commission openly since its arrival, but apparently they have been joined by groups which usually are more moderate.

Besides these setbacks there are straws in the wind presaging coming storms. In Bombay, Gandhi has renewed his political activity and is counseling the remnants of his old following to make the boycott of the commission more complete. Owing to the precarious state of his health, it is said that his ability to fight the Simon commission vigorously is doubtful. But he intends to make a comeback in politics if his health will permit.

A minor movement is beginning in India wherein political trouble is foreseen. This consists of local revolts against the land revenue demands of the Madras Presidency. Though now largely economic in character, the movement is recognized as capable of taking a violent political turn.

One great source of the Simon commission's troubles, it is said, lies in the injured feelings of the former leader of the Indian Assembly who journeyed to London at his own expense last Summer particularly to see the India Office and lay before it the necessity of including Indians in the personnel of the inquiry. He tried and failed to see Lord Birkenhead and, returning to India without an interview, is fighting the commission tooth and nail. The result of his and other leaders' activities was the flat refusal to see Sir John issued by the group of "Constitutionalist" leaders within five hours after his friendly invitation. The "Constitutionalists" hitherto have cooperated with imperial commissions, but their answer to Sir John was about as follows:

"Our position is that the Crown could have created an equal status for Indians by putting them on the commission, as is invariable in modern practice for all royal commissions concerning India. What the Crown has failed to do the commission cannot do now."

All shades of moderation over the question of British rule are disappearing, it is hinted, and the country is lining up into two camps.

GIBBS CALLS AMERICA 'MOST DANGEROUS'

Says This Nation Is a Peril Because 'Too Highly Organized and Volatile.'

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OXFORD, Feb. 12.—"America is the most dangerous nation in the world today," Sir Philip Gibbs told the Newman Society here tonight, "because it is too highly organized and volatile, so that overnight a passion of pity or hate could sweep the country and rouse it to action which would be either beneficial or detrimental to the world."

He urged the students at Oxford to make closer friends with the Rhodes scholars and try to learn American viewpoints, relating the old charge that Rhodes scholars tend to become an isolated group within the ancient university.

"I do not hold the common opinion that America is money mad," he said. "I find Americans are inspired by the romance of the struggle of great business enterprise and are faithful to the facts of success. I think you will find the Americans are the most idealistic people on earth."

Sir Philip declared the recent Geneva Conference was bound to fail and that other attempts at naval limitation were bound to fail until some settlement was reached between the United States and England on the question of rights of neutral shipping at sea in times of war.

"Unless that question is settled, some day, when England is fighting a Continental power, she is apt to find herself at war with America too," he said.

Upbraiding the English people for their unwillingness to keep up to "the pace of modern civilization," he said:

"The reason Englishmen are inclined these days to carp at Americans is because England is living in the past. Modern civilization is too fast for it. Some rather fear than accept progress. America represents progress."

Women to Hear Mastick on Housing.

Representatives of women's organizations throughout the city have been invited to attend a tea at the Women's City Club, 22 Park Avenue, on Friday afternoon, at which Senator Seabury C. Mastick will translate the terms of the proposed housing law into "terms of human health and safety," Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, President of the Club, announced yesterday.

SEEKS TO SUPPRESS EDITH CAVELL FILM

British Government Puts Pressure on Producers Not to Show It.

ITS ACTION IS ASSAILED

Controversy Expected to Result in Deletion of Scenes That Caused German Protests.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Revelation that the question of whether the motion picture "Dawn," portraying the last days and execution of Edith Cavell, should be permitted to be shown has been the subject of Cabinet discussion and that the Government is putting pressure on the British movie business not to exhibit it, was made today following Sir Austen Chamberlain's letter on Friday condemning it as making for international discord.

Simultaneously evidence appears of vigorous opposition by some parts of British public opinion to Sir Austen's point of view and the Foreign Secretary is criticised roughly in the Rothermere and Beaverbrook press for "trying to interfere with the liberties of people."

The Government officials admit that they have no power to censor the picture on the ground of its political effect, but it is known that T. P. O'Connor, the film censor, is engaged in conferences with the movie world, trying to find a way to avoid giving offense to the protesting German Government.

In well-informed quarters it is said to be likely that the film will be shown but that some portions calculated to reopen old war wounds will be deleted.

Herbert Wilcox, producer of "Dawn," has written Sir Austen, criticising him for his refusal to see the picture and for judging it entirely on press reports of its contents and the German demands that it be prohibited.

As in similar storms for and against the censorship of public entertainment in New York, there is ample reason in London to see the shrewd hand of publicity creating a dispute in the public prints. The concern producing "Dawn" is about to float a stock issue and there be those who say that publicity was first courted by the company, though now its officials fear it has gotten beyond its grasp. Mr. Wilcox denies it.

Whatever the truth of the matter the film is the subject today of two heated editorials, one by James Douglas, editor of the Sunday Express, croying "Shall Germany Kill Nurse Cavell Again?" and the other in the Sunday Pictorial entitled "Sir Austen's False Step," and saying:

"More important than the fate of the film is the disclosure of the increasing tendency of official circles to meddle with public liberty and handicap our young industries."

MEXICAN SLAYER IS KILLED.

Man Who Slew American Patrol Falls in Fight With Police.

CALEXICO, Cal., Feb. 12 (AP).—José Prado, identified as the Mexican who killed Norman G. Ross, an American border patrol officer, was shot and killed last night at a ranch two and one-half miles from Mexicali, Mexico, by Alberto Garcia, chief of the Mexican rural police.

Prado, for whom a search was made on both sides of the border, resisted arrest when approached by the Mexican official, it was reported by the United States immigration authorities at Calexico. A short gun battle followed and Prado fell mortally wounded.

Another Mexican, Francisco Carillo, was sought as the accomplice of Prado in the slaying of the immigration inspector.

MOSCOW'S POLICY IN THE BALANCE

GERMANS NOT SATISFIED

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 12.—Negotiations just opened in Berlin for a renewal of the Russo-German commercial treaty, which expires April 1, are expected to mark an important stage in the relations of the two countries.

It is no secret that a considerable section of German business is somewhat disappointed by their dealings with the Soviet in the last two or three years. They question Soviet statistics showing large profits made on exports to Russia as compared with other countries, and assert that the Soviet monopoly purchase system enables the Russians to play off one German firm against another until profits vanish. Furthermore, the Soviet statistics include, they aver, goods shipped to Russia from German ports which were not of German production.

Orders Also Placed Elsewhere.

Another complaint is that, despite bigger credit facilities given by Germany and the almost unique friendship Russia enjoys with Germans, the Soviet constantly places big orders elsewhere for political reasons. For instance, recently a 150,000,000-mark order for machinery was placed in England. Finally, German firms assert that the Russians have not fulfilled the treaty regulations regarding visas and free access by German experts to Soviet territory. These charges may not be justified.

The Germans are also inclined to believe that Soviet policy in general is swinging to the Left instead of to the Right, as was expected abroad after the downfall of the Opposition. All this has created in Berlin an atmosphere of uncertainty which has found expression in restriction of credits and a waiting policy.

Earlier important conferences in Berlin in which the director of the Soviet State Bank, M. Sheineman, and other important Soviet executives took part were not productive of much result, which in some quarters is considered to augur ill for the present negotiations. It is more probable, however, that the Germans are making the typical mistakes of foreign countries in regard to Russia—first they forget that Soviet mentality and method are dissimilar to their own, and, second, they do not realize that there is a bigger time gap in the Soviet Union than in Western countries between events and consequences; in other words, that the present tone of Soviet policy is inspired by the political and economic difficulties of a month or two ago, despite the fact that in both spheres the said difficulties have been largely overcome today.

Optimistic on Grain Collections.

The Soviet economic authorities, who six weeks ago were frankly pessimistic regarding grain collections, now assert confidently that the year's collection program will be completed 100 per cent. Similarly, political nervousness, inadequately hidden during the first fortnight of January, has now been succeeded by a period of dispassionate survey of the respective advantages and disadvantages of a Left or Right or Middle policy.

Actually it is probable that the Soviet foreign policy will depend largely upon the attitude of other countries. If German business men are overpessimistic, if France tries to squeeze the Russians too hard and if there is general reluctance elsewhere to secure the economic opportunities the Russians believe their country offers, the result will be a swing of Soviet policy Leftward. On the other hand, if the Russians see signs of friendly cooperation, there is no doubt that they are at present in the mood to meet foreigners half way and endeavor to settle outstanding difficulties to mutual satisfaction.

MEREDITH CENTENARY IS OBSERVED TODAY

English Universities to Have Special Lectures on Novelist, Who Died in 1909.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Literary London observes tomorrow the centenary of the birth of George Meredith, famous novelist and poet, who at his death in 1909 was hailed "the last of the Victorians."

Last month, when Thomas Hardy died, the world of letters paid homage to the Wessex genius as "the last of the Victorians," and it seems to be a conviction now that the Victorian literati were sturdy folk.

English universities have arranged special lectures on Meredith and his work, while his style and position in English literature will be discussed by many literary societies.

An interesting literary event in connection with the Meredith centenary will be the publication in a magazine of the last article written by Hardy, an account of his first meeting with Meredith.

Despite the passing of Meredith and Hardy, each of whom was the dean of English letters in his day, there are still a dozen or more writers in England who are Victorians in the true sense of the word. They were publishing books as long ago as the middle period of Victoria's reign.

One of these is the poet laureate, Robert Bridges, who was born in 1844 and started his career as a poet after finishing one as a doctor. Another is Bernard Shaw, born in 1856, who cannot escape being Victorian in years, although he may in thought.

Earl Balfour, statesman and philosopher, published his "Defence of Philosophic Doubt" in 1879. Balfour will be 80 years of age in June.

Sir George Otto Trevelyan, who has written a four-volume history of the American Revolution, published his first book in 1865, and will be 80 years old this month.

Other living Victorians include Richard Whiteing, who married a daughter of Townsend Harris, first American Minister to Japan. Whiteing, who was born in 1840, prepared one of his books for the motion pictures in 1921.

Sir Edmund Goose, who will be 80 this year, still writes a column for a Sunday newspaper, besides doing other literary work, and Sir Thomas Anstey Guthrie, the novelist, born in 1856, last year added another to the long list of his books.

982 JAPANESE SEEK 464 SEATS IN DIET

First Campaign Under Universal Suffrage Reveals the Spread of Democratic Principles.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Feb. 12.—At midnight the list of candidates for the general election closes. The candidates for the 464 seats now number 982, and the few more who may come forward will not affect the general alignment. The two historical parties are almost equally balanced, the Seiyukai having 350 men in the field, and the Minseito 343.

The Independents, a title which covers the cautious politicians who expect to be elected on their local popularity and thereafter support the Government of the day on what terms they can make, number 137 and will evidently hold the balance. The Business Party, whose platform has the best expression, "sane liberalism," before the electors, has 31 candidates. Labor's various groups total 85, of which the Right Wing candidates number 56.

The change that manhood suffrage, operating for the first time, has introduced into the former machine-made system is shown by the inability of the oldest electioneers to predict the result. Mr. Meorchisuki, the Minister of Communications, who is managing the Seiyukai campaign, declared today that manhood suffrage has brought in so many new factors that he is unable to forecast the result. He was certain that either the Seiyukai or Minseito will lead, but that it was impossible to say which.

The Tokio Asahi's forecast is the Seiyukai 217 and the Minseito 210. About 10 is still the best guess for Labor.

Thirty different professions are represented among the candidates. Lawyers lead with 154, business men are next with 148, and authors and journalists have 98. Twenty-four Laborites describe themselves as members of labor unions. Eighty-one farmers, twenty-four doctors and twenty-nine teachers are running. Seventeen Buddhist priests have presented themselves, and three candidates belong to the curious profession of the geisha-house owner.

Judging this election by the ordinary standards in Western countries, it leaves little doubt that the Japanese have successfully assimilated the lessons in democracy which their thirty years' experience with representative government under a limited franchise has given them. Many of the older men profess to disregard politics and despise politicians, but the younger men are keen to show strong party feelings.

Election meetings are held nightly all over Tokio and are well attended.

Walls are covered with posters and the output of election literature is enormous. The contest is a partisan struggle between the historical parties rather than a battle between clear-cut programs, and many voters look at it as a sporting event in which they will vote for their favorite. That aspect is less important than the general acceptance of democracy which is seen everywhere.

The conception that the common people can make and unmake Governments is still novel in Japan, and to many older people it is scarcely credible. Many observers have feared that as the mystical sanctions of Government ceased to hold the people and the Elder Statesmen died out Japan would be politically rudderless.

The present election shows that the younger generation, tutored on modern textbooks, taught to admire Lincoln and familiar with the American constitutional procedures, regards democracy as the normal form of government for an advanced country. The sanction of the majority is coming naturally to replace in the minds of the people the older paternalistic sanctions of government.

HATVANY SENTENCE AROUSES HUNGARY

Government Is Urged to Ease Seven-Year Penalty Given the Returned Exile.

AMNESTY WAS PROMISED

He Pleaded Guilty to Attacks on Horthy After Fleeing Budapest With Karolyi Plotters.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 12.—Appeals have been made in the last week, both in and out of Hungary, to the Government against the sentence to seven years' imprisonment of Baron Ludwig Hatvany for articles written in exile between 1921 and 1923 against the Government of Count Bethlen. The Baron's writings were considered treacherous to the institutions of Admiral Horthy and to violate the law which prohibits Hungarian subjects anywhere in the world from attacking the Hungarian Government in a manner "to offend the honor of the Hungarian nation."

The Baron pleaded guilty to violating the law at his recent trial, although his counsel assert his admission was made with the understanding that he would be given the advantages of the amnesty to political offenders and exiles which brought him back to his country in December.

An appeal is being made by the Hatvany family, which, for generations, has controlled large industrial interests in its country and by artistic and literary circles with which the prisoner's name has long been associated. Baron Hatvany's punishment is typical of post-war Hungary in the years of its distresses.

Was Patron of Poets.

Unlike other members of his family, Ludwig Hatvany inclined more to the arts than to industry and became known before the war as a patron of poets and authors, though his own importance in these fields was limited. About 1918 he purchased the Budapest Daily Pesti Napli, one of the most important organs of the city, and filled the paper with pacifist and democratic propaganda. He became associated through the newspaper with the revolution of Count Michael Karolyi and fled with the survivors of this venture to Vienna when the Bolshevist régime of Bela Kun began.

Later, when the Horthy régime was established, he attempted with many other exiles to return home, but the new Government threatened to arrest him as a revolutionary instigator. Much of the opposition to his return was said to have been caused by anti-Semitic groups, for the Hatvany family, though now Catholic, is of Jewish origin.

His exile he spent in Vienna, where he was associated with many other Hungarians in writing for the newspaper Jovo, which gave its supporters their only chance to attack the Horthy-Bethlen Government, as most of the exiles at that time living out of Hungary because of their adherence to former Governments or of fear of the so-called "white terror" which marked the change from Bolshevism to the extreme conservatism of the Horthy party.

Attacked Admiral Hotly.

Baron Hatvany attacked and libeled Regent Horthy as a protector of murderers and rioters and as one who instigated the "white terror." As a matter of fact the Baron's articles really were not of great importance, as they circulated only among a few hundred exiles, and the paper Jovo had a short existence.

In 1922, when Hungary was on its way to its present state of quiet, Baron Hatvany published a book in German, "Das Verwundete Land," which is translated "The Injured Country," arguing that injustice had been committed against Hungary by the Treaty of Trianon. The book was considered a patriotic one and it restored him to many of his countrymen if it did not appease the anger of the Government.

The Baron continued to reside in Vienna until, in answer to the pleas of the Democrats and Socialists for a general amnesty for all political offenders, Count Bethlen agreed to the extent of forgiveness for past offenses if the exiles stood trial and undertook to take no further part in the political life of the country. Many noted opponents of the Government returned to their homes and were allowed their freedom under these conditions. On the advice of friends Baron Hatvany returned to Hungary in December, but because of his enemies he was arrested.

Notables Protest Sentence.

Before the trial, at the urging of his family, he retracted all his attacks on the Government. In court he admitted his guilt while weeping and threw himself on the mercy of the Court. The answer was a sentence of seven years in jail and a fine of 500,000 pengo (about $100,000).

The sentence, in the face of the leniency shown other political offenders, has aroused much protest in Budapest and elsewhere in Europe, and prominent literary names in Germany, Austria, France and England have been signed to requests for a readjustment of the sentence.

An appeal to the high court has been officially made and there is a feeling here that the Minister of Justice will eventually reduce the sentence and probably the fine. The hearing on the appeal is set for the March session of court.

Thomas Mann, Arthur Schnitzler, Felix Salter and Gerhard Hauptmann are among those sending appeals on behalf of the prisoner to Count Bethlen. Baron Hatvany at present is in prison.

FAILS TO FORM CABINET.

Peritch Gives Up and Yugoslav King Again Calls Vukitchevitch.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Feb. 12.—After the most important political figures had failed to form a coalition government from the four political parties in Yugoslavia the King tonight again requested former Premier Vukitchevitch to make another attempt.

M. Vukitchevitch, head of the last Government, which resigned when the Democrats withdrew from the Cabinet, was unable to form a new Government immediately after his resignation. Since then M. Raditch, leader of the Croatian peasants, M. Davidovitch, Democratic chief, and M. Peritch, President of the Skuptchina, have all been forced to return their mandates to the King.

M. Vukitchevitch, who is now recalled, is expected now to seek to get the Democrats to re-enter the coalition, probably agreeing to their demands for tax distribution reform which he originally refused and which precipitated the present crisis.

NICE CARNIVAL GAYEST YET.

Riviera's Capital Surpasses Itself as Fiftieth Season Opens.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NICE, Feb. 12.—Because this year brought the fiftieth anniversary of the most famous of all carnivals—that of the Riviera's capital, Nice—the celebration which opened today was of exceptional splendor, with a great parade passing through the principal avenues.

Nice surpassed herself in the effort to achieve success and the weather was fine, with the mistral blast from the Rhone Valley sweeping away the clouds of yesterday. So high was the gale blowing, however, that many in the dense crowds of international frolickers feared that some of the biggest floats and chariots, of which some stood twenty-five feet high, would be blown off the jetty into the sea as they swayed under the pressure of the gusts.

Many floats, both humorous and otherwise, were modeled upon the best produced during the carnival season, with the usual series of confetti battles and brilliant fights with flowers for which the Riviera is famous.

PARLIAMENT TO GET NEW RHODES PLAN

Bill to Change the Method of Choosing Scholars Here Will Be Presented.

ENDS SINGLE STATE SYSTEM

Country Would Be Divided by Trustees Into Eight Areas for More Equable Selection.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OXFORD, Feb. 12.—The trustees of the Rhodes Trust, which gathers students from the United States and the British Dominions to Oxford annually, is preparing a bill to introduce in this Parliament to alter the method of selection, particularly in the United States, F. J. Wylie, Secretary of the Trust, said tonight. The measure would enable the trustees to end selection by States, whereby small States such as Nevada and Utah have the same number of Rhodes scholars as New York and Pennsylvania and district the United States into eight areas.

Instead of picking one man in each State for two successive years and then stopping the third year, the trustees could pick four men from each of the eight State areas every year. Two and even three men might be from one State.

Mr. Wylie said the move was bound to improve the class of Rhodes scholars, though he did not wish to be placed in the position of criticising the present personnel.

The bill would be shaped so that the trustees could alter equal representation in each Canadian Province, also, drawing a greater proportion of students from centres of great population.

"The measure does not contemplate changing the number of Rhodes scholars," he said. "The selection in various States could be arranged so that there would be normally thirty-two from each of the eight State groups in the Union attending Oxford. But it is obvious that there are numerous potential scholars in the great centres of population who, being second and third choice there, fail to obtain Rhodes scholarships, whereas if they had been in the competition in some more sparsely settled area they would have won it.

"The tentative plan contemplates a Board of Education cooperating with a central district authority. The standards of choice will be unchanged, men being judged not only on scholarship, but for leadership as displayed in college activities, joined with the written recommendation of the leaders of some communities and chosen finally after personal interviews."

In order to make this change we will have to get authority to alter Cecil Rhodes's will, and we hope to do this at this session at Westminster.

CANDY STORE OWNER IS SHOT BY ROBBER

Brooklyn Man Wounded in Hold-Up Attempt by Well-Dressed Youth Who Escapes.

VICTIM'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Detectives Investigate, but Can Find No One Who Saw Bandit Leave the Scene of Crime.

Benjamin Nilestein, 65 years old, of 1,617 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, was shot and seriously wounded in his candy store at 367 Kingston Avenue, Brooklyn, early last evening when he fought with a young man who attempted to hold him up. After firing the shot the robber escaped.

Nilestein was alone in the store when a well-dressed youth, apparently about 19 years old, walked in and asked for a package of cigarettes. The storekeeper reached to the tobacco case behind the counter and when he faced the youth the latter had a revolver in his hand. He ordered Nilestein to put up his hands, but instead the storekeeper leaned across the counter and attempted to wrest the pistol from the intruder's hand.

The bandit fired one shot which struck Nilestein in the chest, and then fled. Persons in the vicinity who heard the shot ran to the shop and found the storekeeper on the floor. He was taken to the Carson Peck Memorial Hospital, where it was reported his condition was serious. Detectives of the Empire Boulevard were notified of the shooting, but they were unable to find any person who saw the bandit escape.

Fire Damages Community Centre.

Fire did considerable damage yesterday morning to the Annandale Park Community Centre, Otis and Treadville Avenues, Elmhurst. Members of the organization will meet sometime this week to make plans for the reconstruction of the one-story frame building.

STREET BOTH WET AND DRY.

Quebec Town, Twin to Derby Line, Vt., Will Get Liquor License.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Feb. 12 (AP).—Officials of the Vermont customs district, with headquarters here, are focusing their attention on the twin towns of Derby Line, Vt., and Rock Island, Quebec, where an unusual situation from the customs point of view has arisen.

The citizens of Rock Island recently voted wet, and announcement has just been made that the Quebec Liquor Commission is to grant at least one liquor license in the town. In that event the resident of Derby Line, in the course of an evening stroll down his own street, might cross the international border, purchase a supply of liquor and return home, all within the space of a few minutes.

The towns are virtually one, the international boundary passing a few feet south of a short bridge on the main street of Derby Line, which is one of the most important ports of entry from Canada in the eastern section of Vermont and the gateway from this State to the eastern townships of Quebec.

The United States Custom House in Derby Line is about 200 yards from the border. It is proposed to station extra officers at this point after the Rock Island licenses have been granted, in an effort to prevent Derby Liners from availing themselves of their new opportunities.

ALBINO DEER IS CAUGHT.

Rare Specimen Wanders Into Elk Corral in Palisades Park.

STONY POINT, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Major W. A. Welch, Chief Engineer and General Manager of the Palisades Interstate Park system, announced at the headquarters in Stony Point that a rare albino deer, a beautiful white specimen, was caught today.

White deer, according to Major Welch, are very scarce and this is the first one seen in the Palisades Park system. The white deer apparently got lost in the woods and wandered into an elk corral. When park patrolmen discovered it they closed the gate in the fence. The deer was transferred to the zoo in Bear Mountain Park.

MINISTER ASSAILS OUR NAVAL PROGRAM

Wants $2,500,000,000 Fund Spent Instead on Peace Projects, Such as Farm Relief.

ASKS CITIZENS TO PROTEST

The Rev. Mr. Cavert in Article Says 82 Cents of Taxpayer's Dollar Now Goes for War Purposes.

The proposed naval expenditures of the Federal Government are vigorously attacked by the Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert in the current issue of the bulletin of the Federal Council of Churches in an article in which he declares that 82 cents of the taxpayer's dollar is already spent for war purposes. This latter figure, he says, is taken from the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon.

"Over against these figures," he continues, "set the expenditure now proposed for the naval building program. It contemplates two and one-half billion dollars within the next twenty years. Has any one stopped to figure out what that vast sum could achieve if spent in flood prevention along the Mississippi? What if it were put into a constructive program of farm relief?

"A recent report of the United States Commissioner of Education estimates the total endowment of all our American universities, colleges and professional schools at less than $815,000,000. That is approximately the same amount that we now propose to spend on our navy in five years. As much for the navy in a single appropriation as we have saved for higher education during the entire history of the nation!

"No question before America today is quite so urgent as this. Is our nation to put its energies into a program of armaments, which perpetuates the atmosphere of war, or into a vigorous campaign to renounce war and build up the agencies of peace? If the Christian people of America have real convictions and not simply an amiable sentiment on the issue of war and peace, now is the time of times for their voice to be heard."

through the water, shouting encouragement to the woman.

"Mister, let me alone," she cried.

Aided by Companion.

Reaching the dancer, Moore attempted to help her, but she struggled violently, clutching him so fiercely that his arms were discolored and the skin broken. Moore swam with her to a spot where he could walk and carry her. Reagan, watching from the edge of the lake, waded out to assist Moore, who was rapidly weakening. The rescuers hailed a passing car in which the dancer was rushed to the hospital, Reagan following with Moore in his own machine.

A few hours afterward, Moore, almost recovered from his chill, was cheerful and smiling.

"Is she nice?" he said just before he entered the hospital. "I couldn't even tell you what she looks like."

Mlle. Roseray was featured with her male dancing partner in the team of Roseray and Capella in a Broadway show two years ago. Geiger said she recently returned to this country from France with her dancing partner, with whom she had a contract for four weeks at the night club, with the privileges of renewal for another four weeks, at $2,500 a week. Geiger said Lopez met Mlle. Roseray in Paris three years ago, when she and Capella were appearing at the Folies Bergere and the Moulin Rouge.

The woman gave her address at the hospital as the Hotel Warwick, Fifty-fourth Street and Sixth Avenue, saying she had moved there only on Saturday, but the hotel management denied there was any one of that name registered there.

HURT AS WILD AUTO PLOWS INTO STORE

Passer-By Is Driven Through Glass as Youth Loses Control of New Car on First Ride.

GIRL, 11, KILLED IN A CRASH

Pinned Under Seat in Smash-Up in Jamaica—Man Dies, Two Are Injured in Jersey Collision.

On Saturday afternoon Henry Yabloner, 21 years old, a manufacturer of bed springs of 3 East 109th Street, bought an automobile. Last evening he took some friends for the first ride. When the ride ended, the automobile was a complete wreck, the interior of a drug store had been demolished, a passerby had been seriously injured and Yabloner was a prisoner in the West 123d Street station, charged with felonious assault and operating an automobile without a license.

Yabloner with two women and their escorts had driven the car to Lenox Avenue and 116th Street when the traffic signal was turned against him. When the green light reappeared he was unable to start the car, and his friends, becoming alarmed, alighted. Yabloner thereupon obtained the help of a taxicab chauffeur, giving him a dollar to push the car to a garage.

The taxicab started to push Yabloner's machine, but Yabloner apparently had the car in gear and forgot to take his foot off the accelerator. The machine gathered speed and when 117th Street was reached it was traveling at a rate of about forty miles an hour. At 118th Street the car was completely out of control and in attempting to swing from Lenox Avenue, Yabloner ran it up on the sidewalk.

Drives Man Through Window.

John Fron, 33 years old, of 66 West 120th Street, who was passing, was knocked over and thrown back on the bumper while the car crashed through the plate glass window of Max Davidson's drug store and came to a full stop against the marble soda fountain.

The interior of the drug store was smashed to pieces, the hot water and gas connections at the soda fountain were broken and Fron, lying unconscious on the bumper of the wrecked automobile, was enveloped in a cloud of escaping steam.

Yabloner leaped from his seat and ran from the store, but he was pursued and captured by Harry Hurwitz, a taxicab chauffeur, and turned over to Patrolman Fornavio of the West 123d Street Station.

Fron was taken to the Harlem Hospital suffering from a fractured leg and internal injuries. The wreckage of the automobile was towed to a garage and Davidson spent several hours trying to salvage what was left of his stock in trade.

Maria Ferrara, 11 years old, who lives at Newtown Lane, East Hampton, L. I., was killed yesterday morning while riding in a machine, owned by her father, Gerado Ferrara, and operated by her brother, Ralph. As the car reached the junction of 163d Street and Shelton Avenue, Jamaica, it was struck by another, operated by Benjamin Bunker of 90-51 178th Street, Jamaica.

Ferrara's car overturned and the child was pinned under the front seat. Dr. Peres of Mary Immaculate Hospital said she had been killed instantly. Dr. Peres also treated two passengers of Bunker's machine. Sarah Bunker, 57, mother of the driver, was taken to Mary Immaculate Hospital, her skull possibly fractured. Sarah Thomedien of North Scymore Avenue, West Hempstead, L. I., was treated for abrasions and went home. Bunker was held.

Dies in Collision at Tuckerton.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 12.—One man was killed and two others injured, one seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding turned over after it had collided with another machine on the New York road near the Mullica River bridge at Tuckerton today.

The dead man is "Bill" Sciavone, believed by the State Police to have been the driver of the machine. The two injured men are James Ford, 21 years old, of 615 Mediterranean Avenue, this city, who is in the City Hospital and whose skull may be fractured, and Ernest Ford, 28, his brother, who was released from the hospital after being treated for lacerations of the scalp and ear.

Children Gave Cat to Police And Kittens Now Await Them

The little negro boy and girl who carried a lame Maltese cat into the West 135th Street Station a few days before Christmas, may each have the kitten they asked for if they will drop around to see Lieutenant John J. O'Connor or Lieutenant Thomas Cahill.

When they first came to the station, Lieutenant Cahill suggested that the children keep the cat, but they assured him they only wanted to see it cared for, and that while they wouldn't have refused "a nice kitten," they had practically no use for a full-grown cat. Lieutenant Cahill bandaged the cat's leg and named it Martha, whereupon it was informally adopted as a mascot.

Yesterday Lieutenant O'Connor heard Martha demanding admittance and opened the door to find her, accompanied by two small black kittens. The consensus at the station house is that it would be the sporting thing to give each of the negro children a kitten, and it will be done if they will call for them.

DEATH TOTAL IS 39 IN HOLLINGER MINE

30 More Bodies Are Recovered, Accounting for All in the Ontario Gold Workings.

SCREENS CLEARING SMOKE

Salvage Crews Hope Soon to Flood Out the Fire That Caused the Disaster.

TIMMINS, Ontario, Feb. 12 (AP).—Reports were received from the Hollinger gold mine tonight that the bodies of thirty more of the miners trapped underground when fire broke out Friday morning had been recovered, making the death toll of the disaster 39, with all accounted for. Twelve were brought out alive yesterday.

Mine officials determined by a check that fifty-one men were unable to leave the workings before smoke and gas cut off escape.

Working with apparatus brought on special trains from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Toronto, rescue workers today succeeded in recovering the rest of the bodies. Operations were handicapped by acrid fumes from the shafts.

Rescue workers have blocked mine passages with heavy canvas screens, to clear the smoke from each section in turn and drive it back upon the fire, which is in a passage connecting the fifth and sixth levels. When the proper point has been reached of the fifth level, it is believed the fire can be put out, by flooding it.

One of those rescued, M. Petchick, told from his hospital cot how he tried to warn some of his fellow-workers when he smelled the smoke and how a small party was driven from one shaft to another by deadly gases as they sought to reach exits.

Finally, he said, seven of them improvised gas masks by soaking their shirts in water, broke a compressed air line and turned the pipe so it partially blew the smoke and gas from them while they awaited the rescuing party.

Our Mine Rescue Car at Scene.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—After a record-breaking run of about twenty-one hours, the mine rescue car which was sent yesterday from Pennsylvania in an effort to save the lives of the men trapped in the Hollinger gold mine in Northern Ontario arrived at the scene this morning.

Scott Turner, Director of the United States Bureau of Mines, who responded to the emergency call of the Canadian authorities in dispatching the car, was advised that it arrived at Timmons, Ontario, at 6:30 o'clock, and that, using the safety equipment which the car brought, rescue parties entered the mine today.

FRENCH LINE DENIES REPORT

Tillier Says Philadelphia Service Is Not Contemplated.

The French Line has announced that it had no plans for the establishment of a service from Philadelphia to French ports and that the possibility of such a service had never been considered. Jean Tillier, assistant general manager of the line, made this statement when informed that Rene Sagot, director of passenger service in the Paris office and now conducting a survey of traffic conditions in this country, was quoted in Philadelphia as having said that a Philadelphia service was in prospect.

"We have a very great volume from Philadelphia," said Mr. Tillier, "and we are interested, naturally, in a port of Philadelphia's ranking or an inland city of such size. But we never have thought of a service there. I believe that Mr. Sagot commented favorably on port conditions in Philadelphia and was misunderstood by someone who was overenthusiastic."

books and that they had been illegally taken in response to a subpoena which had been served on Joseph Brady, former editor of The Mount Vernon Star.

Joseph Brady, who is not related to the family which runs the newspapers, was not in their employ last Thursday and had no right to surrender the books, according to Terrence Brady. Joseph Brady is said to have taken the position that he was Vice President, as well as former editor of The Mount Vernon Star, and that as Vice President he was compelled to honor the subpoena and produce the books.

Francis Brady, a brother of Terence and a partner in the newspaper enterprises, said last night that he had heard that the purpose of the investigation was to discover whether The Mount Vernon Star was incorporated as required by law. He said there had been a delay in filing the incorporation papers, but that they had been sent to Albany the day after the books were taken.

Rowland Undecided on Trip.

District Attorney Rowland declined last night to discuss the proposed trip abroad to bring back the prisoner. He said that it was not certain that he would make the trip and that it depended on word he expected to receive from the State Department.

Wenzel, the prisoner held in England, owned the White Cross Dairy Company of Yonkers. In 1925 his wife sued him for separation, and he brought a counter suit. Before either suit could be tried Wenzel went to England. His wife charged that he took with him bonds to the value of $5,800 belonging to her. Wenzel was arrested in London ten days ago on an American warrant charging larceny. He asserted that he was the victim of a frame-up.

Mr. Rowland's other trip was made to Italy to obtain a witness against Antonio Paretti, who was charged with murder. The District Attorney brought back the witness, Alfonzo Streva. Paretti was convicted and executed.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 12.—The Ameer and Queen of Afghanistan were obliged greatly to curtail their visit to Belgium on account of ill health, it has been learned tonight. They left for Switzerland Friday after cancelling a trip to Liege and a return call at Paris and went directly to Caux.

The Queen had been ailing for several days but Ameer Amanullah accidentally cut himself on the throat while shaving. This wound was aggravated during a visit to Antwerp in cold weather and is said to have been the cause of the formation of a carbuncle which has been extremely painful.

The King and Queen of the Belgians expressed great regret at the departure of the Afghan rulers and that illness should have come upon them in Belgium. At the station when leaving Amanullah was wearing a bandage on his throat. The two queens embraced at parting.

'FENCE' LOOT IN YEAR PUT AT $500,000,000

THIEVES HIGHLY ORGANIZED

Ex-Secretary of War Says Gangs Would Dissolve Overnight if 'Fence' Were Eliminated.

"Fences" organized along the same lines as big business annually dispose of loot valued at $500,000,000, according to Newton D. Baker, Chairman of the National Crime Commission. Mr. Baker, who was formerly Secretary of War, made public this estimate of annual losses from thefts in a statement announcing the introduction in Congress of a bill designed to stop the activities of receivers of stolen goods.

The bill, known as the "National Stolen Property law," was prepared by a special committee of the National Crime Commission, appointed to study and recommend legislation for the suppression of the "fence." Maxwell S. Mattuck, former Assistant United States Attorney, Southern District of New York, counsel for the National Association of Credit Men, is Chairman of the special committee.

The sponsor of the bill is Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who had prepared a similar measure, but consented to withdraw his own bill and has introduced the Crime Commission's measure, according to Mr. Baker.

In his announcement Mr. Baker points out that the Crime Commission has consistently advocated State rather than national legislation for the suppression and reduction of crime. The commission, however, recognized that receivers of stolen goods could be reached only by national legislation, due to the peculiarity of the offense, which is seldom confined to one State; the interstate activities of thieves, receivers of stolen goods and their allies make it almost impossible to build up a complete case against the criminal.

Railroad Men Confer on "Fences."

The increasing activities of "fences" was recently considered at a conference of representatives of important railroads of the country, prosecuting attorneys and national business organizations. The conference was called by the Crime Commission, and it resulted in the appointment of the special committee to study and report on legislation against receivers of stolen property. Concerning the work of that committee Mr. Baker's announcement says:

"This committee, with the advice of men who have given much previous study to the question, has made an exhaustive survey of the situation, and from the statements of public prosecutors, chiefs of police and business firms throughout the country is convinced that the claim that losses from this source amount to more than $500,000,000 yearly is more than justified.

Solitary Burglar Vanishing.

"It also seems proved that the yeggman and solitary burglar of the past is rapidly disappearing from the criminal courts, and that his place is being taken by young, fairly well educated and enterprising lads of between 17 and 25 years of age. It seems equally proved that this type of thief shows a constantly increasing tendency to form what might be described as a 'business association' with a considerable number of his fellow-criminals and to engage, not in individual robberies of small amounts but in thefts of merchandise on a large scale."

Mr. Baker in his report expresses the belief that commercially organized thieves would dissolve their bands overnight if the "fences," therefore their market or outlet, were eliminated. He points out that the "fence" must necessarily have a permanent place of business, such as a warehouse, and must depend upon lax laws for his immunity. He asserts that because goods stolen in large quantities are shipped to points throughout the country the thieves and confederates engage in interstate commerce.

Way Open for Federal Action.

"This opens an opportunity to reach him through the power of the national Government to regulate interstate commerce," says Mr. Baker's report.

United States Attorney Tuttle, who drafted the proposed measure for the Crime Commission, explains that it would punish both the sending and receiving of stolen goods through interstate commerce.

Receivers or transmitters of stolen goods would be fined not more than $5,000 upon conviction or sentenced to not more than two years in prison or both.

Mr. LaGuardia's comment on the pending bill, also made public by the Crime Commission, explains that the bill follows the lines of the Federal Stolen Automobile law, and includes the recommendations of the National Crime Commission which put the burden of inquiry upon the buyer of stolen goods. The measure will soon be introduced in the Senate.

WIFE DIES IN EFFORT TO SAVE MATE IN FIRE

Broke From Chicago Friends and Dragged Him to Door—Both Perish There.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—In a brave effort to save her husband trapped in a burning room, Sarah Dorf, a bride of eleven months and soon to become a mother, perished with Joseph Dorf here early today.

When the flames had been subdued firemen entered the room and found Dorf and his wife near the door, the woman with her arms about her husband. She had succeeded in dragging him from the bed to within a few inches of safety when smoke and gas fumes overcame her.

The Dorfs had attended a Valentine party at the home of a friend, and because of the lateness of the hour and the long distance to their own home, accepted an invitation to remain overnight.

Pleading weariness, Dorf retired at once. A half hour later his wife went to the room and when she opened the door, flames burst forth. The fire was so intense that men of the household and firemen were unable to enter the room. But Mrs. Dorf, breaking from restraint, dashed into the blazing room. It is supposed that Dorf fell asleep with a lighted cigarette in his hand.

The Dorfs had been saving and building a bungalow in which to welcome the expected baby.

'ANASTASIA' STILL HIDING.

Friends Deny She Is at Richard Home—Not at Leeds Estate.

The whereabouts of Mme. Anastasia Tchaikovsky, who says she is the youngest and only surviving daughter of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia, remained a mystery yesterday. She was not, her friends insisted, at the home of Mrs. Auguste Richard in Lawrence, L. I., nor was she to be found at the home of Mrs. William B. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia, at Oyster Bay.

One of those anonymous "tips" which reach newspaper offices through the devious reaches of the pay-booth telephone was to the effect that the alleged only survivor of the massacre at Ekaterinberg, Siberia, in 1918, was boarding with a family at 231 East Sixty-seventh Street. That tip turned out to be a misleading bit of misinformation.

At the Richard home a person who said she was the governess, but who wouldn't give her name, said that Mrs. Richard might be expected back from Boston today. She said she couldn't say when a promised statement on Mme. Tchaikovsky's behalf would be issued. Mme. Tchaikovsky stayed at the Richard home one night last week, the first after she arrived in America.

Mrs. Leeds, with whom the puzzling visitor is expected to stay, is on a cruise to the West Indies.

Ex-Officer Offers His Help.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 12.—Captain Michael Zenovyeviteh Gera Schnevsky, a Detroit artist who says he was a member of the Russian Imperial Guard, said today that he had known the Grand Duchess Anastasia and that if Mme. Tchaikovsky, who is now in New York, was really the princess he could identify her.

"Even after thirteen years," he said, "I would be sure to recognize the sweet young girl who was so kind to me in the hospital adjoining Tsarskoe Selo palace. And even if it should happen that I should fail to know Anastasia she would recognize me. I lay in the hospital and the little Anastasia spent many hours entertaining and comforting the sick and wounded soldiers.

"We could recall a thousand episodes and retell countless little jokes and stories. Anastasia was only about 14 years old when I last knew her. Her older sisters, Olga and Tatinia, were nursing in the war hospital and Marie and Anastasia, the younger girls, were allowed to visit the hospital daily as hostesses, write letters for the soldiers and serve them in other ways. I saw these younger girls daily for thirteen months."

Special to The New York Times.

INTERLAKEN, N. J., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Lillian M. Koerner, President of the Board of Education, which initiated the protest over the publication of a picture showing Colonel Lindbergh seated at a table in Panama with a girl opposite him and a champagne bottle between them, said today that the board would hold a special meeting to determine whether any further steps should be taken.

Members of the board, Mrs. Koerner said, were aroused at an editorial in The Asbury Park Evening Press attacking the school board's protest. The board will also confer with William M. Smith, County School Superintendent, who approved the resolution condemning the publication of the picture as a reflection upon Colonel Lindbergh.

CITY TO NEGOTIATE FOR ELEVATED ROAD

sooner or later. It is believed that the Interborough will not continue indefinitely to pay a 5 per cent. return on the Manhattan securities when the system does not earn it.

Sees Recapture as Remedy.

In his statement last night Mr. Untermyer stressed recapture as the city's most logical remedy. If the subways had been owned by a private company instead of the city, he said, the Interborough would have been ousted long ago.

"It would be far-fetched to assert as a matter of law that the mere application to the Transit Commission for an increased fare coupled with the posting of notices that the fare would be increased in itself constituted a breach of contract," said Mr. Untermyer. "If, however, the Transit Commission should deny that it had jurisdiction on the ground that the rights of the parties are regulated by the contract and the company should carry out its threat to put an increased fare into effect, I have no doubt that such action would constitute a violation entitling the city to take possession, but I anticipate no such foolhardy action on the part of the company, notwithstanding its many maladroit moves."

Mr. Untermyer said he regarded the problem as a very simple one. No private owners of the subway would ever have made the "absurdly disastrous" bargain which the city made with the Interborough, he said. Under the terms of the city's contract the landlord, the city, went for fifteen years without rent or a return on the hundreds of millions of dollars invested by it, he pointed out.

Lease Violated, He Says.

"Worse yet," he continued, "the tenant is permitting the property to deteriorate, is giving inadequate and disgraceful service and is violating almost every line of his lease. Even when offered the loan of the money to buy more cars and lengthen platforms so as to give passengers at least standing room, the Interborough spurns the offer with scorn, because it can earn more money by jamming passengers in the cars than by furnishing them standing room.

"The contract has for years been flagrantly violated in letter and spirit in almost every line, and yet such have been the skill and thoroughness of the company propaganda, conducted for years with money literally picked from the city's pockets, that, strangely enough, there is today a considerable body of well-meaning people defending or excusing the Interborough who if they knew the facts would be more disposed to tar and feather them. I have insisted from the beginning that we shall never get decent service until the properties are taken out of their hands.

"So accustomed have the Interborough people become to rifling the city treasury to carry on their dishonest propaganda that they are actually at this moment dipping into the city's funds in the custody of the company to pay their counsel, experts and other expenses for the present application for a 7-cent fare. Hard as it is to believe, it is true.

Calls Attention to Profits.

"People do not understand and apparently cannot be made to realize that the subways are making for the companies over $12,000,000 a year net profits over the interest at 8¾ per cent. on their entire investment.

"If the Interborough were allowed to charge 7 cents it would mean an additional revenue of $26,000,000 per year. That would be 125 per cent. per year of the total cost of the Interborough stock to the stockholders, who have already received $65,000,000 in dividends, or over 300 per cent. on their investment.

"So long as the city permits the Interborough to continue trifling with it and evading its obligations to give decent service the people will deserve the disgraceful service they are getting.

"Why will they not realize that an increased fare does not mean improved service? According to the Interborough, it cannot crowd any more cars into the subways, no matter what the fare. That, of course, is not true, but what do they offer in return for a higher fare if their story is true?

"Now that we have a Mayor with brains, energy and enthusiasm, in dead earnest to give relief, and who is on the right track if he gets the kind of support that he should have and that the public can give him, we shall get back these properties and furnish the public the sort of service to which it is entitled."

The Transit Commisson's action on the Interborough's application for permission to put the 7 cent fare into effect immediately is not expected before Wednesday when the commission has its regular meeting. Papers for injunction applications to restrain the company from violating the five-cent fare provisions of the contract are practically complete, but are still to be submitted to Mayor Walker for his approval.

Mayor Walker slipped out of town for a rest over the week-end and is not expected back until tomorrow. It is expected that some minor changes will still be necessary after he has gone over the papers with Mr. Untermyer and the other attorneys, and the Transit Commission is not expected to act until all is in readiness for the court action which has been planned.

Port Authority Wants Board Studying Problem to Go On.

A comprehensive plan for suburban transportation development may be produced during the year if the Suburban Transit Engineering Board continues to function, according to a recommendation made public yesterday by the Port of New York Authority, at whose suggestion the board was created. At the same time it was announced that State Senator Seabury C. Mastick and Assemblyman Joseph A. Gavagan, introducers of the bill now before the Legislature giving authority to the Port Authority to investigate the problem, will address a luncheon at the Waldorf on Feb. 24, arranged by the Suburban Transit Relief Committee.

The Port Authority, in its announcement, also discussed the need of Brooklyn-New Jersey ferry service, at present held up the failure of the city to act on an application for a franchise for use of a Brooklyn ferry slip.

1862 SECRETS BARED IN STANTON LETTER

"Defense" Written to Friend Here by War Secretary Said McClellan Was Backed.

RIFT WITH LINCOLN DENIED

Replying to "Calumnies," He Declares He Only Sought to Help His Country.

Light has been thrown on a page of Civil War history by a private and confidential letter of Edwin M. Stanton, Lincoln's Secretary of War, which has just been obtained by Thomas F. Madigan, dealer in autographs, of 48 West Forty-ninth Street.

The letter, written on May 18, 1862, to an intimate friend in New York, the Rev. Herman Dyer, of the Bible House, was obtained by Mr. Madigan from a granddaughter of the recipient and is believed to be hitherto unpublished and unconsulted by historians.

Stanton himself called the letter, which is a defense of the conduct of the War Department under his administration, "a long explanation which has been made to no one else."

"It is due to you," Stanton continued, "who were my friend when I was a poor boy at school and had no claim on your confidence or kindness. It cannot be made public for obvious reasons."

The letter, in Stanton's autograph in folio sheets, is preserved in the original envelope.

Secretary Stanton evidently wrote in reply to an inquiry from Mr. Dyer in regard to current attacks on Mr. Stanton's attitude toward General McClellan, for the Secretary opened his letter as f llows:

"I have been very well aware of the calumnies widely circulated against me in New York, and elsewhere, respecting my relations to General McClellan, but am compelled from public considerations to withhold the proofs that would stamp the falsehood of the accusations and the base motives of the accusers."

In detail Secretary Stanton then defended himself against four particular charges, and in summing up at the end, he said:

"The official records will at a proper time fully prove: first, that I have employed the whole power of the Government unsparingly to support General McClellan's operations in preference to every other General.

"Second, that I have not interfered with or thwarted them in any particular.

"Third—That the force retained from his expedition was not needed, and could not have been employed by him—that he was retained by express order of the President upon military investigation and upon the best military advice in the country—that its retention was designed to save the Capitol from the danger to which it was exposed by a disregard to the President's positive order of the 6th of March.

"Fourth—That between the President and myself there has never been any, the slightest shadow of difference upon any point save the detachment of Franklin's force and that was a point of no significance, but in which I was sustained by Generals Hitchcock, Meigs, Thomas and Ripley, while the President yielded only to an anxious desire to avoid complaint, declaring at the same time his belief that the force was not needed by General McClellan."

In no part of the letter did Secretary Stanton grow more vehement than in the passage defending himself against the intimation of political ambition, in which he said:

"Now one word as to political matters. What motive can I have to thwart General McClellan? I am not now, never have been and never will be a candidate for any office. I hold my present post at the request of a President who knew me personally, but to whom I had not spoken from the 4th of March, 1861, until the day he handed me my commission.

"I was never taken for a fool, but there would be no greater madness than for a man to encounter what I do for anything else than motives that overleap time and look forward to eternity. I believe that God Almighty founded this Government, and for my acts in the effort to maintain it I expect to stand before Him in judgment."

BOY SCOUTS PAY TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN.

A Lincoln's Day memorial service was held in the Colonnade of the Hall of Fame yesterday afternoon by the Boy Scouts of Troop 272 and the New York University Heights Y. M. C. A. Following a procession of scouts to the colonnade, a wreath was placed at the base of Lincoln's bust by Arthur Jacobson.

Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown, representing the Faculty of New York University, accepted the wreath and in a short address characterized Lincoln as "the supreme American." Lincoln, he said, was a man of "fun, fidelity and tragedy—a prophet of faith and love."

Other speakers at the service were Mrs. William Cumming Story, Honorary President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Dr. John Edmond Woodman, Professor of Geology of New York University; Major Arthur W. Procter, general secretary of the Boy Scout Foundation, and Major A. P. Simmonds.

Messages to the Scouts were read from Governor Smith and General Hanson E. Ely, commander of the Second Corps Area, and a copy of a Lincoln Day proclamation issued nine years ago by President Coolidge when he was the Governor of Massachusetts was read.

Judge Samuel D. Levy of the Children's Court spoke on the life of Lincoln at Temple Shearith Israel yesterday morning. He stressed the Civil War President's "peculiar philosophy of life" and said that it was Lincoln's sense of humor that enabled him to carry his war burdens.

Memorial exercises will be held in Brooklyn today at the Lincoln Statue in Prospect Park. Members of the Union League Club and of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will make their annual pilgrimage to the statue. Delegates from both organizations will assemble at the club rooms, 112 Kenmore Place, at 2:30 P. M. and march to the park, headed by the Catholic Boy Scout Band. Former Sheriff Peter S. Seery, a member of both organizations, will be principal speaker, and Emory F. Dykeman will deliver a eulogy. Frederick B. Merkle of the Union League Club and J. La Tourette of the Comrade Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will act as marshals. Others who will assist in the ceremonies are Port Appraiser F. J. Kracke, David L. Joseph, Thomas Feely and Edward B. White.

Describes Lincoln's Murder.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 12.—An eyewitness description of President Lincoln's assassination is contained in a letter published in the current issue of The Princeton University Alumni Weekly. The letter was written by John Suydam Knox of the Princeton class of '60 to his father a few days after Lincoln was shot in 1865. Knox declared he was one of the two men seen to pursue John Wilkes Booth across the stage after the murder.

TRIPLE CELEBRATION HELD BY POLISH GROUP

Alliance Observes Anniversary and Birthday of Lincoln and Kosciuszko.

The anniversaries of Lincoln's and Kosciuszko's birthdays and the silver jubilee of the Polish National Alliance of Brooklyn was celebrated by the society yesterday with a parade in the morning, a meeting in the afternoon and a dinner dance at night. The dinner at the Waldorf last night was attended by 500 members.

Major Gen. William N. Haskell, Commander of the New York National Guard, who represented Governor Smith, spoke on the debt America owes Poland and especially the part played in the struggle for independence by Thaddeus Kosciuszko, who was colonel of engineering and military fortifications under Washington.

"Every American officer who goes from West Point to serve his country carries with him a love of the name of Kosciuszko," he said.

Mayor Walker was represented by Arthur J. W. Hilly, Acting Corporation Counsel, who spoke on the important contribution Polish immigrants have made to America.

Yesterday morning 5,000 members gathered at Falcon's Hall, 188 Grand Street, Brooklyn, and marched with brass band accompaniment to the Church of Our Lady of Consolation, Metropolitan and Bedford Avenues, where a high mass was celebrated. After the services a body of delegates from various parts of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut returned to Falcon's Hall to listen to addresses and to witness the presentation of decorations to the eight surviving organizers of the society twenty-five years ago.

G. A. R. LAYS WREATH AT LINCOLN STATUE

Mrs. Prisk Leads Tribute in Union Square in Which Loiterers Join.

ALL PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE

Woman Speaker Tells of Effort to Have Feb. 12 Declared a National Holiday.

Laying a wreath at the feet of the Lincoln statue in Union Square, Mrs. Laura Prisk paid a tribute to the Emancipator in the name of the Lincoln Circle Ladies and the Reno Camp of the Grand Army of the Republic yesterday afternoon.

"Year after year we have helped our nation revere Lincoln," she said. "He alone broadcasts to the whole world the spirit of humanity. We thank God for the inspired direction of Lincoln in the lives of men. Let us with all we have and all we are see to it that the American flag is never desecrated—let us be good Americans and thus will we answer the Great Emancipator."

William B. Hallenbeck, Past Commander of the Reno Camp 102 of the Sons of Union Veterans, read a tribute as the wreath was put in place. A flag given to Mrs. Prisk by the French Consul was held by Mrs. Nellie Dressel, Senior Vice President of the circle, while heads were bared and hands raised in salutes and pledges of allegiance.

Assisting Mrs. Prisk in the ceremony were Mrs. Dressel, Mr. Hallenbeck, Mrs. M. Goehringer, President of the circle; Mrs. Josephine Quirk, Patriotic Instructor; Mrs. Henrietta Winter, Secretary; Otto Friebley, Commander of the Reno Camp 44 of the G. A. R., and James O'Connor, Civil War veteran and Senior Vice Commander of Peter Cooper Post 313.

Mrs. Prisk, who was responsible for the nationalization of Flag Day, spoke of the bill she is attempting to have passed in Congress to make Feb. 12 a legal holiday and pleaded for cleaner monuments of those America reveres.

The ceremony was concluded by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Many loiterers from the park joined in the tribute.

Ye Vacillating Valentines
—here's a hunch worth the having

CUPID'S canons must be enforced! Flowers and frilly paper tokens of undying love are still the Valentine prerogatives of palpitating damosels.

But the man who has already married his Valentine must practise greater deeds to prove his heart has never waned or wavered. To these little tokens of sentiment he can and should add others. Here Ovington's can help.

For here at Ovington's can he find many a lovely gift—a hand mirror perhaps or a picture frame—a casket for jewels or cigarettes or a tiny boudoir clock.

And if his choice falls upon lamps, mirrors or furniture he has a double-decked chance to distinguish himself. For then he combines the sentimental with the practical advantages of a 10% to 33⅓% discount.

The sum-total of pipe-joy

IF YOU could take an adding-machine and set down all the qualities you demand in a pipe-tobacco, such as fragrance, coolness, mildness, satisfaction, when you pulled the lever, the total would read: "Prince Albert." You can prove it with a pipe and a tin of P. A.

Throw back the hinged lid and revel in that aroma of the world's most popular pipe-tobacco. Put a load into the bowl of your pipe and light up. Draw that cool, refreshing smoke deep down and exhale slowly. That's Prince Albert! That's living! You'll go to it from breakfast to bedtime.

Prince Albert leads all other brands in sales, because it leads in satisfaction. The word "satisfaction" has worn a little thin from much use, but a pipe and P. A. give it an entirely new meaning. You'll say so on your very first pipe-load, and you'll be a Prince Albert teer after that!

ESMOND DENOUNCES SARATOGA FUND CUT

Chides His Own Party for "Contemptuous Treatment of Patriotic Project."

SMITH MESSAGE DUE SOON

Governor Will Ask Legislature to Restore $100,000 to Budget for Battlefield.

REPUBLICANS UNYIELDING

Fiscal Chiefs Propose to Stand by New Bill Lumping Long Island Park Appropriations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Governor Smith in the near future will send the Legislature a special message requesting that the $100,000 which the Republican fiscal leaders chopped out of the $190,000 in bond issue money from the executive budget for the rehabilitation of the Saratoga battlefield be restored.

The Governor already has sent to the Legislature special messages demanding that the $626,000 cut in the Long Island State Park appropriations and the $550,000 to provide for a State park adjoining the Capitol be replaced in the budget.

Thus far the Republican fiscal leaders have shown little inclination to follow the Governor's suggestions regarding the Long Island park appropriations or the Capitol Hill park project. As a result the Governor is accusing them of deliberately trying to block or curtail State park improvements until he has left the Governor's office next year in the hope that they could be completed by a Republican Governor.

Bitter Controversy Now On.

Some readjustments were made with regard to the Long Island park appropriations by the fiscal leaders, but they did not meet with the Governor's approval. The Republican chiefs drafted a new bill, in which they lumped the various appropriations for the Southern Parkway, the Jones Beach park and causeway and the Conduit Boulevard.

Under this bill the Republicans contended that the Long Island Park Commission would have a freer hand in the expenditure of money, and they insisted that the funds would be sufficient to continue the work planned for the coming year by the Commission.

Though these contentions were vigorously disputed by the Governor, the Republican leaders have indicated that this is as far as they intend to go in the dispute over the Long Island funds and that they are not thinking of restoring the money which they chopped from the budget.

The result is that Governor Smith and the Republican fiscal leaders are now engaged in one of the most bitter legislative battles that the Capitol has witnessed in many years.

The action of Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson, Republican Chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, in comparing the Executive Chamber to a "noise foundry" aroused the ire of the Governor. He promptly replied that if he had not made a good deal of noise at the Capitol in the past few years the State would not have had any improvements.

Smith to Fight for Battlefield.

Governor Smith is vitally interested in the restoration of the Saratoga battlefield and he is planning to do everything within his power to induce the Republican fiscal leaders to restore the $100,000 which they chopped from the money he requested for that purpose.

The $190,000 was to be used for the purchase of 2,000 acres of Saratoga battlefield land. Options have been obtained on the land by Mayor George O. Slingerland of Mechanicville and the $190,000 to take up these options was requested by the Battlefields Advisory Board.

Assemblyman Burton D. Esmond, Republican, of Saratoga, who has been leading the fight in the Legislature for several years for the restoration of the famous battlefield, in a statement today charged that the fiscal leaders cut the $100,000 out of the budget without giving to the Battlefield Advisory Board an opportunity to protest.

Esmond Charges Bad Faith.

"Without opportunity to be heard or notice to the Battlefields Board, the representative in the Legislature from the Saratoga district or the patriotic societies and the people who have been vitally interested in this matter, $100,000 was cut from the item by the finance leaders of the Legislature and concealed by them from those interested until the bill had been introduced," Assemblyman Esmond charged in his statement.

"A great wave of protest has arisen through the State. The Rotary clubs, which always have taken such a deep interest in this matter; the D. A. R., the League of Women Voters, Federated Women's Clubs, Parent-Teachers' Association, educators and public-spirited citizens are all aroused over this slipping back of New York into the old state of neglect and disregard, and almost contempt, for those patriots to whom we owe all that we now have in liberty, prosperity, wealth and happiness.

"The political leaders throughout the territory adjacent to the battlefield and throughout the State are deeply concerned over the effect of this contemptuous treatment of so deserving and patriotic a project. The press of the State is expressing the voice of the people with increasing insistence and eloquence.

"It has been the course of great republics to decline and disintegrate when they forget their history and the heroes that made them great. In the midst of our present great prosperity and progress are we entering upon the road to decline? Will the people permit this great blunder to go unremedied?"

To Fix Adjournment Date.

The legislative wheels will begin to hum this week so that final adjournment can be brought about next month. As soon as the annual appropriation bill is passed, which may be the middle of this week, a resolution will be introduced in the Assembly setting March 16 as the date for the fall of the final gavel.

Tuesday will be a busy day at the Capitol. Hearings are scheduled for that day on bills aimed at prohibition, a dozen measures sponsored by the Baumes Crime Commission, and the Mastick-Shonk bill, which would permit women to serve on juries.

The measures aimed at prohibition are sponsored by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York. One provides for a State tax of $25,000,000 to enforce prohibition; another would ask Congress to call a national constitutional convention to repeal or modify the prohibition amendment, while a third would have the State Legislature rescind its action in ratifying the Eighteenth Amendment.

LAGUARDIA PRODS BORAH ON LIQUOR

He Urges Extending Inquiry to Presidential Aspirants to Include "Real Enforcement."

PUTS COST AT $200,000,000

Wants Candidates Asked If They Would Spend That Much—Calls Dry Law Failure in Idaho.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Representative LaGuardia of New York, in a letter to Senator Borah today, challenged him to so modify his wet-dry questionnaire to Presidential aspirants so as to ask them whether they would be willing to recommend spending $200,000,000 a year "as a starter for real prohibition."

"Your first inquiry," he writes, "asks for a 'vigorous and faithful' enforcement of the prohibition law. * * * Prohibition has never been vigorously or faithfully enforced. With 2,042 agents to cover the entire country, it is simply farcial to talk about the law being enforced.

"Why not incorporate in your questionnaire, and elicit from the various candidates, an expression of their willingness to recommend the expenditure of $200,000,000 a year as a starter for prohibition enforcement? Considering the area and population of the country, prohibition cannot be enforced with less than 100,000 Federal agents as a starter. As you ascertain whether a candidate is personally willing to enforce prohibition, might it not be well to ascertain by real enforcement and the total cutting off of liquor supply whether or not the people of the country really want it?

"Your third inquiry refers to the New York referendum, which suggests a program of legislation which will enable every State to decide for itself the alcoholic content of beverages.

Enforcement in the States.

"When an answer is received in the negative to this query might it not be also well to obtain a statement whether the candidate is willing to permit the Federal Government to enfore the prohibition law equally in all States? In other words, to be against leaving to the States to declare the alcoholic content of beverages, but to be willing to leave to the States the enforcement of the law smacks of insincerity and chicanery. Under the present system, where, with the meager number of prohibition officials, enforcement, especially in so-called dry States, is left entirely to the States, we have less than one-half of one per cent. enforcement. That is why prohibition is so popular in many of the dry States.

"Rather than take the State of New York as a terrible example, would it not be well if conditions could be so created in your State [Idaho] as to enable you to point to it as a model and good example?

"Prohibition, like charity, should commence at home. You have forty-three counties in your State, and I am reliably informed by some of the boys who served in the army with me during the World War that liquor can be obtained in every county of the State. It was not so very long ago that competition in the sale of liquor in your State was so keen that it resulted in a price war, bringing the cost of liquor from $14 a gallon down to $8. * * *

"No Wonder So Many Vote Dry!"

"Idaho, Montana and Utah compose one prohibition district. The three States have a total population of 1,770,000 and a total area of 315,575 square miles, and the United States Government is enforcing prohibition in 315,575 square miles with just about fifty agents. This allows an average of one man to cover over 60,000 square miles.

"No wonder so many people vote dry in that section of the country! I am sure that your standing in the nation and Congress as one of the foremost leaders of prohibition is such that you could easily prevail on the Treasury Department to increase this personnel to 1,660 good agents for Idaho alone and make that State as dry as you would desire to see the entire country. Personally I doubt that 1,660 men could do it, but it would give a basis to figure the actual number of men required to enforce prohibition according to your formula in the rest of the States. * * *

"You mention my State in your questionnaire, and I take it that it is only fair for me to mention your State. However, I stand ready to show you that exactly the same conditions exist in any other State which you may mention. If the people of this country do not want absolute enforcement, if the champions of prohibition are not willing to assume the burden of enforcing it as you desire, vigorously and faithfully, then the thing to do is what some of us are advocating, repeal the amendment and legislate accordingly."

Senator Borah planned to send his questionnaire to every Presidential candidate. So far he has sent it to Secretary Hoover and Senators Curtis and Willis. The Senators have answered. Mr. Hoover is expected to reply this week.

Morristown Mayor's Home Burns.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Feb. 12.—The home of Mayor Clyde Potts of Morristown was damaged by fire of undetermined origin tonight. The damage, estimated at $2,000, was confined to the servants' quarters on the third floor and a part of the roof. The Mayor and his family were at home when neighbors told them the roof was ablaze. Mayor Potts is a consulting engineer with offices in New York City.

SEEKS WAY TO CURB UNDERWORLD GANGS

Private Detective Federation Asks Safeguards in Labor Disputes to Exclude Them.

SEES AID TO BAUMES LAWS

Favors Tests Required for Public Police Officers Before Giving Licenses for Quasi-Public Work.

Hiring of guerillas and strong-arm guards by both sides in strikes and labor disputes constitutes a revenue to underworld characters without which a large section of the underworld, particularly gang organizations, would collapse, according to a report made public yesterday by the Federation of Licensed Detectives of New York State.

The practice of employing such characters could be abolished, it was said, by the adoption of a policy of hiring only uniformed guards from licensed agencies, and that both employers and labor would be glad to agree to such a change, as existing methods had proved costly to both sides. The change is recommended as a measure which would fit in with the Baumes laws and go a long way toward aiding in the reduction of crime.

On the other hand, the federation suggests that the qualifications of private detectives be subjected to far more rigid supervision than at present. It is argued that all public police officers should be subjected to rigid mental and physical tests and proper training and substantially the same requirements for private detectives before licensing is recommended by the federation.

The present laws, it is asserted, are inadequate and result in the appointment of incompetent and irresponsible persons, who are permitted to carry weapons and have other powers which they often abuse, since adequate supervision is lacking.

"As private detectives are the only persons other than public officers permitted by law to do work of a quasi-police nature," the report continues, "we recommend the adoption of the California law, that all uniformed guards and patrols be placed under police jurisdiction, and suggest that these guards be used to assist the public police and State constabulary when requested in emergencies."

Val O'Toole of the Val O'Toole Detective Agency was elected President of the federation at its meeting last week. Tobias A. Keppler is counsel and executive director.

ILL WOMAN SEEKS HUSBAND

Mrs. Anna Brennan Asks Police Aid in Hunt for Man Gone Five Years.

A destitute woman seriously ill of a lung disease in the Jewish Memorial Hospital in Dyckman Street yesterday asked the police to search for her husband, whom she has not seen for nearly five years. She said she heard from him last when he was in Hartford, Conn.

The woman, Mrs. Anna Brennan, 35 years old, was taken to the hospital on Saturday from a bare cellar room in the apartment house at 521 Isham Street, Inwood. A daughter, Maxine, 9 years old, was taken to the Children's Society home at Fifth Avenue and 105th Street.

For several weeks Mrs. Brennan and her daughter have been assisted by residents of the apartment house. On Saturday Mrs. Brennan became so ill that neighbors advised her to go to the hospital. Reluctantly the mother and daughter parted.

BUSINESS TRICKERY HIT BY ROCKEFELLER

OIL BOND HUNT GOES ON

Senate Committee Seeks to Trail $2,000,000, the Remainder of Continental Fund.

Fresh from his testimony before the Senate investigating committee in Washington on Saturday, John D. Rockefeller Jr. spoke over the radio last night in language applicable to what he himself had called a "national scandal" in the handling of the Government's oil reserves. To the Senate's investigators Mr. Rockefeller had described his efforts to get Colonel Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to tell what he knew about the Continental Trading Company and its affairs; and he had expressed himself as "bitterly disappointed" because Colonel Stewart had declined to answer some of the Senate's questions.

Nowhere in his radio talk did Mr. Rockefeller mention the oil inquiry specifically, nor did he name law-breaking corporations or individuals, but he repeated much of an address he had made on Dec. 1, 1927, at a dinner of the Twenty-six Broadway Club in which he condemned business dishonesty. His remarks were broadcast by station WJZ in the Collier's Weekly hour.

Listing integrity, obedience to law, clean living and loyalty as the four fundamental qualities underlying character, Mr. Rockefeller asked his unseen audience:

"Is there any one of them that can be omitted or ignored without hazarding continuing business success? It is true that money is often made by trickery and sharp practice, but successful business is not established on a foundation so shifting.

Sees Condemnation Sure.

"Regretfully must we admit that instances are not lacking of corporations and individuals who set themselves up as superior to law. But when condemned, as they are sure to be in the court of public opinion, even the most worldly-minded is bound to ask himself, 'Does it pay?' and to admit that no business can be permanently successful which is not law-abiding."

Mr. Rockefeller's voice had a ring of determination in it as he enumerated, over and over again, the high standards which he said corporations and individuals should follow.

"Some one may say the pressure of competition is so tremendous that it is not always practicable to maintain these standards, much as we may believe in them," he continued. "I answer that no honest stockholder in any company wants profits derived from compromise with right, nor would he willingly permit, much less expect, any act to be performed by any one representing the company from the President to the office boy, which he would not himself be willing to perform.

"This is a position which cannot be too strongly stated. It is a platform on which I have always stood like the rock of Gibraltar.

"Each one of us, to a certain degree, holds in his hand the reputation of his business associates. The man who renders efficient, cheerful service brings direct credit upon every one connected with the company which employs him. Where an employe of whatever rank fails to live up to the highest standards in his individual business life he is bringing discredit upon his associates and his employers. It is well to remember that reputation is what people think we are and character is what we really are."

He went on to air some of his familiar views on the Eighteenth Amendment when he came to discuss obedience to law—the second of the four attributes on his list.

"Character lies in obedience to law, irrespective of whether one likes the law, believes in it or is opposed to it," said Mr. Rockefeller. How well known to all of us are the instances of law-breaking like the following: Here is a woman who says, 'I don't believe in the customs law. It is foolish and unwarranted. Therefore I feel perfectly justified in smuggling.'

Calls Dry Law an Example.

"Another illustration of this same attitude is the feeling on the part of many people that the Eighteenth Amendment is an infringement of personal liberty and therefore its observance is purely optional. To my way of thinking it is absolutely on all fours with the case cited above.

"And again the same disregard for law shows itself in connection with the operations of business. There are a large and increasing number of laws regulating business. The great majority of them are undoubtedly wise and in the interests of the people. Some unnecessarily hamper and restrict business and do not serve the common good. Here as in any of these other instances of regrettably common lawlessness, one has respect for the man who seeks by every legitimate means to bring about the repeal of the law which he honestly thinks to be contrary to the public interest.

"But law is law, whether it affects personal liberty, social well-being or business. So long as it remains the law of the land it should be obeyed by individuals and corporations. The alternative is anarchy."

Before leaving last night for his home at Tarrytown, Mr. Rockefeller posed for photographs and then inspected the new headquarters of the National Broadcasting Company in its building at 711 Fifth Avenue.

SEEK MORE OIL DEAL BONDS.

Senate Committee Presses Hunt, With Rockefeller Helping.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Senate Committee investigating the transactions of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, out of the profits of which it is charged that Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, received from H. F. Sinclair not less than $230,000, while another large allotment of the same profits, of which $34,000 has been traced, is suspected of having gone into the debt funds of the Republican National Committee, will resume its inquiry into the Continental company's history before the end of the week. It may be that Will H. Hays, who was Chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1920, will be the next witness to undergo Senator Walsh's examination.

In the meanwhile, the Grand Jury will reach a decision on the question of whether Colonel Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was in contempt of the Senate when he refused to answer questions relating to the disposition of the Continental profits. The inquiry was practically completed today, following the appearance before the Grand Jury of Senator Nye of the Investigating Committee and Senator Walsh, the committee's prosecutor.

Action Not Likely Today.

The usual rule in the courts of the District of Columbia is for the return of indictments on Mondays. This, however, is not obligatory and in the event the district attorney so wishes, they can be returned any court day. According to information from a reliable source, Grand Jury action in the case of Colonel Stewart is not expected tomorrow.

Under the practice in the District, the Grand Jury first returns a presentment reciting the alleged facts disclosed, and if those facts indicate a violation of the law, the District Attorney, in this case Major Peyton Gordon, drafts an indictment, which is returned to the Grand Jury for the signature of the foreman and approval of the other members of the panel. It is then presented to the Court and the arrest of the person or persons against whom it is directed is ordered.

The other proceedings involving Colonel Stewart, based on the application for a writ of habeas corpus which he sued out when arrested and ordered before the bar of the Senate, where the questions he previously refused to answer before the Committee would have been repeated, may be in the courts a long time. At any rate, a decision by Justice Bailey before whom it is pending is not expected this week, as the briefs called for by the Justice probably will not be handed to him before Friday.

Long Legal Fight Planned.

Should the decision favor the Government and the habeas corpus writ be refused, an appeal to the District Court of Appeals would be in line, and, in the event of an adverse decision by that court, to the Supreme Court of the United States. The opinion is general that, if necessary, the case will be appealed through to the court of last resort and this might mean a year or longer, before the question is finally decided.

The Senate Committee will devote practically all its time now to ascertaining what disposition was made of the more than $2,000,000 in Liberty bonds which are still unaccounted for. The books of the Dominion Bank of Canada show that $3,090,000 of these bonds, all of the First Liberty Loan, were bought at the instance of and turned over to H. S. Osler of Toronto, who was the President of the Continental Trading Company. So far the committee has traced $1,087,000 of the bonds, $800,000 to James E. O'Neil, former President of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, who subsequently returned them to the treasury of that company; $233,000 to Fall and $24,000 to the Republican National Committee.

That all of the bonds will ever be definitely traced is very doubtful, due to the fact that three men, O'Neil, Osler and H. M. Blackmer, who are supposed to be in a position to testify as to the facts, are out of the jurisdiction of the committee. Sinclair is under indictment with Fall for criminal conspiracy against the Government and for that reason cannot be forced to testify.

Little Hope Stewart Will Talk.

That Colonel Stewart, the only guarantor of the deal, except Sinclair, now in the country, will tell what he knows to the committee or to the Senate those who know Colonel Stewart do not for one moment believe. In his testimony yesterday, John D. Rockefeller Jr. indicated plainly he had little hope that Stewart could be prevailed on to change his position, although it places him face to face with a jail sentence for contempt of the Senate.

Colonel Stewart is under subpoena as a Government witness for the second trial of Fall and Sinclair for alleged criminal conspiracy against the Government in the Teapot Dome lease. There is a slight hope that he may decide to tell what he knows when he takes the witness stand in that case. When he refused to testify before the committee he explained that he thought the court, and not the committee, was the tribunal before which he should be asked to answer. The Teapot Dome trial starts April 6 before Chief Justice McCoy in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Before he left the stand yesterday, Mr. Rockefeller told Senator Walsh he would exert all influence at his command to aid the committee in tracing to their final destination the missing Continental bonds. With this in view, Mr. Rockefeller is expected in the next few days to inquire of the Treasurers of every corporation in which he is interested whether any of the bonds, the numbers of which the committee possesses, have been or are still among the securities in the treasuries of those companies.

Agents of the committee, moreover, will continue their investigation of bank books in New York and elsewhere in the hope that other bonds may be traced to individuals or political organizations.

Senator Nye explained today that the bonds traced to the Republican National Committee were part of a batch worth $75,000 used to pay a note which the Empire Trust Company held against the committee in December, 1923.

There were seventy-three $1,000 bonds, of which twenty-four have been identified as part of the bonds bought with Continental profits. The numbers of the twenty-four bonds were 244,326, 872,286 to 872,290, inclusive; 706,901 to 706,906, inclusive; 1,208,100 and 1,208,101; 1,140,992 to 1,140,995, inclusive; 244,338 to 244,340, inclusive, and 244,327.

Energy-Vitality-drink them in at every meal with this Culture of Health

WE ARE rather accustomed to think of energy and vitality as things that must be cultivated at great pains, through carefully regulated exercise, diet, and other health habits.

That is true. They can be built up in that way. But thousands and thousands of men and women have discovered during the last few years that it is possible to drink in these qualities at every meal in the form of a pleasant beverage.

So effective has this beverage (Lederle Milk) proved, that it has earned for itself the name of the Culture of Health. For it has been prescribed with success by physicians throughout the country. Everywhere people have used it to bring back to par strength and stamina that were being drained by the strain of modern life.

But Lederle Milk is being taken even more widely still by the legion of thinking men and women who insist on staying well and who are finding that the Culture of Health is the finest health insurance they can buy. That is why you will find Lederle Milk on sale in hotels, in clubs, in restaurants, at busy lunch counters—why druggists are delivering it regularly to thousands of homes every day.

There is not, practically speaking, a single person to whom the beneficial action of the Bacillus Acidophilus* cannot be of value. Won't you begin, today, to set it to work guarding your health? Simply order Lederle Milk, but be careful to specify the name "Lederle." For Acidophilus milk is difficult to make. It requires the highest skill and experience. For four years the Lederle Laboratories have been producing a milk which the most thorough tests have proved to be unsurpassed in purity, flavor and efficacy.

To get the best results drink Lederle Milk regularly. But in the treatment of disease, consult your doctor; self-medication is unwise.

Lederle Milk
(Acidophilus)

*Why Lederle Milk is the "Culture of Health"

Most of the germs in the intestines of the normal person are germs of decay. Poisons are generated by these harmful bacteria and are absorbed by the body. They thrive on the diet of the average adult. They breed rapidly, and if unchecked, severe symptoms result with a train of ills, and the health of the individual falls below par.

But if these harmful organisms are replaced by the beneficial organism, Bacillus Acidophilus, the health of the individual, insofar as it is influenced by the bacterial content of the intestines, will be normal.

International Dancers stress importance of wind condition

"In our work as international dancers we have discovered a wonderful new point about Lucky Strikes of which we are very happy to tell you. As can readily be realized, wind and physical condition are of the utmost importance to ball room dancers. Our work is hard and taxes the wind to the utmost. We both have smoked Lucky Strikes for a number of years and can safely say that these cigarettes in addition to furnishing us much pleasure in our hours of relaxation, have never affected our wind or physical fitness in any way."

MUSICAL FORUM PAYS HOMAGE TO SCHUBERT

Miss Rethberg and Mr. Gabrilowitsch Soloists in a Delightful Program.

Vocal and piano compositions of Franz Schubert made up the program of the concert given last night at the Guild Theatre in commemoration of the centenary of the composer's death by the Musical Forum of New York. Elisabeth Rethberg, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, were the soloists. Before the concert Mr. Gabrilowitsch gave an introductory talk of the life and works of the great composer, the inherent qualities of his art which have brought him lasting fame, and the relation of his achievement to that of his contemporaries.

Referring incidentally to the recent controversy aroused over the proposal to award prizes for the completion of the "Unfinished" Symphony, Mr. Gabrilowitsch, one of the first to oppose the plan, declared that even had Schubert lived, it was unlikely that he could have maintained "the incredibly high standard of the first two sublime movements," and that he may well have left the work in its present form. "What shall we say then, of others attempting to finish this marvelous symphony, with its immortal melodies, that with the passing of a century have lost none of their charm or freshness? There is no reason to reopen this controversy, for I think the musical world has rendered its verdict."

Schubert's works have stood the acid test of time because of their lyric, homophonic quality, said the speaker. The theory that polyphonic writing, a combination of several themes, is the only enduring form of musical composition, he added, is disproved not only by the lasting fame of Schubert, but also by Wagner and Beethoven, some of whose greatest themes were in the homophonic style.

"The essence of all music is lyrical," he explained. "It may be dramatic, fantastic, humorous, or what you will, but it pivots around lyricism. Some composers, like Beethoven, have struggled for an adequate expression of their genius. Schubert's inspiration gushed forth in an inexhaustible spring of divine melody."

Mme. Rethberg sang twelve Schubert lieder ranging from the sprightly "Heidenroeslin" to the poignant "Gretchen am Spinnrade." To all she brought the flute-like tone and deep musical understanding which characterize her lovely art. Mr. Gabrilowitsch played three of the impromptus and the first movement of the sonata in A minor with the taste and refinement he always displays, and with, it seemed, an added measure of devotion inspired by the occasion. The audience made generous response.

JOIN IN HONORING SCHUBERT

Governments of Europe Collaborate, Otto Kahn Announces.

European Governments, music conservatories and leading citizens are collaborating in the current year's celebration of the death centenary of Schubert, the composer, according to an announcement made yesterday by Otto H. Kahn, as Chairman, on behalf of the International Advisory Body organized by the Columbia Phonograph Company. Mr. Kahn declared that this cooperation was a recognition by the older nations of the artistic status that America had attained.

"The union of American men of affairs with European leaders to commemorate the centennial of Franz Schubert," he said in his statement, "is an auspicious and significant demonstration. The greatest artists, scientists and scholars in the world have accepted the American invitation to join the centennial celebration."

Mr. Kahn named among members of the foreign committees the composer Glazunov for Russia, Count San Martino, Casella, Wolf-Ferrari and Tullio Serafin for Italy, former Premier Herriot, d'Indy, Dukas, Charpentier and Rabaud for France, Sir Oliver Lodge, J. L. Garvin, Sir Henry Wood, Sir Thomas Beecham and others for England, and Arbos, Casals, De Falla and Segovia for Spain.

Also accepting are d'Albert, Strauss, Siegfried Wagner, Bruno Walter and Furtwaengler for Germany, while in Austria, the country of Schubert, the committee has enrolled public officials including Chancellor Ignaz Seipel and Mayor Karl Seitz of Vienna, where the composer is buried.

The chief observances will take place in Vienna, but musical memorials are planned in all the countries named, as well as in 1,000 cities and towns of America.

DEBUT BY KNAPP SISTERS.

Singer and Violinist Make a Good Impression in Recital.

Mimi and Lily Knapp, soprano and violinist, the daughters of a musical family of St. Louis, made their joint American debut at the Gallo Theatre last night, after public appearances in Italy, Spain and London. The violinist was sent by Max Zach of the St. Louis Orchestra to the late Franz Kneisel here and to Serato in Italy. The singer, who studied with William Thorner, made her opera début overseas under the eminent Italian, Leopoldo Mugnone.

With a crisp, birdlike soprano, shown in a "Sonnambula" air and in Alabieff's "The Nightingale," Miss Mimi Knapp won her house in Beethoven's "Andenken," three of Ravel's songs from the Greek, Hayly's old English "I'd Be a Butterfly" and Bishop's familiar but rarely sung "The Bloom is on the Rye." Lily Knapp displayed a comprehension of style and sound technique in a Vieuxtemps concerto and pieces by Tartini, Sarasate and Debussy. The sisters together concluded with a group for voice and violin by Mozart and Johann Strauss.

To Revive "Beaux' Stratagem."

The Players' Club revival this season will be Farquhar's "The Beaux' Stratagem," which will be staged, according to custom, early in June. The play committee of the club, which will sponsor the performance, consists of Walter Hampden, A. E. Thomas, Harry G. Sommers, Frank Gillmore and Alfred E. Aarons.

Other theatrical news is published on Page 16.

Mount Holyoke Graduate's Troth to Paul E. Kyburg Announced at a Luncheon.

ELINOR GOODMAN TO WED

New York Girl Betrothed to D. Maurice Wolff—Miss Fitler Engaged to J. C. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lincoln Howland of Mount Vernon, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Eleanor Howland, to Paul Ely Kyburg of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson Kyburg of Springfield, Mass. The announcement was made on Saturday at a luncheon Mrs. Howland gave for her daughter at Pierre's.

Miss Howland was graduated from Mount Holyoke College in 1927, where she was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society in her junior year. Mr. Kyburg attended Deerfield Academy and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1926, where he was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and the Dragon Senior Society. He is with the New York office of the Package Machinery Company of Springfield, of which his father is Treasurer and director.

Miss Howland and her mother are leaving for California next week. The wedding will take place in New York following their return in the Spring.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. George Wilson Kyburg, Mrs. Harold Browne, Mrs. Henry Guy Ely Kyburg, Mrs. Eugene Lyman and Mrs. David Alden Church, the Misses Persis Wright, Ruth Stewart, Elizabeth Speakman, Jean Sellar, Eleanor Adams, Josephine Coxe, Theodosia Davis, Katharine Diefendorf, Emily Payson, Betty Reynolds, Elizabeth Rough, Marjorie Scott, Miriam Greene, Claudine Hencken, Dorothea Hollmann, Mary Kemble, Margaret McClelland and Florence Montgomery.

Goodman—Wolff.

Dr. and Mrs. Abraham L. Goodman of 136 East Eighty-seventh Street announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elinor Goodman, to D. Maurice Wolff, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David M. Wolff, at a reception at their home yesterday afternoon. Miss Goodman attended the Alquin School. Mr. Wolff was in the First Army Air Service during the war. They have chosen Friday, April 13, for the wedding.

Framan—Polk.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely Framan of 627 Seventy-fourth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian R. Framan, to Dr. Avron M. Polk of 720 West End Avenue. Dr. Polk is a graduate of the New York University Dental College. Wedding plans are to be announced later.

Fitler—Anderson.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 12.—The engagement of Miss Margaret H. Fitler, daughter of Mrs. G. Cecil Fitler of Rosemont, Pa., to John C. Anderson, son of the late Harry F. Anderson and Mrs. Augustus N. R. Coe of Philadelphia and New Haven, Conn., was announced here today by the bride-elect's mother.

Prewitt—Breckinridge.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 12.—The engagement was announced here today of Miss Martha Prewitt and Clifton Rodes Breckinridge Jr. of New York. Miss Prewitt is the daughter of David Prewitt of this county.

Mr. Breckinridge is a member of the noted Kentucky family of that name. He is related to Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, who is in charge of the mountain settlement school with which Miss Prewitt is connected.

MISS MILLER ENDS TROTH.

Marilyn and Ben Lyon to Always Be Friends, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 12.—Ben Lyon today announced the breaking of his marriage engagement with Marilyn Miller, explaining that his announcement was with the approval of Miss Miller in New York, with whom he had had a long-distance telephone talk earlier in the day.

Lyon will leave on Wednesday for a short visit in New York. He will spend much of his time there with Miss Miller, he said.

"It is only because Miss Miller's work is in New York and my picture work necessitates my remaining permanently in California that we have abandoned our idea of marriage," he explained. "Our friendship remains the same and always will. As to the rumor of her engagement to Harry Warburton, a broker, only Miss Miller can answer. Personally, I don't believe either Miss Miller or I will marry while we are active in our profession. Mr. Warburton is an old friend of Miss Miller.

"It is true I contemplate a trip to New York this week. My reasons for the trip are to close my New York house, ship my belongings here, close business arrangements for my contract for the next year, and see Miss Miller and her show."

Lyon had made airplane reservation to New York for next Thursday, but was obliged to cancel it because of the representations of his motion-picture producers, who have money invested in his future.

Tea for Miss Florenza Johnson.

Mrs. John McCormack gave a tea dance yesterday at her home, 270 Park Avenue, for Miss Florenza Johnson, daughter of Edward Johnson, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Miss Johnson is visiting Mrs. McCormack and her daughter, Miss Gwendolyn McCormack.

The guests included Miss Dorothy Duveen, Miss Huguette M. Clark and her fiancé, William MacDonald Gower; Miss Jean Ickelheimer and her fiancé, Donald S. Stralem; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Crulk, Miss Jane Cooper, Miss Violet Tangeman, Miss Constance Fox, the Misses Wanda and Vaill Toscanini, Miss Marion Wilson, Miss Betty Kendall, Lucrezia Bori, Vincenzo Bori, Schuyler L. Parsons, Peter Colfax, Edward Johnson, Mrs. Dorothy Caruso and Antonio Scotti.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Cub Blonde.

THAT'S MY DADDY, with Reginald Denny, Barbara Kent, Lillian Rich, Tom O'Brien, Armand Kalis, Jane La Verne, Matilde Bruddage, Wilson Benge, Charles Coleman and Art Currier; written by Mr. Denny; directed by Fred Newmeyer; overture, selections from "Carmen"; "In Memoriam," with Forbes Randolph's Kentucky Jubilee choir; "A Study in Black and White"; Movietone news reel; "Cabaret," with Frederick Franklin and his "Fiddlers." At the Roxy Theatre.

Pudge, the four-and-a-half-year-old heroine of "That's My Daddy," the pictorial attraction now decorating the Roxy Theatre screen, provokes plenty of laughter by claiming Reginald Denny as her father. She does so at the most awkward moments. Mr. Denny, as James Norton, a wealthy bachelor, is fond of the child, who has been brought up under the wing of a strangely hard fostermother.

Mr. Norton plays with Pudge, and even when guests are expected he is to be seen amusing the child in a game of hide and seek. Friends of Mr. Norton hadn't even the foggiest notion that he had undertaken the duties of a father, and so when Sylvia Van Tassel and her mother enter Mr. Norton's lavishly furnished home they are somewhat dismayed to discover him on his knees with his hands covering his eyes at the far end of a long room. Realizing his awkward predicament, Mr. Norton endeavors to explain matters with hardly fluent white lies, while he also essays to keep Pudge from sight.

"That's my daddy," is Pudge's fondest boast, and she ejaculates this surprising information from the rail of a yacht at the moment Mr. Norton is doing his best to concentrate on the marriage service while an orchestra is playing softly the wedding march. These words in a shrill child's voice, hurled at the bridegroom-to-be before a host of people, naturally create consternation, and Pudge adds to the general excitement by falling into the water, which prompts Mr. Norton to leap to the youngster's rescue. This was not the only stretch of this picture that evoked hearty outbursts of merriment from the thousands within the Roxy's portals.

"That's My Daddy" is a thoroughly wholesome comedy, one that may not be overwhelmingly deep in story, but it possesses some excellently filmed incidents. It is another of those yarns that bring to mind "Helen's Babies," and while the two youngsters of that old book may have left little undone, Pudge, as a singleton, and a girl at that, gives a mighty good idea of the trouble that can be created by a cub blonde who yearns for a daddy.

Norton is in a dilemma after having accepted the presence of Pudge, for when he quietly tells Pudge that he is, of course, not her daddy, she bursts into a flood of tears, which causes Mr. Norton to change his tactics; so, in order to quiet the child, he insists that she is right, that he is her daddy. Pudge cares not who sees her mouth wide open as she betrays her grief. She has found a good-looking, wealthy daddy, and she is not going to be deprived of him. Pudge even has the temerity to make a suggestion as to whom she would like for a mother.

This picture is nicely produced, with a yacht to supply splendor after you have left the richly decorated rooms of Mr. Norton's home.

Mr. Denny, who is credited with the authorship of the story, gives a most pleasing performance as the frequently worried adopted father. Pudge is played by a young person boasting of the name of Jane La Verne. This youngster responds amazingly to direction. She is very, very sad when she ought to be and she is the personification of joy when playing hide and seek with her newfound daddy. Lillian Rich is attractive as the snobbish girl, and Barbara Kent is charmingly sympathetic as the grown-up heroine.

There are some interesting Movietone features, an artistic stage contribution called "A Study in Black and White" and an effective Lincoln "In Memoriam" offering on the program.

Non-Slicing Material.

SPORTING GOODS, with Richard Dix, Ford Sterling, Gertrude Olmstead, Philip Strange, Myrtle Stedman, Wade Boteler, Claude King and Maude Turner Gordon, screen play by Tom Crizer and Ray Harris, directed by Malcolm St. Clair; overture, "Mephisto"; Jesse Crawford, organist; "Stops and Steppers," staged by Jack Partington. At the Paramount Theatre.

Malcolm St. Clair invariably can be counted upon for something that is really humorous in any film he undertakes to direct. He has not strained himself in Richard Dix's latest comedy, "Sporting Goods," but the result is an enjoyable entertainment. This film aroused loud waves of laughter yesterday in the Paramount Theatre, and, while the fun is furnished chiefly by Richard Dix, Ford Sterling contributes his share to some of the sequences.

This picture begins on a wild country road with Richard Shelby (Mr. Dix) and Mr. and Mrs. Stanfield wondering about the depth of a pool of water. The gallant Shelby is willing to experiment with his ramshackle car, but a second after the wheels enter the water the whole automobile disappears. Shelby eventually comes to the surface, damp but smiling. He is a salesman for Elasco Sporting Clothes, and therefore soon afterward welcomes the loan of a gleaming, new and costly car. He finds himself at a hotel where the suite rental is $60 a day, and, considering that he has exactly $4, it is not surprising that he is in a quandary. He soon solves the question as to what to do with the $4 by giving it to the bell boys.

Elasco must be sold, and in the course of his calls Mr. Shelby attracts the attention of a would-be good golfer, one of the millions who want suction in the cups, movable bunkers and traps and something to cure a slice.

So you have a scene with Mr. Shelby looking exceptionally smart in his Elasco golf suit, going out with Mr. Jordan (Mr. Sterling). According to Shelby you can't slice if you want to if you wear an Elasco suit. They go to the first tee. Mr. Jordan wiggles and then drives, slicing into the rough. Mr. Shelby takes his stance and sends his ball whizzing down the fairway as straight as a shot from a rifle. So far, so good. Mr. Jordan decides to try Mr. Shelby's coat, and because of one of those things he drives a nice straight ball. Then it comes on to rain, and, unfortunately, Elasco, being made to stretch, also stretches when wet, and it is not long before Mr. Shelby's plus fours are down to his ankles, with the coat reaching almost as far.

Mr. St. Clair and Mr. Dix get a good share of fun out of a poker game wherein the man who was to be the victim is the somewhat surprised winner. This bit is cleverly worked out.

Gertrude Olmstead supplies the fair face for this film story. It turns out that she is as much interested in the success of Elasco as Mr. Shelby, and, therefore, toward the end of this picture you have a strong suspicion that the good-looking pair will consent to posing before the camera in a kissing scene.

Love and Murder.

ROSE-MARIE, with Joan Crawford, James Murray, House Peters, Creighton Hale, George Cooper, Polly Moran, Gibson Gowland, Lionel Belmore, William Orlamond, Harry Gribbon and Nigh Yeaworth, based on the musical comedy, directed by Lucien Hubbard; Henry B. Murtagh, organist; "The Brook," a scene; "The Past Mail," a Frank Cambria stage contribution. At the Capitol Theatre.

Filming a musical comedy narrative seldom results in any marked success, and the present transcription of "Rose-Marie," now on view at the Capitol, is no exception to the rule. The praiseworthy passages of this effort are more than offset by the muddled story, the ridiculous suspicions and the tedious and frequently absurd incidents. Rose-Marie may be a very charming girl with more than her share of good looks, but there are times when she seems to be somewhat heartless. This is particularly so when Etienne, the husband whom she is forced to marry, is presumed to be dying. Rose-Marie is about as anxious regarding his condition as if the poor chap had only a bad cold, whereas the melodramatic title writer has taken the trouble to let it be known that Etienne is suffering from a broken back. Hence one has the opportunity of perceiving Rose-Marie listening to James's protestations of love while Etienne is getting nearer and nearer his end.

In this yarn of the Canadian backwoods Rose-Marie's accent makes her say "beeg," "keel" and "Jeem." The recital commences with peace, and then James, a husky trapper or voyageur, appears upon the scene and forthwith is smitten by Rose-Marie's lovely presence. He is persistent in his embraces, and soon Rose-Marie is fearful, and she says: "Kind God, protect me."

Most of this picture, however, is devoted to showing how this young woman protects James, who, immediately after acknowledging that he is desperately in love with Rose-Marie, discovers that he is suspected of slaughtering an Indian. The handsome Irish Sergeant of the Royal Mounted Police, himself an ardent admirer of Rose-Marie, is therefore forced to go after his man.

Lucien Hubbard, director of this subject, has some queer notions of suspense. In one spot the real murderer pops up with handcuffs locked on one wrist. Most stupidly, the Sergeant has left his revolver on a chair and the murderer shows a decided keenness to gain possession of the weapon as he looks through a window of the shack. Just as he is about to snatch at the pistol, the Sergeant takes it out of the holster to use the butt as a hammer. Then the Sergeant replaces the weapon and you have the result in a few moments—bullets flying, the murderer having the handcuffs unlocked and a number of equally impossible happenings.

Joan Crawford is most prepossessing as Rose-Marie, but she seems like a girl who flings the past quickly behind her, especially when James holds her in his arms. James Murray is fairly competent as the hero, but the best performances are delivered by Creighton Hale as Etienne and House Peters as the Sergeant.

In Hungary.

THE WHIP WOMAN, with Estelle Taylor, Antonio Moreno, Lowell Sherman, Hedda Hopper, Julanne Johnston and others. Based on a story by Forrest Halsey and Leland Hayward; directed by Joseph C. Boyle; Rafaelo Diaz, tenor; stage playlet, "Tryst," with Claiborne Foster and John Kane. At the Greenwich Village Theatre.

Under the management of N. Brewster Morse, the Greenwich Village Theatre was reopened last Saturday evening with a mixed program, which being interpreted means that there was a singer, a one-act play and a motion picture. Rafaelo Diaz, a tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, acquitted himself with distinction by his rendition of several numbers. The playlet, known as "Tryst," by Garret Fort, is not an effort that is going to make an indelible impression upon many, but nevertheless through the competent acting of Claiborne Foster it held the attention of the audience. When it ended the people prepared themselves for the pictorial production called "The Whip Woman," either by drinking black coffee in the little lounge or by fresh air outside.

It was not long after the film was on its way that the intelligentsia of the Latin Quarter of Manhattan decided that it was a comedy, and their mirth was first provoked when Sari, a young Hungarian woman, knocked out Count Michael Ferenzi with the butt of her famous whip to prevent him from committing suicide in a convenient river. From then on the guffaws that greeted the action of the piece hardly ever ceased, except when one or two spectators decided that the Baron, impersonated by Lowell Sherman, at least deserved a hiss or so for his evil scheming.

There are blue nights and pink dawns in this peculiarly produced affair. It is reasonable to suppose that when this picture was started there was not the least intention of making it funny, but that after the title-writer started work he perceived the impossibility of taking the actions of this lady with a whip with any great degree of seriousness. Mr. Sherman appears to have anticipated the caption writer, for he has quite a twinkle in his eye at times as he lures Sari away from Michael. It is he who eventually makes the biggest bid for laughter, by his tempting offer of a cozy little wine shop in Budapest.

Another of the many episodes that tickled the audience was where Sari voices her thanks to the heavens that Michael is not a gentleman.

As a parting shot Michael, realizing the obstreperous nature of the woman with whom he is in love, himself uses the handle of her whip on Sari's head. Hence, when the patrons of the little Budapest wine shop burst into the room they perceive Sari in Michael's arms, but they are not aware that this resourceful young man is clasping the unconscious form of the tempestuous creature.

And so Mr. Brewster Morse is to be sympathized with in his initial film offering at the little theatre.

The cast of this production (sponsored by Robert T. Kane and Allan Dwan and directed by Joseph C. Boyle) includes Estelle Taylor, who has, it is not unkind to say, given better performances, and Antonio Moreno, who, even when he is not down for the count, looks anything but interested in the various incidents. The picture patrons are indebted to Forrest Halsey and Leland Hayward for developing the original story.

It is said that "The Whip Woman" was presented in Chicago, where it met with no sign of derision.

Other Photoplays.

BARBARA LULL HEARD.

Appears as a Full-Fledged Artist in Violin Recital.

Barbara Lull, a violinist of Berkeley, Cal., where the late Maud Powell heard her and predicted a career, gave a recital of interest at the Bijou Theatre last evening. Her program included Aaron Copland's nocturne, "Ukelele Serenade," with the composer at the piano. Miss Lull appeared as a full-fledged artist after several years of concerts in Europe and with orchestras in this country. Her strong, clean bowing, double stopping and passage work were shown in an early sonata of Leclair, to which John Kirkpatrick, Jr. supplied accompaniment from the original figured bass. Besides Bruch's concerto, Miss Lull added Kochanski's arrangement of Joaquin Nin's "Songs of Spain," a nocturne by Lili Boulanger and Sarasate's "Caprice Basque."

"Spring 3100" to Open Wednesday.

A late addition to the list of theatrical openings scheduled for this week is "Spring 3100," which will have its premiere on Wednesday night at the Little Theatre. Argyll Campbell is credited with the story from which the play was adapted and staged by Joseph H. Graham and Willard Mack. In the cast are Joseph Kilgour, Mariposa Hayes, Jack McKee, Owen Martin, Lynn Eswood, Tammany Young and Corbet Morris. George Miller is the producer.

"Gringa" ended its engagement at the Little Theatre on Saturday night.

Teaches Dramatics at City College.

Jacob A. Weiser, producer of "Children of the Moon," and playreader for several theatrical producers, is giving courses in practical playwriting and dramatics at the College of the City of New York. The courses mark a departure from the usual lectures on the theatre in that students will go backstage at Broadway plays during regular performances and will also watch rehearsals of plays in process of production.

"Zuleika" at the Waldorf March 6.

"Zuleika," the 1928 Columbia Varsity show, will be presented at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday, March 6. Performances will be given for the remainder of that week.

The book of the play written by Jacques Barzun, former editor of Varsity. The music was composed by Donald K. Phillips and Joe Herbert staged the dances. Hal Forde directed "Zuleika."

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

New York Symphony Orchestra.

It was a curious coincidence that a few days after the death of Thomas Hardy there should be played for the first time the orchestral rhapsody "Egdon Heath," which Gustav Holst composed last Summer, after spending some days in Wessex with the novelist. This took place at the concert given by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, yesterday afternoon in Mecca Temple. The event was observed with all due ceremony, and a part of the opening chapter of Hardy's "Return of the Native," that chapter which contains the noble and sombre beauty of the description of the Wessex moor was read, prior to the orchestral performance, by Paul Leyssac.

Unfortunately for many in the audience, Mr. Leyssac misjudged the acoustics of the auditorium, so that his words were not audible to every one there. But the program contained fragmentary quotations from Hardy, among them this description of the plain, "A place perfectly accordant with man's nature, neither ghastly, hateful nor ugly; neither commonplace, unmeaning nor tame, but like man, slighted and enduring and withal singularly colossal and mysterious in its swarthy monotony." Much more could be quoted from the matchless page of Hardy, but these words will serve, perhaps, as a keynote to the mood of the music, which only momentarily refers to the Heath awaking at nightfall, or swept by the tempest unleashed. The prevailing mood of the music, appropriately enough, is melancholy, mysterious, with final measures which return to the music of the opening. A large orchestra is employed. The form is naturally free rather than classic, except in general outlines.

Repeated hearings of this music might reveal to the attentive ear certain distinctions of harmonic color or mood that were not apparent yesterday. Is Holst the composer of whom a temperamental sympathy with Hardy could be expected? There are pages in Vaughan Williams's "London" symphony which have for us a nearer affinity to the spirit of Egdon Heath. But that is somewhat beside the point. A composer, inspired by a literary subject, has often produced music quite inappropriate to the subject, but good music. It must be admitted that the hearing of yesterday afternoon did not give the impression of a significant composition. To attempt to embody in tones the thoughts so eloquently revealed by Hardy's prose is a risky proceeding under most circumstances, and it might have been better for the composer if Mr. Leyssac had not reminded the audience of the music of the original text. Under the circumstances the new score seemed long and rather undistinguished.

The remainder of the program consisted of Leopold Damrosch's "Festival" overture, repeated from the New York Symphony program of last Friday night; the third piano concerto of Rachmaninoff and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. Vladimir Horowitz was soloist in the performance of the concerto, and he showed himself on this occasion an excellent musician as well as a remarkably equipped virtuoso. The opening movement of the concerto, which contains in the first theme one of its most valuable ideas, has much of the intimacy of feeling that is associated less with this form than that of chamber music. Later came the occasion for Mr. Horowitz to display his virtuosity. Before he did this, however, he showed his intelligence, fine musical purpose and virtuoso spirit, in a way to stir a big and discriminating audience. The applause was long and loud; Mr. Horowitz returned repeatedly to the stage.

Walter Gieseking Plays.

Walter Gieseking, playing last night in Carnegie Hall, proved again his right to rank with the leading pianists of his generation. There are few pianists, in fact, of any nationality or reputation, who surpass this one in point of individuality, sensibility, and extraordinary catholicity of taste and understanding. The pianist A excels in Beethoven, and B in Debussy. Mr. Gieseking seems equally fortunate in both kingdoms. His style as a pianist is his own, but he is so much more than a stylist, and so flexible in his response to various music. Style there was, and perhaps less sentiment than some artists would have bestowed upon the Bach of the "Overture" in B minor. But that is a matter of opinion. What followed was big with wonders—the Beethoven sonata, Opus 111, that colossus among piano sonatas, and most crucial test of the qualities of a great interpreter. To remark that Mr. Gieseking responded to the demands of the first movement would be in itself tribute. But he also compassed the heights of the adagio, and that is saying more, since it was from that height that the gigantic spirit of Beethoven broods and visions the promised land.

As with Mr. Gieseking's Bach, so with his Schumann of the Symphonic Studies. His interpretation was individual to a degree, and most fortunately free of romantic exaggerations. In fact, it was almost too composed in the earlier variations. But with the one in G sharp minor and the final movements came the poetic landscapes and the big curve and sweep of Schumann's fantasy. It is true that in one or two of the variations notes were dropped, which was principally remarkable as showing the common humanity of even such a pianist as Mr. Gieseking.

It was in the final group that he showed one of his most distinctive phases as an interpreter of modern music. The performances of Debussy's "Hommage a Rameau" and "Reflets dans l'Eau" and of Ravel's "Ondine" were among the finest instances of modern piano playing that we have known. They were as carefully planned, underneath an impressionistic surface, as poetic in mood, as precise, ordered and hauntingly beautiful in detail as Debussy and Ravel in composing. Admit that by far the greater poet of these two is Debussy. Ravel's "Ondine" is ravishing color, but it will be many, many more years before another composer will arise capable of creating a second "Reflets dans l'Eau" or a dozen other of the Debussy masterpieces for the piano. Playing this music, Mr. Gieseking modified his dynamics, changed his pianistic palette, and evoked a beauty as exquisite as it was mysterious. A master pianist indeed. We know few that can come near in the modern metier. Then the Scriabin sonata—the fourth—a piece of much sound and fury, signifying little or nothing, he made significant.

HOLIDAY OPERA CONCERT.

Ina Bourskaya and Diaz in Program That Packs Metropolitan.

Ina Bourskaya sang for Marion Telva, who was ill, among the fifteen artists in a "special holiday concert" that filled the Metropolitan and crowded its standing room last evening as on a gala night of opera. The Russian contralto was heard with Rafaelo Diaz in the love duet from Moussorgsky's "Boris."

There were ensembles from "Forza del Destino" for Vettori, Jagel and Pinza, and from "Romeo and Juliet" for Guilford and Tokatyan, airs from "Otello" for Miss Attwood and from "Meistersinger" for Laubenthal, and four final episodes from "The Barber of Seville" sung by the Misses Morgana and Wakefield, Messrs. Bariola, Malatesta, Paltrinieri, Tedesco and Pinza, with the orchestra under Bamboschek's direction.

MME. GADSKI HAILED IN 'DIE WALKUERE'

Veteran Sings in Wagner Opera in Concert Form at the Century Theatre.

Johanna Gadski, entering the Century Theatre's stage on the arm of Ernst Knoch, once conductor there with the Century Opera, was greeted with an ovation by the matinee audience assembled there to hear Wagner's "Die Walkuere" in concert form. Mme. Gadski's voice rang through the great house in the Valkyr's familiar "Hoyotoho," in her death-warning to Siegmund and two scenes with Wotan from the opera's closing acts. The "Fire Music" finale was played by an orchestra in which were recognized players from the Metropolitan.

Paul Althouse as Siegmund and Allen Hinckley as Wotan were also local opera veterans welcomed on their return. Milo Miloradovich sang Sieglinde's music and Mabel Ritch that of Fricka, with the warm, youthful freshness of voices perhaps less accustomed to so large a hall. As the octet of assisting Valkyries, Mr. Knoch assembled the Misses Ritch, Merran Reader, Gabrielle Clause, Edna Zahm, Tillar Gemuender, Ruth McIlwaine, Berty Janny and Sheila Fryer.

Both Mme. Gadski and Mr. Althouse, with the eight Valkyries, were announced to sing in a full stage repetition of "Die Walkuere" in Washington later this week. Yesterday's plainclothes performance was a remarkable recognition by the New York public for Gadski's career of more than thirty years.

It was the previous day's anniversary coincidence that on Feb. 11, 1895, in her first American season, Mme. Gadski had created at Boston the rôle of Hester Prynne in Walter Damrosch's American opera, "The Scarlet Letter," making her début here as Wagner's Elsa the same year.

TOSCANINI DRAWS THRONG.

Leads Philharmonic in a Repetition of Program of Night Before.

Arturo Toscanini led the Philharmonic Orchestra at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon in a repetition of its entire program of the night before and, in part, of music heard at other earlier concerts since the Italian maestro took charge for forty concerts from Jan. 26 till the season's end next April 1.

There was again the electrifying effect of the conductor's upraised baton over the silent throng as well as over his orchestra. At momentary pauses in the music of Sinigaglia and Berlioz, throughout the Elgar variations and the second Brahms symphony, there were again the audible exclamations of delight.

The hall's standing room was sold out yesterday, as all the more advantageous places had been months in advance. Mr. Toscanini was called back to bow to a storm of applause after the Elgar number, while the quieter demonstration after Brahms was in keeping with the lighter and lyric mood of the concert's close.

MUSIC NOTES.

Louise Alice Williams will give an "Evening in Dixie," with cabin stories and plantation songs of the South, at the Waldorf on Wednesday evening.

Professor Leon Theremin is to present his "music from the ether" in a fourth concert program here tomorrow evening at Carnegie Hall.

Jeanne Gordon, the Metropolitan contralto, who returns to the opera next week, is singing at Washington tomorrow, in Massenet's "Werther."

The New York matinee musicals at the Hotel Ambassador yesterday had a program by Mabel Corlew, Myron Watkins and Arthur Bergh.

Other theatrical news is published on Page 15.

WHAT GEORGE JEAN NATHAN says in Judge

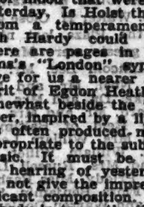
I now request the printer to haul down the old stencil to the effect that when it comes to putting on musical shows, Dr. Ziegfeld is so far ahead of his contemporaries, either in America or in Europe, that it would take a highly skilled road surveyor to cover the distance, having since the beginning of the season proved this to everyone's satisfaction twice, in the instances of the "Follies" and "Show Boat." He has now gone to the trouble of proving it all over again in the instance of "Rosalie," the new vehicle for Marilyn Miller and Jack Donahue. Here is an exhibit staged with such dexterity and loveliness that it must be the despair of all those other producers who, every once in a while, decide that all you have to do to achieve a Ziegfeld show is to hire away someone from Ziegfeld and spend a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

Well, you may hire that someone away from the professor and you can spend as much and even more money than the professor spends, and yet something always appears to be strangely lacking. To say that something is simply taste is nonsense. Taste is there, true enough, but there is something else, and that something else is nothing more mysterious than plain downright skill. Ziegfeld shows are Ziegfeld shows because the man behind them has spent his life studying carefully the demands of his job, has brought to that study both pride and imagination and has steadily bettered himself in his task.

In a word, the fellow is a worker. He is jealous of his position and achievements and he strains himself maintaining his eminence. The result is such a thing as "Rosalie" in which you find, first of all, light and settings and costumes and colors to delight the eye. And then, too, the best music show talent that best judgment can select and money buy. And, in this case, some excellent fooling and some agreeable tunes by Romberg and Gershwin.

At Last They Can Hail a Hit!



ROBERT LITTELL

"Just about the funniest show we have ever seen. Joe Cook alone is enough to hang up that record. But he isn't alone by a long shot. Tom Howard and Dave Chasen are frequently quite funny enough to swing any ordinary show all by themselves."

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

"That man Cook could imitate four Hawaiians with one hand tied behind his back . . . I think he could imitate twelve Hawaiians with both hands tied behind his back. In the first intermission we all wondered what there could possibly be left for him to do in Act 2 but went back to our seats unworried, serene in the knowledge that even if he weakly resorted to the device of playing the first act over again it would be quite all right with us."
Alexander Woollcott in World

AMERICAN WORKS HEARD AT CONCERT

Music by Four Contemporary Composers—Two of Them Present, One as Soloist.

Works of four contemporary American composers were presented at the concert given at the Guild Theatre yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the League of Composers. They included a quartet for strings by Marion Bauer, played by the Lenox Quartet; a piano sonata by Marc Blitzstein, with the composer as soloist; a sonata for flute and piano by Quinto Maganini, played by Mr. Maganini, with John Kirkpatrick at the piano, and Roy Harris's sextet for string quartet, clarinet and piano, performed by the Lenox Quartet with Harry Cumpson, pianist, and Aaron Garodner, clarinet.

The quartet by Miss Bauer, known both here and abroad not only as a composer but as critic and lecturer on musical subjects, had its first public performance yesterday. The second of its three movements, an adagio lamentoso, is based on an African negro lament practically monothematic. Its first two movements were performed at a concert of the league in 1925. The quartet was completed by the composer last summer.

Mr. Blitzstein's sonata, completed last December, is in the traditional one-movement sonata form, except that there are no transitions, each section of the work being complete. As the program pointed out, "the possibility of padding while waiting for the next 'big' thing is thus eliminated. This padding is replaced by silences, which are made significant by the species of finish-and-commence music to which they are confined."

Mr. Maganini's sonata for flute and piano was interesting in its harmonic devices, the originality of its rhythmic effects and the general freshness and spontaneity of its conception. Mr. Harris's sextet was first given in Paris by the Société Indépendents. The composer, who has been abroad since September on a Guggenheim Fellowship, returned in time for yesterday's performance.

GRAHAM DANCE RECITAL.

Artist More Eloquent When She Is Lyrical Than When Dramatic.

Martha Graham last night made her first appearance of the season, and incidentally gave the first dance recital in Eva Le Gallienne's newly instituted series of Sunday evening concerts at the Civic Repertory Theatre in West Fourteenth Street. The program, said to be in the nature of a farewell to Miss Graham's familiar style of dancing before she goes over whole-heartedly to the new German technique, was, generally speaking, a résumé of her work for the last several seasons. It ranged from the earlier numbers, which show a strong influence of the Denishawn tradition, such as the Tanagra, the Chinese and the East Indian dances, to the modernistic "Revolt," seen for the first time in her last program.

Miss Graham's flair for line and visual composition is extraordinarily marked, and her aptitude for handling draperies beautifully is uncanny. She is far more eloquent, however, when she is lyrical than when she is dramatic, for her mask is less plastic than her body and is singularly limiting to her emotional expression. The numbers which are free from pantomimic implications are best suited to her talents.

Though her dramatic intention is clear and true, her means of projecting it are slight. The effect is a forcing which in the Spanish number and the "Lucrezia" becomes neurotic, and in the "Revolt" muscularly strained. When her primary concern is decorative she achieves the happiest results. The musical settings covered a wide scope, from Handel to Honegger.

Miss Graham was accompanied by Louis Horst at the piano and also by George Possell, flutist, of the New York Symphony Orchestra, both of whom contributed solos as well.

JULIETTE VELTY APPEARS.

French Actress Gives a Recital of Dramatic Readings.

Mlle. Juliette Velty, who has appeared at the Comédie Française and Theatre Odéon, Paris, and who has played here with Cecile Sorel, gave a recital of dramatic readings at the Charles Hopkins Theatre last night, which was chiefly interesting because it included what were said to be her first parts in English. These were the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," which she did with Dolores Gardner as Romeo and the sleep-walking scene from "Macbeth."

She also gave several numbers in French, while Miss Gardner, Justin Elie, pianist and composer, and the Latin-American trio presented a supplementary musical program. The recital was under the patronage of Maxine Mongendre, French consul-general and M. André Brouset, French consul.

Later in the season Mlle. Velty plans to appear in a play on Broadway in an English-speaking rôle.

Edna Thomas in Negro Spirituals.

Edna Thomas, who bills herself as "The Lady from Louisiana," presented the third and final of her programs of negro spirituals and songs of the South at the Booth Theatre last night. Her list of numbers was made up, in large part, of spirituals and also included some interesting songs of the negro soldiers of the A. E. F.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Two plays will open tonight, "These Modern Women" at the Eltinge, and "Caught Short" at the Theatre Masque. This afternoon "The Shanghai Gesture" will begin a return engagement at the Century Theatre.

Many of the Broadway attractions will give holiday matinees today.

"Grimaldi" opens in Boston next week before coming to New York.

"Dr. Knock," Jules Romain's play translated by Granville Barker, will open at the American Laboratory Theatre on Thursday evening, Feb. 23.

The Pacific Coast rights to "Burlesque" have been sold to Lillian Albertson and the play will open at the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, next month. The German and Central European rights of the play have been sold to Otto Klement of Berlin.

Patricia Collinge is the latest player to be engaged for George C. Tyler's revival of "She Stoops to Conquer."

Selena Royle will have the leading feminine role in the forthcoming production of "Napoleon."

Louise Brown, now appearing in "The Girl Friend" in London, has been engaged by Philip Goodman for a musical production next season.

Grace Wilbur has entered the cast of "Hope," opening at the Fulsomes Theatre a week from tomorrow night.

Margaret Wycherly will appear with Randolph Somerville's Washington Square Players during their season at the Brooklyn Little Theatre, which begins on March 27.

A play called "Women," by Ethel Gold and Edith Ellis, has been sold to John Mahaney, now touring in "The Spider." Mr. Ellis is now appearing in "Cock Robin."

"Old Nobody," a new play by Charles Rann Kennedy, will be presented by Edith Wynne Matthison, Margaret Cope and Mr. Kennedy at the MacDowell Club, 108 West Seventy-third Street, this afternoon and tonight.

Henry Pusk, at present appearing in "The Madcap," will stage a revue for Lea Seidlin in London in June.

DRAMA LEAGUE PLANS.

Advocates of Better Plays Discuss Reorganization Program.

A meeting of the New York Centre of the Drama League was held yesterday afternoon at the Alice Foote Macdougall tea room, 6 West Forty-sixth Street, to reorganize the league and make it a force for better drama. The meeting was presided over by George V. Denny, Chairman of the Theatre-going Committee of the League, and the speakers were Grant Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy and Mrs. Macdougall.

A drive for 25,000 new members was announced and the program of the league discussed. Its weekly bulletin, containing brief reviews of the current plays and citing those worthy of seeing, will be revived.

Quoting the prediction of "a well-known actor" that in a few years there would be no spoken drama in America outside of the largest cities, Grant Mitchell said the stage had great need of such a league to prevent this happening.

Mrs. Kennedy urged theatre lovers to look further than Broadway, "as many of the best plays are now coming from outside its limits." One of the purposes of the league will be to see if anything can be done about the present price of theatre tickets, which according to all of the speakers, put good drama almost out of reach of people of moderate means.

Here I am in New York at last and tonight I'll see myself on the screen for the first time in "Four Sons." I'm so anxious to see the work of the young players in the picture with me—pretty June Collyer, who acts her love scenes beautifully—and the handsome sons played by James Hall, George Meeker, Charles Morton and Francis X. AGAINST THE GOVERNOR.

Republican policy at Albany again appears to boil down to the one rule to refuse to do whatever Governor SMITH wants. He has submitted a legislative program, nearly every item of which it is the announced intention to kill. One would suppose that even the most Bourbon among the leaders would have learned the lesson of the past ten years. They have steadily sought to thwart and humiliate the Governor, only to see his popularity and fame increase by their opposition. The more violently they have let loose the winds of obstruction against him, the higher have they seen his political kite rise. If they had early and regularly acquiesced in his proposals for improving the Government of the State, he might have sunk quietly to a private life by this time. But in their blind zeal to destroy him they have done more than anything else to make him a great figure.

Just now Governor SMITH expresses keen anxiety and regret over the apparent determination of the Republicans in the Legislature not to submit to the voters this Fall the constitutional amendment providing a four-year term for the Governor. This proposal has had the backing of eminent Republicans. It was the Hughes commission which endorsed it as an essential part of the structural reorganization of the State Government. It is a necessary supplement to the consolidation of departments and the Executive budget. Yet because the Republican leaders could not get the people to ratify the amendment in the form in which they wanted it, they now propose to deny it in any form whatever. Blind hostility to the Governor could scarcely go further. They ought to put Governor SMITH entirely out of the picture. They should show some concern for the State. It will go on, and its public business will have to be conducted, long after Governor SMITH has departed. Why not for once agree to a non-partisan measure, recommended by Republican ex-Governors and by other high Republican authority, and do something from the motive of installing more efficient governmental machinery at Albany, instead of doing everything from the motive of going against what the Governor desires simply because he desires it?

Governor SMITH makes a serious and urgent appeal to civic organizations and to open-minded citizens everywhere throughout the State to take this matter up. He has done his duty. It is for them to do theirs, which now mainly consists in protesting against Republican lethargy in the Legislature, and in letting the Republican leaders there know what the State thinks of their stupidly placing themselves athwart the path of governmental progress.

REVISED NAVAL PLANS.

All the information from Washington is that the House Naval Committee is going to make a heavy cut in Secretary WILBUR'S program. Representative BUTLER, the Chairman of the House committee, agrees with Representative BRITTEN of Illinois that the volume of protests against the ambitious projects of the General Board, approved by the Secretary of the Navy, has been so great that Congress will not think of going the whole figure. It is said to be certain that the number of destroyers and submarines proposed in the bill will be slashed ruthlessly, or perhaps cut out altogether. Even the program for building cruisers will be much reduced. This ought to please the President, with his obstinate ideas about economy, although he, as it now appears, rather imprudently assented to the great enlargement of the navy proposed by the General Board and adopted by Secretary WILBUR.

The change represents an extraordinary manifestation of public sentiment. It has not been possible for retired Admirals or officers still active in the service to make the people of this country believe in the imminence of war. All that they have seen in the demand for a Big Navy is a waste of public funds, with possibly a provocation to other nations. It must be added that the attitude of the British Admiralty, and of the whole British Government, has contributed not a little to altering the American point of view. There was no concealment of the fact that the intention was to build against the British Navy. But the British have since cut their own plans down, and are striking three or four cruisers off their projected list. And they have steadfastly refused to give any official attention to the American naval plans. British statesmen have merely said that our navy is purely an affair for ourselves, and that they are perfectly willing to leave it to American common sense to decide how many and what kind of ships should be added to our fleet. They will doubtless see a justification of this wise hands-off policy in the swinging of American opinion so strongly against the grandiose scheme to have the biggest navy in the world.

ON THE TRAIL.

At last we have what appears to be definite proof that some $24,000 of the famous and mysterious Continental Oil bonds have been traced to the Republican National Committee. This will confirm the violent suspicion and even the positive belief of many who have followed the transactions closely that a much greater amount in those bonds was applied to paying the deficit in the Republican campaign fund of 1920. That fund was scandalously and needlessly large. The Presidential election could have been won with one-third of the money, or even less. But so lavish was the Republican outlay that a big deficit remained to worry the party managers for three years. It was finally paid off. But no one knew exactly how. The Treasurer of the Republican Committee at that time, Mr. UPHAM, is not living. But there must be party accounts in existence. They ought to show the transfer of these oil bonds, or of any further payments in that form, if made.

Successive chairmen of the Republican Committee have denied all knowledge of anything of the kind. But somebody knew about it. Somebody used the bonds, as they came, to pay off the notes which the Republican Committee had given for money borrowed from the banks. The books should show exactly what took place, and the freest access to them should be given to the Senate committee. It is no longer a case for holding anything back. The highest authorities in the party should insist upon everything being laid bare. Otherwise they will enter the Presidential campaign with a frightful scandal out of the past hanging over them. And if they, or the responsible members of the National Committee, have to admit that the accounts have been destroyed, that would make the matter a thousand times worse. It would be a form of that suicide which WEBSTER declared to be a confession.

IMMIGRANT FAMILIES.

Last week the Senate passed a very interesting and important resolution affecting immigration. There was little public notice of the action, but it confers definite social and economic benefits. The measure gives preference in immigration quotas to wives and dependent children of immigrants resident in this country who have declared citizenship intentions. Under the law before this amendment, when an immigrant became a citizen, his wife and dependent children were automatically admitted outside the quota. The resolution does away with this immigration excess over the quota, and, at the same time, brings alien families together without the present wait of three years.

As Senator REED of Pennsylvania pointed out, the effect of the resolution will be to keep money in this country which, under the three-year wait, has been steadily going overseas. He added that immigrants whose families may join them without so long an absence are more likely to be useful, orderly citizens. At first some Senators—notably Messrs. HEFLIN, TRAMMELL and BLEASE—were disposed to object to the relaxation of the immigration regulation in the belief that it broke the quota bounds. They expressed strong opinions of the necessity of holding down immigration, and Senator BLEASE was plaintive in his reiterated opinion that "there won't be any Americans left here if this keeps on." But when Mr. REED, with great patience and the aid of Senator ROBINSON of Arkansas, made it clear that the resolution had social and economic as well as numerical value, the opposition faded and by unanimous consent the Senate agreed to the new plan.

There is every reason why Congress should cure the defect in the immigration law which this resolution exposes. Slaves "sold down the river" for three years, while their families remained behind, were in no better case than worthy immigrants parted as long from their own by the lack hitherto of a preferential system.

"THE LONGEST WAY ROUND."

The French fliers, DIEUDONNE COSTES and JOSEPH LEBRIX, have gone as long a way round in distance as the circumference of the globe in coming from Paris to New York. But they have found their way into the heart of the American people by fulfilling the mission of their brother fliers, NUNGESSER and COLI, who perished in attempting the shortest way in miles. They have incidentally tied four continents together by the air-lines which they traced in the skies, and though no token of their passage is left in the air that was lashed by the propeller of their winged ship, "neither pathway of its keel," they have blazed trails on the charts of aerial navigators — veritable "coureurs d'air" as their predecessors, the "coureurs de bois," marked their way through the forests and along the streams from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf of Mexico.

These valiant runners of the air made their way in one uninterrupted flight from Paris to Senegal, in Africa, a distance of 2,400 miles (in a plane that had made earlier long flights from Paris to Persia and to Siberia), and then across two thousand miles of open sea to the mainland of South America; thence down the East Coast and over the lofty Andes to the farther coast and then northward to New Orleans and the attempted goal of the Nungesser-Coli flight. In all this they deserve not only to be ranked among the very first of fliers, but also to be remembered with those intrepid French explorers, adventurers, priests and runners of the woods who evoked all those regions from the unknown and who have left their memories and sometimes their names to cities that have grown up where they carried their canoes over portages or built their rude forts and established their meager settlements. Though these "coureurs d'air" have found no hostile savages where they descended to earth, from St. Louis in Senegal to the ancient seat of the Incas in Peru, where bull-fighting was interrupted to receive them, they encountered even greater perils than the land and water pioneers of France in the New World.

Their plane has flown in all a distance three times that of the girth of the globe at our latitude, and it descended from the sky last Saturday with Lindberghian punctuality and with so little heralding as to find New York almost unprepared for their coming. But a universal welcome is here both for them in their own brave and dauntless persons and as the comrades of those first adventurers of the westward course whose message of good-will they have caught up and carried by a longer way to America. And it is hoped that this four-continent flight is but preface to the successful uninterrupted flight which they will yet make—and deserve to make first of all fliers—by the shortest way from Paris to New York.

WAR AND DEFINITIONS.

Europe is not yet ready for a continent-wide Locarno, according to the report of a subcommittee of the Security and Arbitration Committee of the League of Nations. The approach must be by way of regional agreements on the Locarno model. This is a finding against the French contention for a general security compact with "sanctions." It is an endorsement of the British case as repeatedly formulated by Sir AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN, occasionally with too much emphasis.

The British Foreign Minister declines to bind his country to the rôle of universal policeman at the behest of the League. It is enough that Great Britain stands pledged against a war of aggression on the Rhine. Elsewhere in Europe the nations should be left to work out their own compacts of renunciation and guarantees within the framework of the League of Nations. This is far from tantamount to saying that the nations must shift for themselves, in behalf of the British case it should be remembered that the Locarno agreement does indirectly work for peace elsewhere than on the Rhine; and it does so precisely by guaranteeing peace on the Rhine. It establishes a great peace zone where men's minds will not have nervous collapse at the prospect of a general conflagration arising out of trouble on the fringes of Europe. And a secure state of mind in Paris, London and Berlin means that the leaders of European civilization will be free to employ their good offices for the settlement of regional crises wherever arising.

Where CHAMBERLAIN is too emphatic is in his apparent rejection of the effort to distinguish between aggressive and defensive war. To define an aggressor would be to set a trap for the innocent and a signpost for the guilty. "After all, if he has even a little diplomatic skill, the aggressor will make himself the aggressed." This is to overlook the new meaning which it is proposed to read into aggression and defense. The British Foreign Minister is thinking of 1914 and the controversies about who mobilized first, who fired the first shot, who first crossed a frontier. He is thinking of the clamor and the hair-splitting over ultimate causes of war, and remote causes, and immediate causes. He is completely answered by the subcommittee's suggestion. When two nations fly to arms the Council of the League shall demand an armistice, and the belligerent who refuses to lay down arms shall be declared the aggressor. Under the old ideas mobilization renders hostilities inevitable. At all times it will be no easy matter to stop a war once the armies are marching. Nevertheless the proposed definition asserts that the undertaking is not hopeless.

By this definition the only war of defense is one which the League of Nations has sanctioned against a nation that will not listen to reason. In his letter to THE TIMES of Feb. 6 Professor SHOTWELL writes: "It will not do to regard that nation as being on the defensive which suffers the first attack; for the attack may be only the unauthorized act of a border patrol or a single individual." But beyond that, the situation is not hopeless even if a Government has plunged into hostilities. If that Government, at the behest of the League, suffers a change of mind and heart and consents to discuss arbitration or conciliation, it wipes out its initial act of aggression.

WILLIS PASSES SUMMA CUM LAUDE.

Some persons of ill will ask what business it is of Senator BORAH'S to examine Republican candidates for President in the Fundamentals of Prohibition. If it be none of his business, it is something to his pleasure; and he is all too seldom pleased. His examination papers and the answers to them are a happiness to many. "CHARLEY" CURTIS may not have got more than a pass mark. FRANK WILLIS deserves what undergraduates used to call a "Summer Come." He wants Kansas City to name the Eighteenth Amendment and bind the candidates and the Dry-Wet Republican Party to the heartiest enforcement of the same and Mr. VOLSTEAD'S masterpiece. Even the saints of the Anti-Saloon League, which used to pay Mr. WILLIS for the use of his voice in the cause of virtue, don't expect that.

If he should be elected, he "would put forth every effort" to make the one and only amendment obeyed and respected and the Prohibition law executed. Vocally he is capable of it. He betters Mr. BORAH by repeating the patter about "nullification." The old nullification was suspension of a Federal law by a State or its Legislature. The new nullification is the employment by a State of Federal authorization to modify the Volstead act in accordance with local conditions and public opinion. To comply with the terms of a Federal law is to nullify that law and bring on "the reign of anarchy and chaos" and, presumably, old Night. With some unconscious reminiscence of that wicked Bacchic ditty, "Rolling, Reeling," Mr. WILLIS sees his chaos "weltering."

The Willis answers are worthy of the Borah questions. But for what does FRANK think he is trying to qualify? Surely not for the Republican nomination for President. Is he looking for a straight Prohibition nomination? For the Superintendency of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in 1933? At any rate, his record on prohibition is "clean as a hound's tooth"—to quote his gracious compliment to HARRY DAUGHERTY'S administrative achievements.

A BUS CENTENARY.

Paris without omnibuses would be difficult for its citizens to traverse and the despair of visitors. No city in the world is better supplied with the modern autobus. It goes everywhere, even through the narrowest streets. In the maze of traffic the pedestrian has to look out for himself. The Paris system antedates similar service in London by at least a year. Recently the centenary of the omnibus was noticed appropriately by the French press. On Jan. 30, 1828, the Prefect of Police granted the first permit for omnibus transportation, intended for the "bourgeois." The vehicles that were used resembled the old-fashioned diligence. Divided into three compartments, they carried fourteen people, who paid according to the seats they occupied. The division in the Paris autobus today accommodates two classes of patrons. Disabled soldiers, the blind, and women with babies have preference in the seating. On the platforms crowding is often quite as bad as in the aisle of a New York subway train. When the seats are filled, up goes the sign "Complet."

The founder of the first service was ruined by his conductors. They helped themselves to the receipts. Yet the Duchesse DE BERRY and other fashionable women had advertised the business by sometimes leaving their "carrosses" to ride in the new public coach. Trumpeters went before it in the early days to herald its approach. Three horses abreast were in the shafts. The characteristics of the Paris buses a century ago remind one of the Broadway buses of the middle of the nineteenth century. Decorated panels were popular. Names to attract patrons were employed. There were the Citadines, the Hirondelles, and the Dames-Blanches. Drivers wore white coats, capes and top hats. After a while came the Batignollaises, the Sylphides, the Carolines, the Dames-Françaises and the Dames-Reunies. New York had its Yellowbirds, Redbirds and Knickerbockers. WALT WHITMAN celebrated the drivers—"a strange, natural, "quick-eyed and wondrous race (not "only RABELAIS and CERVANTES "would have gloated over them, but "HOMER and SHAKESPEARE would)." "How well I remember them!" exclaimed WALT. "They had immense "qualities, largely animal * * * but "I should have trusted the general "run of them, in their simple good-"will and honor, under all circum-"stances." The poet sought their company, declaimed "stormy passages from Julius Caesar or Richard" from the bus seat, was hail-fellow-well-met with them, and made brothers of Big FRANK, Broadway JACK, GEORGE STORMS, PETE CALLAHAN "and dozens more." Bus drivers in all countries were characters as long as they held the reins over the backs of horses. They were philosophers, humorists and experts in profanity. Their stories were not always refined; but they had a point. The Rabelaisian race passed away when the autobus came in to try tempers and wreck nerves. The motor vehicle operator must be all-seeing; he has no kinship with his machine, and no time for jests.

In Paris, with consolidations picturesque features of the competitive buses vanished. Feminine names for coaches were discarded. The Compagnie Générale des Omnibus swallowed up character. It became a drab business. The motorbus was the finishing touch to sentiment. For a time Montmartre cabarets resounded with songs about "le dernier omnibus," and then silence—the mechanical age had dawned.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Physicians and Their Patients.

It must have been with a glow of satisfaction that an assemblage of physicians at Chicago heard from Dr. J. M. DODSON of the American Medical Association on Saturday that in the United States doctors as a body outlive their patients. According to him, the average age of physicians when they die is 62 years, but the average for other people is 47 years. The longevity of the physicians he attributed to their knowledge of healthful living conditions.

In China, where patients pay a physician for keeping them as well as he can, such an announcement by a member of the faculty would be received with incredulity. Patients in that country ought to live about as long as their doctors, and perhaps they do. Here, if what is alleged cannot be disputed, patients who call in the doctor only when they are ill, or need an overhauling, might complain that they did not get enough good advice from him. To which he could rejoin that his patients often failed to heed him when he gave it.

It still remains true, as Dean SWIFT said, that the best physicians are Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet and Dr. Merryman. Most people will neither diet, keep reasonably quiet nor take their pleasures sensibly. Hence the doctors who know SWIFT was right live longer.

Dramatics in School.

In most schools, here in New York and in other cities throughout the country, the authorities are either indifferent or hostile to the idea of adding dramatic study to the regular course. The reason is not hard to find. What they have seen of it has not been truly educational for the school as a whole, but rather disorganizing. Teachers have concentrated on exhibitions. Students playing leading parts have acquired exaggerated notions of their own importance. Dramatization of stories as a part of the study of oral English and of literature has been subordinated to the giving of a play.

That school dramatics may be a valuable, smoothly working part of the school day is the contention of Miss WINIFRED WARD, who tells something of her work as supervisor of dramatics of the Evanston public schools in The Drama for this month. Her method lays no emphasis on finished productions for the entertainment of an audience. The children read a story or play, discuss it with particular attention to character analysis and then act it. They do not memorize lines, but make up the conversation and action as they go along.

This gives the teacher the opportunity of correcting English. Besides training in language, the children get larger vocabularies. They learn to think quickly, inventing answers to unexpected questions. The material chosen recently by Miss WARD varied from fairy tales to "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The Lights of Broadway.

Prizes are offered for the best commercial buildings put up on Fifth Avenue. Architects compete eagerly, and the appearance of the city is improved. Without any such extraneous stimulation, Broadway has been beautified. Private enterprise accomplishes an artistic treatment of the skyline and the facades of buildings by means of electric signs.

There was a rumor that the Broadway Association or some other civic body was about to restrict such signs. It is not true. The association considers them a distinct asset. Far from wiping them out, or preventing the erection of others, it encourages business concerns to put up more.

Some of the signs are certainly remarkable. There is a washing machine splashing up and down, a percolator sending up an electric fountain of coffee, birds flying and flapping, and even Niagara Falls pouring soundlessly into the gorge. Broadway says it is "art." Anyhow, it makes the famous street much lighter than street lights alone, and is a sight that no visitor to the city can miss—no matter whether he wants to or not.

Two Letters That Spell Fame.

The year 1927 saw one word achieve immortality. Science did not conceive it, nor the slang-makers, but sheer human fortitude. It was an old word, one of the oldest in the English language, but it had to be born again. A 1928 calendar carries a lithograph of sea, cloud and plane, and beneath it this dedication, that needs no name:

"We," through generations of tradition and until very recently, a mere pronoun seldom used with becoming modesty, by a single inspired and heroic act is now the outstanding word of all languages—a symbol of the very ultimate of human achievement.

Very humble people have used the pronoun, and very exalted, but none put more unconscious nobility into it than Colonel LINDBERGH. On his lips it makes a mockery of kingly pretense and editorial inflation. It will ever be associated with his voyages between sky and sea, and imbue with new meaning the words the modern poet put in the mouth of that dauntless old adventurer:

It may be that the gulfs will wash us down,
It may be We shall touch the Happy Isles—

Sulgrave Manor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the issue of THE TIMES of Feb. 12 there is a statement to the effect that there is a controversy between the Board of Governors of Sulgrave Manor and the George Washington Sulgrave Institution in regard to the administration of Sulgrave Manor.

As a member of the Board of Governors of Sulgrave Manor I wish to state that this board is engaged in no controversy whatever.

Sulgrave Manor was purchased in 1913 by the British Peace Centenary Committee with funds contributed by Americans and British. During the following ten years contributions from the United States for the restoration and maintenance of Sulgrave Manor amounted to less than one-third of the sum raised in Great Britain. In 1923 and 1924 the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America raised an endowment fund of $100,000 for the upkeep of the manor house and grounds.

The title to Sulgrave Manor is vested in three trustees: the Regent of Mount Vernon, the British Ambassador to the United States and the American Ambassador to Great Britain, and the title deeds to the property are in the safe of the American Embassy in London.

The administration of Sulgrave Manor is in the hands of a Board of Governors of which the Viscount Lee of Fareham is Chairman, and on which there are two Americans, Mrs. A. H. Chatfield of Cincinnati and myself. The upkeep of the property is paid for from the income of the endowment fund and the cost of the London office, one room and one secretary, from the admissions and sales at the manor.

ALICE GREENOUGH TOWNSEND.
(Mrs. E. M. Townsend.)

Oyster Bay, L. I., Feb. 12, 1928.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Dick and Jenks bill, now up for passage at Albany, is aimed directly at the personal liberty of every man in the State. Any man who values his rights and who believes that he himself should have the main voice in deciding on the distribution of his hard-earned money or real estate, often representing the work of a lifetime, should carefully consider the sweeping proposals contained in this bill.

It would "give widows more of estates"; it would "increase dower rights," and grant many other benefits to the undeserving, putting personal and real estate on the same plane of law. It declares for the right of the widow to override a will.

The passage of this bill would drive many substantial business men, and even businesses, to other States. It would saddle executors and trustees with more trouble and litigation than any one dreams of. Furthermore, it would encourage blackmailers, grafters and viragoes. It would deprive a man of practically all of his property rights.

New York State is a paradise for shrewish and undeserving wives. As things stand here, a man is often compelled to support an undeserving wife during her lifetime, and, children or no children, he is saddled with the numerous obligations set forth in the bill which would treat such a woman after her husband's death as if she had been ever the joy of his life and apple of his eye.

No happily married man has the slightest wish to deprive his wife or his children of their just share of his estate. But this bill would be welcomed by thousands of lazy, selfish and mercenary wives. Every citizen should register his objection to the bill.

Crosstown Cars on Lexington Av.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Replying to a letter of J. B. Gilder in THE TIMES relative to the cars of the Thirty-fourth Street crosstown line of the New York Railways Corporation not carrying passengers while operating on Lexington Avenue:

A number of cars operating in the Thirty-fourth Street crosstown service use the car barn at Ninety-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue and go into and out of service via Lexington Avenue.

The Transit Commission has taken up the matter with the operating company and within a few days a decision will be made which will result either in permitting these cars to carry passengers between Thirty-fourth and Ninety-ninth Streets on Lexington Avenue or equipping them with a conspicuous "no passenger" sign.

MY VALENTINE.

I would not have a Valentine
Bedecked with paper lace
To frame the saucy eyes and curls
That match a peachblow face.

No violet nor daffodil
Nor lustrous satin bow
Can touch my deeply skeptic heart
Nor cause my cheek to glow.

But yesterday, I must admit,
My apathy was smitten,
For—teacup sized—upon my sill
I found a fuzzy kitten

Whose bland indifference was marked
By no intent to win,
And scarcely deigning me a glance,
It chased its shadow in;

And curled itself upon my hearth
Without a single sign
That it was even slightly pleased
To be my Valentine!

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

State Provision Viewed as Preferable to Individual Plans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES today contained two significant items on the subject of old age pensions and dependency which merit considerable thought and reflection.

One is the report of the meeting on industrial pensions held at the Convention of the American Management Association in which there seems to have been unanimous agreement not only as to the value of industrial pensions to the business interests of the nation but also upon the need of such provisions. Edward S. Cowdrick was right in pointing out that "old age dependency has become a greater problem, due to the increased span of life, which not only has not been matched by the lengthening of the working period but that the opposite was true." The statement by another authority that industrial progress necessitates that "old men must be scrapped and must be provided for" has become evident to all.

The problem of the aged worker is, indeed, growing more serious daily, inasmuch as the deadline of employment is constantly being reduced; while, through our progress in sanitation in public health, we have made it possible for more persons to reach old age. Only this morning I received a letter from a man just past 40 years of age, who reports that since he was laid off three months ago he had registered with a number of employment agencies and had advertised daily, but as yet has not been able to procure employment largely because of his age.

Industrial old age pensions would undoubtedly solve the problem of what to do with the aged employes now confronting American industrial concerns. As was pointed out at the sessions of the American Management Association, "a reasonable, liberal and intelligently administered pension exerts a beneficial influence upon the industrial establishment." It provides an easy and humane way of removing an inefficient employe and at the same time it helps to increase the morale of the plant.

While this is all true, it is still important to remember that practically all industrial pension plans in this country provide only for those employes who have been with the particular concern for generally from twenty to thirty years. There are no provisions in these plans for workers who have not given the required period of service to the establishment. Inasmuch as only a small percentage of American workers remain with the same concern for twenty years or more, it is obvious that even if all industrial corporations were to adopt individual pension plans the problem of aged dependency would still remain largely unsolved. The millions of industrial workers who for one reason or another cannot stay with the same corporation for the greater part of their lives would still be totally uncared for. And frequently it is socially harmful to encourage workers to remain with the same corporation when better opportunities may be had with other concerns.

The other item in THE TIMES reports a luncheon held for the purpose of raising a fund of $700,000 to build an addition to the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples. It also is stated that Lawson Purdy, Secretary of the Charity Organization Society, reported "that there are more than 24,000 friendless old men and women in the city, utterly without income or property, who are not being cared for by any agency." Any help given to these needy aged is, of course, most beneficial and a worthwhile undertaking and the building fund should be raised as quickly as possible.

But will this solve the problem of the thousands of needy aged to whom Mr. Purdy referred? It seems obvious that this cannot be met either through additions to the present homes or through the building of new homes for the aged. Old people do not want to go to institutions, do not belong there and should not be so disposed of. What the aged want it not a miserable institutional existence but some means of their own so that they could continue to live in self-respect and among those near and dear to them. Besides, institutional provision is tremendously expensive. It is generally estimated that the cost of building an institution is at least $4,000 per bed. To provide homes for the number of persons estimated by Mr. Purdy as dependent would require an initial outlay of $96,000,000, without at all figuring the tremendous costs of institutional maintenance.

Only a State or national program of old age pensions or insurance could efficiently, inexpensively and humanely relieve this growing problem of old age dependency. Such plans are now in operation in every industrial country on earth. Of the populous countries, only China, India and the United States are still without such provisions.

The Utility of Corncobs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Whenever I take THE TIMES in hand—and I am a steady reader of the paper also at home, in Budapest, Hungary—I have always the satisfaction of finding something new in the way of invention and progress.

I experienced this satisfaction on reading today the editorial, "The Farm Cycle," concerning a report from Professor O. S. Sweeney of Iowa State College on the great variety of uses for cornstalks and corncobs.

It will be of some interest to your readers to know that in the Dorner process cornstalks and corncobs are very effectively utilized in the manufacture of pulp for paper and rayon. This process fully corroborates Professor Sweeney's report. According to my information, there exist already factories which have put Professor Sweeney's suggestion into practice, and it is to be hoped that the usefulness of what was hitherto considered and treated as waste will find broader recognition and application, and will ultimately result in a saving of millions of dollars. FEARS EXTINCTION OF SCHOOL LECTURE

Official of the Bureau Asser Appropriation Has Been Cut to $11,000 This Year.

Thomas Points to Large Attendan In 1927 in Urging That City Continue Program.

The Lecture Bureau of the Boa of Education has fallen upon ev days and is faced with probable e tinction if the gradual paring dow of annual appropriations for work is continued, it was learne yesterday.

Wendell M. Thomas, Assistant D rector of Lectures, said that appr priations for the payment of le turers' fees had been cut from $8 000 in 1916 to $11,000 for the curre year, with the result that while thi teen years ago 200 lectures were b ing given every week, only eleven week are being offered this year.

Despite additional recent attra tions like the radio, there is still large number of persons who patro ize the board's free lectures, Mr Thomas said. The average attend ance during last Fall was 244 pe sons, lectures given on stormy nigh being counted. This average somewhat higher than in previou years and justified a more generou support of the bureau, according the Assistant Director.

"With the ever changing views o what constitutes true history," M Thomas said, "with the changin views on the very fundamentals science, on questions of internation law, commerce, psychology and ed cation, it might seem to the ord nary lay mind that there is mo need now of disseminating well-d gested instruction from the lectu platform than ever before.

"It is worth considering what th Lecture Bureau, with its service r duced from 200 lectures a week 1914-1915 to over a million auditor distributed through 176 localities, the present service of eleven lecture per week in nine localities, is eve now doing toward the inculcation right thinking in the minds of i adherents."

Mr. Thomas gave a long list of sul jects offered by the bureau rangin from literature, history, social sul jects, psychology, science and geo raphy to themes of health and voic cultivation. He added that "th types of lecturers who have give the lectures are such as to warra the assumption that the subject were treated in a masterly way."

The problem of the lingering exi tence of the bureau was recognize in the annual report for 1925-19 of William J. O'Shea, Superintende of Schools. Dr. O'Shea wrote th that the alternatives of abolishin the bureau or reconstructing "with due regard to present pro gressive conditions and modern in ventions" presented themselves. H expressed himself as opposed to th abolition of the service.

MANNING RECEIVES GIFTS FROM BELGIUM

Prince de Ligne Presents a Plaque From King and Lanterns to St. John's Cathedral.

ENVOY THANKS US FOR AID

Bishop Eulogizes Monarch for Brave Stand in War and Also Lauds Cardinal Mercier.

On behalf of King Albert of Belgium, Prince Albert de Ligne, Belgian Ambassador to the United States, presented yesterday afternoon to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine a porcelain plaque representing "The Descent From the Cross," and on behalf of the Belgian Government presented two old hammered brass lanterns of Flemish design.

Bishop Manning, in accepting the gifts, praised King Albert for his war record and also eulogized the late Cardinal Mercier, Roman Catholic leader in the Malines conferences, looking toward reunion of the Anglican with the Roman Catholic Church.

There were more than 3,000 persons in the cathedral. The presentations took place in the centre of the chancel on the plaque resting on an easel and the lanterns standing on a small purple-covered table.

Tells of King's Interest.

Prince Albert unveiled the plaque which had been covered with the colors of Belgium. He stood facing Bishop Manning.

"Right Reverend Sir," he said, "his Majesty the King, moved by his sentiments of friendship toward the Bishop and people of this diocese, desires to manifest his sympathetic interest in your pious work and to leave some part, however small it may be, in contributing to the adornment of your Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine.

"He has, therefore, charged me with the honor of asking you, on his behalf, to accept as a small token of good-will and gratitude a plaque representing 'The Descent From the Cross,' which was formerly in the private chapel of his Majesty's father, the late Count of Flanders, and which his Majesty has chosen as his personal offering on account of its intimate association with the memories of his early life.

"At the same time the Belgian Government also desires to present a mark of grateful appreciation of the innumerable benefits conferred upon the Belgian nation by the people of your diocese and of your Church. For this purpose my Government has sent two lanterns, of old Flemish design, which I beg that you will accept for the use of your cathedral.

"These offerings, Sir, are but a small indication of the sentiments of friendship and gratitude which animate my King, my Government and the whole Belgian people. We shall always remember that you, Sir, were among the first to champion and vindicate the righteousness of our cause.

"We shall be ever grateful for the moral support and the material aid given to the stricken people of our country by the men and women of his diocese, as well as by those of every creed and faith throughout the land. Not shall we forget the valor of your troops who came to fight side by side with ours as comrades in the victory by which our soil was liberated. You were our help in time of trouble. You were our comrades in war."

Manning Tells of Pleasure.

Bishop Manning then made a brief address, accepting the gifts.

"We value these gifts beyond measure because they express the kind feeling of your King and your Government, and their interest in this cathedral, which we are erecting as a great house of prayer for all people, and we value them also because of the special place which your heroic country holds in the hearts of all Americans.

"Throughout the centuries, in many a struggle, your people have borne their brave part, and when the supreme test came in the years of the war such as we pray may never be seen again, the example of your nation thrilled the world, and the soul of your people found its full expression in the example of your King.

"Among all the leaders in that great world struggle there are two who stand alone, and both of them belong to your nation. One of them is Albert, beloved, honored and trusted both as man and as a King. And the other is that true man of God and noble chief shepherd of souls, Cardinal Mercier, who in his closing years won more deeply than ever the love and admiration of the Christian world by his labors in the cause of Christian reunion, and in God's own good time those labors will bear their fruit."

As he finished his talk, Bishop Manning stepped forward and extended his hand to Prince Albert. The two grasped hands and the organ played "The Star-Spangled Banner," followed by the national anthem of Belgium.

General Sherrill on Crutches.

General Charles H. Sherrill, Chairman of the Historical and Patriotic Societies' Division of the Committee for Completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, was brought into the cathedral in a wheel chair. A few weeks ago he injured a foot. During the ceremony he stood on crutches at the side of Prince Albert.

The Ambassador was escorted by a guard from the 106th Regiment, Brooklyn, under the command of Lieut. Col. L. C. Brennan and ten other officers who have been decorated by the Belgian Government. Bishop Manning wore on his episcopal robes a decoration received from King Albert some years ago.

In the party which accompanied the Ambassador to the cathedral were the Princess de Ligne, Princess Elisabeth, their daughter; General Sherrill, Ormond G. Smith, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Bayles, Mr. and Mrs. George Post and Lieutenant Cartier, attaché at the Belgian Embassy. Dean Howard Chandler Robbins, who led the devotions, included a prayer for King Albert, following a prayer for the President of the United States.

Obituary Notes.

OTTO A. DRAUDT, retired credit man and with a New York mercantile house, died Saturday at his home, 136 Hawthorne Place, Brooklyn, in his eighty-first year, after a long illness. He left a wife, Miss Wilhelmina Draudt, who is a sister of General George W. Goethals, and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, and burial will be in the Goethals Cemetery in Prospect Park.

First Sergeant JOHN J. McCARTHY, U. S. A., who served twenty-five years in the regular army, died yesterday at his home, 508 Ninety-third Street, Brooklyn, after a long illness. He was born at Far Rockaway, L. I., sixty years ago. He enlisted in the American Legion post at Fort Hamilton and Bay Ridge. His wife and two sisters survive. Preacher Backs Will Rogers For Democratic Nomination

Preaching in the Baptist Temple, Third Avenue and Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, last night, the Rev. Russell M. Brougher threw his support to Will Rogers for the Democratic nomination for President.

"Knowing Will Rogers as intimately as I do," said Mr. Brougher, "I am prepared to say that the Democrats might look a great deal further and do a great deal worse.

"In view of all the divisions and subdivisions in the Democratic Party, it is going to take a man with a sense of humor to pull them together and secure the cooperation that will elect any man to office. I am thoroughly convinced in my own mind that the Democratic Party can never be united in nominating Al Smith or McAdoo or any other pronouncedly dry or wet candidate.

"It might seem like a joke, but when he got down to business, making speeches over the country, the Republicans would find that Mr. Rogers was no joke."

PLUNKETT TELLS OF PERIL.

He Fears "Deception Under Guise of Universal Brotherhood."

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, warned this country against "deception under the guise of universal brotherhood" and reiterated his belief in a "strong nationalism and patriotism" in a speech last night at a Lincoln Day service in historic old Plymouth Congregational Church, Orange Street, Brooklyn, where Lincoln worshiped.

Admiral Plunkett's address was preceded by the ceremony of decorating the flag on the pew occupied by Lincoln. Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, recently assigned to Governors Island, followed the Admiral's remarks with the assertion that "nobody is going to take care of us unless we take care of ourselves and if we have anything to fight for we have got to be ready to fight for it."

The address by Admiral Plunkett, who retires Wednesday, was greeted by several outbursts of handclapping or ripples of tittering.

"During the World War," he said, "it was said civilization was in the balance. That was not true. Civilization never was in the balance, no matter who won the war. It is very important to remember that.

"Why were the newspapers in one accord about George? Where is the spirit of Washington? It was not there. It was the other spirit—'now we have got you down, we are going to hold you down.' Not in our national life, since 1812, have we ever come to a sadder situation than this and we are asked to forget America and think of some international things—Lord knows what—to give up our patriotism and change our history. What are we going to do with what has been handed to us? You cannot open your mouth now to speak for your country before it is headlined 'preaching hate.'

"We have come to a desperate situation in this country. Our opinions are being formed for us by a portion, and the most intellectual portion, of our press—the truth is not in them."

BABE RUTH MADE AN ELK.

Initiated Into Lodge Here With Nineteen Others.

Babe Ruth, the home run king, ran the gauntlet of Elkdom last night at B. P. O. E. Lodge 1, the mother lodge of the fraternity, and was crowned at the home plate with the emblematic antlers of the order. The lodge was crowded with thousand "Brother Bills" who watched the initiation and then cheered and congratulated the Babe as one of their own.

"I'm glad I went through," said the Babe as he was leaving, "and I think I met a lot of fine fellows."

The Babe was escorted into the lodge room by the man who proposed him for membership, Murray Hulbert, former President of the Board of Aldermen.

In the class of twenty candidates were Charles A. Harnett, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, and Mark Eisner, a trustee of City College.

BEBE DANIELS RECOVERING.

Bruises and Scratched Back Her Only Injuries in Movie Mishap.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12 (AP).—Bebe Daniels, screen actress, who was injured in an accident yesterday during the filming of a picture, was resting easily today, and physicians said she would be able to resume work soon.

It was feared at first that Miss Daniels had suffered internal injuries and broken bones, but X-ray plates showed that she suffered nothing worse than a sprained back and bruises.

The accident resulted when an improvised Pullman car, mounted on a truck, in which Miss Daniels was riding, was swept off its moving foundation by an overhanging tree branch.

Jewish Guild Memorial Services.

The annual memorial services of the Jewish Theatrical Guild of America will be held next Sunday afternoon at the B'nai Jeshurun Synagogue, 257 West Eighty-eighth Street. William Morris, President of the organization, will preside.

Members of the Jewish Theatrical Guild who have died during the past year include Marcus Loew and Sam Bernard.

COL. C. C. HEARN, WAR VETERAN, DEAD

Served as Brigadier General With American Expeditionary Forces in France.

HAD DIVERSIFIED TRAINING

Last Assignment Was Command of Coast Artillery in Georgia—Helped Rescue Antinoe's Crew.

ATLANTA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Colonel Clint C. Hearn, U. S. A., retired, who served as a Brigadier General with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War, died at his home here last night.

Colonel Hearn was born in Weston, Texas, on March 29, 1866, and was retired from the army in May, 1926. After a course in the public schools of Texas, Colonel Hearn entered the Military Academy at West Point, from which he graduated in 1890. He later spent four years in an artillery school and in the Army War College.

He was promoted to a colonelcy in 1917 and in August of that year to a Brigadier Generalship, at which rank he was retired in June, 1919. Shortly afterward he reentered the army, serving for nearly seven years. Colonel Hearn was a member of the Army and Navy Clubs of New York, Washington and Manila and the Chevy Chase of Washington. He is survived by a widow, three daughters and a son.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Colonel Hearn received an exceptionally thorough and diversified military education, for in addition to the schools already mentioned he attended the School of Submarine Defense and the General Staff College. In 1922 he was appointed Chief of Staff of the Non-Divisional Group of Reserve Units in the Third Corps Area. His last assignment was the command of the Coast Artillery of the Fifth District, with headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga.

The Colonel was a passenger on the liner Roosevelt in January, 1926, when she went to the aid of the British freighter Antinoe and rescued. Captain Reid of the Roosevelt adopted successfully Colonel Hearn's suggestions for firing the projectile carrying a line to the Antinoe.

MUSTAPHA KEMAL ILL, REPORTS IN PARIS SAY

Turkish President's Condition Is Declared Precarious, Due to Overwork.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Mustapha Kemal, President of Turkey, is in an extremely precarious state of health, which is giving grave concern to his intimates, and those of the Government circles, it was learned tonight in Paris from a dependable source.

Word has been received here that Kemal Pasha a short time ago suffered a fainting spell, which in consideration of the great physical strain to which his extraordinary activity subjects him would not have been deemed alarming. But since this occurred the President's health has been steadily weakening and is causing great alarm in his entourage.

Owing to the fact that Kemal Pasha in his own personality practically constitutes the whole life and power of the present régime, his illness is considered as jeopardizing the entire political situation in Turkey. Those close to the President are said to feel that the system he has built up is not yet strong enough to endure without the strong hand of its leader at the helm, and thus far there has been no provision for what would occur in the event of his disappearance.

Since he came into power he has not spared himself at any time, but has given all his energies to the manifold undertakings he has personally directed in the reorganization of the Turkish State. He is a man of tremendous vitality, and it is hoped that he will overcome the present illness, which the doctors attribute to overtaxing of his strength.

EARTHQUAKE LORE GROWS.

Prof. Longwell of Yale Describes Use of Seismograph.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 12.—Our store of information about the interior of the earth is being increased by persistent study of seismograph records, Professor Chester A. Longwell of Yale University says in the Yale Scientific Magazine, published by students of the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale.

In describing how a seismograph records the earth's vibrations, he said:

"Three distinct kinds of impulses move outward from the locus of a shock; two kinds penetrating into the earth and the third traveling around the circumference. One of the through-waves, called the primary or longitudinal wave, travels with a velocity of several miles a second. Arriving at the position of a distant seismograph, it produces the first preliminary tremor, making a slight vibration on the record.

"The other through-wave, called the secondary, or transverse wave, moves at a distinctly slower rate and reaches the seismograph later than the primary, to set up the second preliminary tremor. The third impulse, traversing the longer route along the curvature of the earth, is the last to reach the station. This wave is the most vigorous of the three and sets the arm of the seismograph swinging widely. After these long waves are past, the recording needle is kept in motion for some time by a succession of complex waves.

"The two preliminary tremors do not make a spectacular part of the record, but they are very important, as the time interval between receipt of the two impulses gives an accurate measure of the distance they have traversed. By determining the distance from three separate stations and drawing a circle about each station with the proper distance as a radius, a common point of intersection is found, giving the exact location of the shock."

Concert to Aid Hungary Society.

The only New York concert this season of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra at Carnegie Hall tonight will be given in aid of the Hungary Society of America. The orchestra, under the direction of Fritz Reiner, will offer a program of contemporary Hungarian music. Bela Bartok, composer-pianist, will be the soloist. The Hungarian Minister and Countess László Széchényi are among the patrons and patronesses.

FRENCH DIPLOMAT, JEAN DOULCET, DEAD

Ambassador to the Vatican Dies Suddenly—Pope Sends Condolences to His Family.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 12.—Jean Doulcet, French Ambassador to the Holy See, died suddenly early this morning. His untimely end shocked Vatican circles, especially the Pope, who requested the Substitute Secretary of State, Mgr. Borgoncini Pizzardo, to convey his condolences to the Ambassador's family. Before celebrating mass today on the sixth anniversary of his coronation the Pope offered special prayers for the deceased Ambassador.

Doulcet yesterday morning attended the opening of the Pontifical Archaeological Institute, appearing on that occasion to be in perfect health. In the evening he felt slightly indisposed and was obliged to cancel a dinner engagement. During the night he had a high fever. Death came so suddenly, in the morning that there was barely time to summon a priest to give absolution and extreme unction.

Death was attributed to influenza and heart disease.

Jean Doulcet was born on August 5, 1866, in Falaiseau, France, and received his education at the Lycée Condorcet and the Ecole des Sciences Politiques. He began his long diplomatic career in 1890 as Secretary to the French Embassy in London. After holding similar posts in Lisbon and Madrid he spent six years, from 1912 to 1918, in Russia as Minister Plenipotentiary, associated successively with the French Ambassadors Delcassé, Paléologue and Noulens.

In 1919 M. Doulcet was Minister to Norway and in the next year went to Rome on a special mission to reestablish diplomatic relations between France and the Holy See. In 1921 he was Minister to Hungary.

EX-JUDGE G. M. SHIPMAN.

Prominent New Jersey Railroad Attorney Dies at 78 Years.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Feb. 12.—Former Judge George Marshall Shipman, 78 years old, died at his home today. He had been ill for several weeks.

Judge Shipman was admitted to the Warren County bar in 1873. He was appointed Judge in 1883 by Governor Griggs and was for fifteen years on the bench. He retired from active practice of law ten years ago. He was one of the leading lawyers in New Jersey and was attorney for the Delaware, Lackawanna and the Lehigh and Hudson railroads.

Judge Shipman retired from the Presidency of the Belvidere National Bank three years ago. He was a Trustee of the Blair Academy at Blairstown, a Ruling Elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Belvidere and an active supporter of the New Jersey Children's Home at Trenton.

His widow, one daughter and two sons survive.

REV. N. DUNHAM SYCKEL.

Assistant in House of Prayer in Newark Dies in Florida.

The Rev. N. Dunham Syckel of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Newark, assistant in the House of Prayer in Newark, died Saturday at Clearwater, Fla. Services will be held in the Calvary Episcopal Church, Summit, N. J., at 10:30 Thursday morning. Burial will be in Bound Brook, N. J., Mr. Syckel's birthplace. Mr. Syckel graduated at Rutgers in 1895 and from the General Theological Seminary four years later. He was ordained a deacon in 1892 by Bishop Scarborough and advanced to the priesthood the next year by Bishop Wilmer.

After holding several brief charges in the South he was for four years vicar of St. Michael's Chapel in Philadelphia. Later he taught theology at Nashotah, Wis., and was rector of St. Thomas's Parish at Hamilton, N. Y. He belonged to the Society of Colonial Wars in Pennsylvania and the Mayflower Society of New Jersey.

MAJOR W. L. BROWER DEAD.

Head of Sons of America of New York Dies on Inspection Tour.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 12 (AP).—Major William L. Brower of Brooklyn, head of the commandery, uniform rank of the patriotic order Sons of America of New York State, died at the Langwell Hotel here today at 5 P. M. of apoplexy. He was on a tour of inspection of the State. The body is here awaiting the arrival of his widow and son.

William McCoach.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 12.—William McCoach, for the last eight years a City Councilman and prior to that a city Treasurer and Collector of Internal Revenue, died of the grippe at his home here this afternoon following an illness of less than two weeks. He was in his seventy-fifth year.

For more than forty years Mr. McCoach was the Republican leader of the Thirtieth Ward and had spent nearly half a century in active political and business life. He was a member of both the old Common and Select Councils. He was affiliated with many fraternal organizations and was a Past Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Sons of Temperance, a national association. Mr. McCoach is survived by his widow and two sons.

Frederic W. Schultz.

Frederic W. Schultz, Vice President of Catlin & Co., 345 Broadway, dry goods commission merchants, died last evening at his home, Meadows Wood Drive, Greenwich, Conn., of heart disease. He was born in this city sixty-three years ago and spent his whole career in the dry goods business. Before going to Catlin & Co. in 1921 he had been a partner in Barnhart & Schultz, wholesale dry goods merchants.

Dr. Edward Everett Mackenzie.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 12.—Dr. Edward Everett Mackenzie, aged 66, identified in movements for advancement of the science of medicine, died last night. Taken ill a week ago, his condition did not become serious until Friday. Mrs. Mackenzie, who was also prominent in Anti-Vivisection circles, was summoned from California, where she was visiting her mother, but is now on her way home.

Dr. Samuel Shugert Adams.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—Dr. Samuel Shugert Adams, for thirty years Chief of the Department of Medicine of Georgetown University Medical School, died today from a heart ailment. He was 70 years old.

F. E. CALLAWAY SR., COTTON MAN, DIES

Was Founder of a Large Group of Mills in Georgia Bearing His Name.

BEGAN LIFE AS A PORTER

Borrowed Money at 18 to Start a Store—Vice President of the World Cotton Conference.

LA GRANGE, Ga., Feb. 12 (AP).—Fuller E. Callaway Sr., founder of the Callaway group of cotton mills, died here today at his home. Hills and Dales, one of the show places of Georgia.

The position of Mr. Callaway among American cotton manufacturers may be gauged from his selection in May, 1919, as Chairman of the first commission ever sent from this country to study textile conditions in Europe and to discuss with foreign manufacturers the relations among the textile industries throughout the world. In the following October, at New Orleans, when the World Cotton Conference was made a permanent organization, Mr. Callaway was chosen Vice President for the United States.

Mr. Callaway was born fifty-seven years ago in the town where he died. He started as a porter in a local dry goods store, and he was 18 years old when he went into business by himself, using borrowed money to launch a 5-and-10-cent store. This developed into a department store and a wholesale dry goods business. He did not become a cotton manufacturer until 1900. In the next twenty-five years he organized a powerful group of mills and made himself one of the industrial leaders of the South, frequently sought by governmental authorities to aid public causes with his personal influence and ability.

In 1918 Mr. Callaway served on the Governing Board of the Field Division of the Council of National Defense, and in October, 1919, on appointment of President Wilson, he represented the public at the Conference on Industrial Relations in Washington. He was named by vote of Southern mill officials in September, 1921, as one of the seven leaders of Southern textile industry.

N. R. LINDHEIM EULOGIZED.

Dr. Wise Pays Tribute at Funeral of Manufacturer and Zionist.

Funeral services for Norvin R. Lindheim, Vice President of the Eitingon Schild Fur Company of 220 West Thirtieth Street, were held yesterday morning at the Free Synagogue House, Sixty-eighth Street at Central Park West, by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise. A thousand persons crowded the edifice.

"Norvin Lindheim was fine in the midst of favoring circumstances," said Dr. Wise in the course of his tribute, "and finer in the dark hour of adversity. With spirit unbowed and soul unembittered, he gave himself in the closing years of his life to an industry in which he came to play a commanding part, which spelled service.

"More than that he, together with his wife, the head of the Hadassah, gave clear thinking and high purpose to the cause of the rebuilding of Palestine. Such is the high character of the Zionist cause that it lifts up all who share in bearing its burdens. Norvin Lindheim gave himself with such unselfish dedication to this cause as to distinguish him in the service of his people and the translation of its dreams into reality."

The honorary pallbearers were Judge Julian W. Mack, Motty Eltington, Sol Schild, Philip B. Fouke, A. N. Leventhal, Joseph Ullmann, Michael Rolander, Allan Obermann, Arthur Garfield Hays, Milton L. Bernstein, S. Walter Kaufmann, Samuel J. Rosensohn, Abraham Tulin and Charles M. Guggenheimer Jr.

Relatives present were Mr. Lindheim's widow, the former Erma Levy; Their children, Norvin Jr., Hortense, Richard, Donald and Stephen, and Mr. Lindheim's mother, Mrs. Hortense Lindheim.

The body was cremated. Burial will be later in B'nai Jeshurun Cemetery, Cypress Hill's.

PROF. JAMES LOCKE DEAD.

Author, Chemist and Teacher Dies at His Home in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 11 (AP).—Professor James Locke, author, chemist, teacher and journalist, died at his home here today, of angina pectoris. He is survived by his widow and a son, John Locke. He was a graduate of the 1890 class of Yale University.

The career of James Locke as a teacher was blighted by ill health a year after his appointment as Professor of Chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1902. Thereafter he devoted himself to writing articles on chemistry for scientific journals, short stories for popular magazines and novels. He lived for many years in Lewis County, N. Y.

Professor Locke was born in Buffalo 58 years ago. Five years after he graduated from Yale he took a Doctorate of Philosophy at Heidelberg. He was an instructor in chemistry at Yale from 1897 to 1902. His best known novels are "The Stem of the Crimson Dahlia," and "The Plotting of Frances Wern." He translated Menschutkin's Analytical Chemistry. In 1900 he married Anna Richards of New Haven.

WILLIAM J. WRIGHT.

Ex-Deputy Commissioner of Correction Dies Suddenly.

William J. Wright, 65 years old, died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday afternoon while visiting a friend, Captain William H. Beers, at his home at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn. He appeared in the best of health until just as he entered the dining room for luncheon when he fell to the floor and died a few moments later. Military surgeons who were called by Captain Beers pronounced his death due to heart disease.

Mr. Wright was a Tammany leader for a long while in the Thirty-first Assembly District and a Deputy Commissioner of Correction under the late Mayor Gaynor. He was a retired shoe manufacturer.

Mr. Wright is survived by a son, Martin J. Wright, and a daughter, Miss Isabella Wright, both of this city. He made his home with the latter at 1,035 Seventh Avenue.

REV. EDWARD S. BROCK DIES

A Member of Faculty of St. Peter's College, Jersey City.

The Rev. Edward A. Brock, Jesuit and a member of the Faculty of St. Peter's College of Jersey City, died Saturday night in St. Vincent's Hospital, Manhattan, after two years of illness.

Father Brock was born Jan. 1, 1870, in County Galway, Ireland, and came to this country at the age of 10. He was educated in the public schools of Boston and on Aug. 13, 1887, entered the Jesuit Novitiate at Frederick, Md. Cardinal Gibbons ordained him in June, 1902, and he was appointed as teacher at St. Peter's. He has been attached to the faculty at that college most of the time since then, but has also taught at Fordham University, Georgetown, Holy Cross, Manresa Hall and St. Andrew's Novitiate.

There will be a high mass of requiem in St. Peter's Church, Jersey City, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in the Novitiate Cemetery at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. There survive a sister, a niece and four nephews, all Jesuits.

ROBERT COSTER DEAD.

Connoisseur and Autograph Collector Dies at 77 Years.

Robert Coster of New York and Belmar, N. J., connoisseur and collector, died suddenly at the Hotel Emerson Saturday. He was 77 years old, and had spent the greater part of his life here, coming from England while a boy.

Mr. Coster was the eldest son of Eliza Wilkinson and Thomas Butler Coster. He was educated at the College Chapel, Paris, and thereafter was associated with his uncle, William Boore, a London art dealer. It was through this connection that he became interested in the collecting of rare autographs and manuscripts. He specialized in Lincoln and Civil War documents.

Mr. Coster is survived by one nephew, Paul Coster Jr., and two nieces, Mildred Coster and Alice Coster Webster, all of New York City. Burial will be in Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery.

Captain Israel I. Snow.

ROCKLAND, Me., Feb. 12 (AP).—Captain Israel I. Snow, 85, one of the best known of Maine shipbuilders, whose schooners have sailed the world around, died here today after a short illness. He was President of the shipbuilding company which bears his name. He served as Mayor of this city in 1906.

$750,000 GRAFT SEEN ON PAVING IN QUEENS

J. H. Clark Jr., After Survey of Bids There and in Brooklyn, Charges 70% Discrepancy.

GIVES NAMES OF THE FIRMS

Finds Same Concerns Did Work in Both Boroughs in 1927—Cooperates With Buckner.

NEW DEMANDS FOR SPEED

Klein Says He Plans Plea for Action by Legislature, Fearing Scudder Will Be Blocked in Courts.

New charges of graft in Queens public works were made yesterday simultaneously with fresh demands for speeding up the investigation.

John Holley Clark Jr. of counsel for Alderman George U. Harvey of Flushing made public the results of a survey of 100 paving bids in Queens and 100 in Brooklyn last year. He concluded from this analysis that $750,000 graft had been levied upon Queens paving contracts during 1927 by "rigging" the bids, which he found were 70 per cent. higher for asphalt and 25 per cent. higher for concrete than in Brooklyn. Emory R. Buckner, special counsel to Justice Scudder, said he and Mr. Clark were cooperating, and that he expected Mr. Clark to turn over his facts to the Scudder inquiry.

Henry H. Klein, also of counsel for Alderman Harvey, author of the charges against Borough President Connolly of Queens, announced he was contemplating a request to the Legislature to appoint an investigating committee, because of the court actions with which Max D. Steuer and other lawyers have delayed the Scudder inquiry. Edward Rozett of Queens, announcing that he represented twelve community councils, asked Governor Smith to direct Justice Scudder to commence public hearings at once, inasmuch as Alderman Harvey has asserted he has enough evidence to warrant Mr. Connolly's removal.

Charges on Paving Bid.

Mr. Clark's statement on paving bids said in part:

"An analysis of paving bids in Queens and Brooklyn reveals a remarkable state of affairs. Taking the bids on a hundred contracts in Queens for 1927 and a like number in Brooklyn during the same period shows conclusively that the Queens bids are rigged.

"The total amount involved in the Queens contracts was $3,900,000, of which sum concrete accounted for $850,000 and asphalt for $1,250,000. The total for the two items, therefore, was $2,100,000 or over two-thirds of the whole. The balance was for sidewalks, curbs and so forth.

"In Brooklyn the contracts totaled $2,200,000, of which concrete and asphalt accounted for $1,200,000, or a little over half.

"The average price bid for concrete in Queens was $10.75 per cubic yard and in Brooklyn only $8.72 per cubic yard. The Queens price, that is, was 25 per cent. higher than the Brooklyn price. The average price bid for asphalt in Queens was $2.50 a square yard. In Brooklyn it was only $1.47 a square yard. The low bidders in Queens, therefore, were 70 per cent. higher than those in Brooklyn.

Says Same Contractors Bid.

"The most remarkable part of it is that the ring that got practically all the contracts in Queens also bid in Brooklyn and bid much lower. The contractors who bid lowest on the greatest amount of highway work in Queens were the Highway Improvement and Repair Company and Borough Asphalt Company. Each was low bidder on nearly $600,000 of paving contracts. The Highway Improvement and Repair Company is the company which was a dummy bidder on sewer contracts which it immediately assigned to others. Its chief figure, I understand, is Cliff Turner, who is Phillips's [John M. Phillips] man and has been evading subpoenas by staying in New Jersey.

"From June to December, 1927, this company bid on thirty contracts in Queens. For concrete its bid once was $10 and twice $15 per cubic yard. The rest of its bids ranged between $10.50 and $12. In Brooklyn it bid twenty-three times in the same period. Its bids there ranged generally from $9 to $10 with the great majority under $10. Why this difference when its plant is almost on the line between the two boroughs?

"On asphalt the same situation existed. In Queens it bid generally from $2.50 to $2.70 a square yard. In Brooklyn its bids ranged from $1.70 to $1.80 in the main.

"Again why this difference? Queens and Brooklyn are part of the same alluvial plain. It cannot cost $1 more a cubic yard to lay concrete in Queens than in Brooklyn. Nor can it cost $1 more a square yard to lay asphalt. The extra dollar went somewhere.

"If Queens had got its concrete and asphalt as cheaply as Brooklyn it would have saved in 1927 $160,000 on concrete and $550,000 on asphalt, or about three-quarters of a million dollars.

"It will do no good to remove Connolly if the only result is to enable Connolly's Alderman to elect Connolly's nominee. The investigation will only be of value in so far as it indicates some way of putting a stop to the whole business.

"It is up to Governor Smith to see that this result is accomplished."

Fears Blocking of Inquiry.

Mr. Klein said he also wants the Governor to go ahead with the investigation, but fears that the lawyers on the other side will prevent the Governor's appointee from accomplishing anything. A legislative committee, he pointed out, would have much broader powers, and the defense could not delay and obstruct it.

He said he feared that if the Legislature should adjourn next month without some definite action having been taken, either by it or by the Governor, the situation might become entirely deadlocked, with the Scudder inquiry tied up in the courts and no one else available with authority to proceed.

Mr. Klein charged that "prominent Queens politicians, both Democrats and Republicans," were trying to stall the Scudder inquiry. If they succeed, he said, a legislative committee should be ready to start work immediately.

Mr. Rozett said the community councils he represented sought immediate hearings by Justice Scudder in order to give Alderman Harvey a chance to present evidence in support of his charges. He added that he had no fault to find with the sewer inquiry as far as it has gone, but that the delay was retarding progress in Queens.

He also asserted that the city was losing $100,000 a month in financing the cost of the $16,000,000 Jamaica sewer system because of delay in confirming assessments for the system pending the conclusion of the inquiry.

Mr. Rozett is Vice President of the Queens Community Council, composed of twelve neighborhood councils, and is President of the Elmhurst Manor Community Council.

BABY ELEPHANT WAITS COYLY FOR VALENTINE

But Sister, at the Bronx Zoo, Also Is Wistful, for Other Holidays Brought Disillusionment.

Sister, the schoolgirl Indian elephant at the Bronx Zoo, is approaching her third holiday with qualms and trepidation. Twice has Sister been disappointed, the first time on Thanksgiving Day, when she expected something great to happen. Then, again, on Christmas Eve, she lay awake all night expecting Santa Claus to bring her something nice, but all she got the next day was a whimsical look from Head Keeper John Toomey, who understands elephants without being able to do much about it.

So Sister's two holidays have brought disillusionment. Her third will come tomorrow, and she is making ready for it in a spirit of wistful uncertainty. (New Year's Day didn't count this year for Sister, as the pachydermatic Jan. 1 only comes once every decade.)

Sister's third holiday will be, if you haven't already guessed it, St. Valentine's Day. She has been making elephant's eyes at the young buck elephants in contiguous cages, especially at Pete, the sophisticated high school elephant, who will be of college freshman age next year. She was born a valentine, and if not a heart-shaped valentine, at least a remembrance in the shape of that ruff which surrounds the neck of the frilled lizard. Sister saw a frilled lizard on her way to America, and that ruff is the nearest thing to a heart-shaped valentine that she has glimpsed.

Mr. Toomey is skeptical about Sister's third holiday. He hates to see Sister disappointed a third time, but he knows how Peter tried to shake Sister's belief in Santa Claus. He hasn't much faith in Pete's remembering her on Valentine's Day.

Nevertheless, Mr. Toomey does his best. He gave Pete some extra hay yesterday and motioned toward Sister's cage. "Give this little elephant a hand," he whispered to Pete. "I'll pay for the valentine."

WOMAN DIES AS FIRE RAZES PLATT HOME

50-Year-Old Servant Is Fatally Burned Trying to Put Out Flames in Westfield, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Christine Nolte, 50 years old, a servant at "High Orchard," the Westfield home of John Platt, gave her life late last night trying to beat out a fire which eventually destroyed the house and all the valuable pieces of art it contained.

The house, a three-story structure of stone, brick and timber, was on the top of a little plateau, several hundred yards away from the nearest main road and just on the boundary of Mountainside. When the firemen were called, some time after the blaze first was discovered, they had difficulty in getting more than a thin stream of water through the long hoses.

Mrs. Nolte's room was on the second floor. It is believed that she discovered the flames, which had apparently started on the third floor or on the roof. Her screams as she tried to beat them out aroused the household, and Mr. Platt telephoned in the alarm. The woman kept at her task until forcibly carried out by Amos Allen, a fireman, who then took her to the home of Dr. F. A. Kinch in Westfield. She died a few moments later as a result of burns.

Firemen also rescued two young sons of S. A. Wolff, the son-in-law of Mr. Platt, who were in bed on the second floor of the building. The younger of the pair, a baby, was slightly burned. The other members of household were able to get out without assistance.

All paintings, brica-brac and curios which Mr. Platt had collected throughout almost a lifetime of travel were destroyed. Some of them had been shown at various times at the Metropolitan Museum in New York and elsewhere. Their value and that of the house, itself, could not be ascertained today.

The fire ajoined the premises of the Children's Country Home, where about fifty children are convalescing. They were assured by firemen and nurses that there was no danger.

PARIS DIVORCE DEAL FOUGHT IN SUIT HERE

Hammerslough, Whose Wife Got Decree, Seeks to Annul Agreement to Support Her.

TRIAL TO TEST NOVEL ISSUE

Husband Contends That Going to France to Evade Our Law Is Against Public Policy.

A novel suit to determine whether an agreement for alimony arising from a French divorce is valid in New York State will be heard shortly in the Supreme Court. It is based in part on testimony taken before the United States Vice Consul in Paris in an action by Mrs. Ruth O'Neill against her former husband, Alexander J. Hammerslough, real estate owner and manufacturer, of 10 Thomas Street, from whom she got a decree in France in 1922. Both the plaintiff and her former husband have remarried.

The suit is brought to collect a balance of $10,291 due under an agreement made on June 12, 1922, just before the decree was signed, by which Mr. Hammerslough agreed to pay his former wife $5,000 a year for life in the event of her remarriage. She married again on Oct. 8, 1923. After making payments of $6,374 the defendant refused to pay any more, with the result that the action was filed a year ago for the sum unpaid up to that time.

Husband Holds It Void.

The answer in the case brings into question the validity in New York of an agreement arising from the action of New York residents in going to Paris and submitting to the jurisdiction of the French courts to be divorced under circumstances asserted to be against public policy under the New York decisions.

Mr. Hammerslough alleges that the contract in the case is not only "contrary to public policy" but is illegal. He asserts that it was made under an agreement by which he was to go to Paris and submit to the jurisdiction of the French courts so that she might obtain a divorce on grounds not recognized by the laws of New York State.

On the ground that Guggenheimer, Strasser & Meyer, attorneys for Mr. Hammerslough, might try to prove that her Paris attorneys, Coudert Brothers, had acted for both parties and had engaged the lawyer who acted for him, William J. Carr, counsel for Mrs. O'Neill, obtained an order to take the testimony in Paris before the American Consul, John C. Robinson and Paul Maillard, of Coudert Brothers and of Ernest Burkhardt, counsel for Mr. Hammerslough, to disprove this assertion.

Testimony Taken in Paris.

Before Vice Consul Harold Smith Mr. Robinson testified that Mrs. Ruth Hellprien Hammerslough told him in his Paris office that she had been separated from her husband and wanted her husband to discuss with him and her a modification of their separation agreement. Mr. Robinson said he preferred to deal with Mr. Hammerslough through the latter's attorney, but Mrs. Hammerslough told him she wanted the matter simplified because her husband knew no French and his lawyer could not speak English.

Mr. Robinson said he then redrafted the separation agreement, but gave no advice to the husband. He said that no one connected with Coudert Brothers appeared for Mr. Hammerslough in the divorce action, but that Mrs. Hammerslough asked him, before her husband arrived, to suggest a French solicitor to act for him, and he gave the names of three, including M. Burkhardt, who was chosen by Hammerslough after Mr. Maillard of the Coudert firm had gone along to act as an interpreter. He said that at the defendant's request 2,000 francs furnished by the latter was paid to M. Burkhardt by M. Maillard as his fee, while Mrs. Hammerslough paid the Coudert fee of $2,000.

M. Maillard corroborated this testimony as to his acts in the case, but when Burkhardt was questioned he said simply that he was the solicitor of record for Mr. Hammerslough and "consequently no course is open to me but to take refuge behind the professional privilege." For this reason he declined to testify.

The testimony has been sent to New York for use at the coming trial. The answer not only urges the invalidity of the alimony contract but asserts that the former Mrs. Hammerslough is now the wife of another who is able to support her.

NEW BRITAIN CHURCH BURNS

Two Firemen Hurt in Fighting $100,000 Blaze.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 12 (AP).—Two firemen were hurt and a memorial organ valued at $75,000, a gift of the late Philip Corbin, wealthy manufacturer, was destroyed by a fire in the South Congregational Church here today. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

William J. Noble, chief of the Fire Department, injured a knee. Joe Branti, fireman, was overcome by smoke on the roof of the church, and a harness device, employed for the first time, was used in lowering him to the ground.

The organ, installed in 1896, had been repaired and was re-dedicated a week ago today, at a cost of $17,000. It is believed that bits of material from the repair work had filtered through the floor and fallen upon a furnace.

GIRL SHOT AT PARTY.

Wounded When Brother-in-Law Discharges Pistol by Accident.

Miss Florence Jameson, 24 years old, of 1,141 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, was accidentally shot in the right thigh with a policeman's pistol early yesterday morning as a party at her home was breaking up. The guest of honor at the party was Patrolman Frank Kenealy, Miss Jameson's brother-in-law; John Berich, was examining Kenealy's weapon when it went off.

The woman was treated by Dr. Berman from the Bushwick Hospital, and kept at home. Her condition is not serious, the physician reported.

Kenealy explained to Captain Martin Bowe of the Wilson Avenue Precinct, that when he joined the party he unstrapped his pistol and he thought, took all the bullets out.

North Western Railway to Put 500 Miles Of Its Main Line Under Automatic Control

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Chicago & North Western Railroad announced today that automatic train control will be installed from Chicago to Omaha, about 500 miles, making the longest stretch of automatic control in the world.

President Fred W. Sargent said the improvement represents an expenditure of $3,000,000. Under this system trains are automatically brought to a stop at danger signals, making the operation independent of the engineer, should he become suddenly disabled or should he fail to see signals set against him during a storm or hard rain.

The project is to be completed by May 1. The control system, it is said, will enable passenger trains to operate at the maximum speed of seventy miles an hour regardless of weather conditions which frequently require reduced speed on lines not equipped with the train control.

Electricity flowing down one rail and up the other supplies the power which operates the automatic train control being installed on the Chicago & North Western Railroad. This current is picked up by coils on the locomotives located in front of the engine wheels and six inches above the tracks. When a train is in the next block these coils receive the danger notice.

When the automatic control begins, a whistle starts blowing, and if the engineer fails to act the control then cuts the speed to twenty miles an hour and a second whistle of a different tone is sounded. If the engineer does not reduce his speed further, the full control takes effect and stops the train.

The control system is the result of twenty-five years of experimentation. Installation began in 1925 and the equipment of the first division from Boone to Council Bluffs, Iowa, was completed in September of that year.

HINTS POISON PEN SURPRISE

Girl's Counsel Expects to Show Mrs. Von Moschzisker Wrote Notes.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 12.—Ex-Judge John B. Zabriskie, counsel for Sarah B. Mowell, the 21-year-old bank clerk of Ridgewood, on trial in Hackensack on a charge of sending blackmail letters to Mrs. Frank A. Von Moschzisker, said today that when the trial was resumed on Tuesday he would attempt to prove that Mrs. Von Moschzisker wrote the letters to herself.

"I expect to show by the testimony of Bushrod Spencer and August Hartkorn that the handwriting in the letters in question is identical with the specimens written by Mrs. Von Moschzisker for me in court, and I expect to provoke a surprise with a demonstration before the trial ends," said Mr. Zabriskie.

He plans to call a few more character witnesses and believes the case will close by Wednesday evening.

Antioch Students Fight Curfew.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 12.—President Arthur E. Morgan of Antioch College at Yellow Springs today began an investigation into the erection of an electric sign on the campus which blares "Let There Be Light." The sign followed the promulgation of an order by Mr. Morgan that lights in the dormitory be turned off at midnight, and all students be in bed by then. The new order is effective tonight. Penalties are provided for violations of the order. The students say the electric sign demanding more light is the first of a series of protests they will make against the midnight closing order.

LOST GIRL, 12, RIDES 40 HOURS IN SUBWAY

Child Spends Night and Day in Labyrinth, Going Uptown and Down Without Food or Sleep.

ON WAY TO SURPRISE AUNT

But Got Confused in the Shuttle—Police Find Her in Station After Frantic Hunt by Parents.

Winifred Stanley, 12 years old, was safely tucked into bed yesterday at her home, 1,323 Second Avenue, after a forty-hour odyssey in the labyrinth of the subway. Without food or sleep since Friday afternoon she had been riding uptown and downtown, not knowing her way and not daring to ask directions.

She was swallowed up in the home-going crowds on Friday evening, but nobody noticed her. All that night and all day Saturday she was lost underground—a shy little figure in a bright red coat with fur collar and cuffs and a tan beret perched on tousled brown hair. Sometimes she rode in the trains, wedged in crowds or curled up in a corner seat. More often she sat patiently on station benches, staring wide-eyed at the hurrying thousands sweeping past her.

It all began, she said, in an attempt to surprise Aunt Mary, who lives in West Twenty-sixth Street near Eighth Avenue. Winifred had come home as usual from the parochial school of St. Jean Baptiste at Seventy-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. She brought her books home and then went out to play. She walked down Second Avenue to Sixty-eighth Street and then to Lexington Avenue, where her mother had taken her many times on trips downtown in the subway.

She walked downstairs, took a nickel out of the thirty cents in her little bag and got on a downtown train. She rode as far as the Grand Central and then found the shuttle to Times Square—but after that she was lost.

When night came, and the next day, Winifred was still in the subway, while at her home black tragedy brooded. Her mother had almost despaired by Saturday afternoon; her father, Andrew Stanley, a postoffice employe, went to the police and welfare agencies. Then, with fears of another Hickman case, he searched dark cellars in the neighborhood.

Early yesterday morning Winifred was sitting wearily on a bench in the West 157th Street station of the Broadway subway, when Detectives Enright and Ornstein of the West 152d Street station found her. They took her to the station house, where they brought her ten jelly buns and a quart of milk, her first food in forty hours.

"I could only eat four of them," said Winifred yesterday, smiling at her experience. Her face had recovered its peaches-and-cream complexion, and her terror had gone. She admitted that school had been dull on Friday—so dull that she had drawn queer little people on the margins of her book while her teacher heard the recitation. But she and her mother denied that she had run away.

"She never gave us a bit of trouble all her life," said Mrs. Stanley. "She's nervous and high strung, that's all." Winifred, snug and warm under big blankets, admitted that she liked knights and fairy princesses and story-books better than arithmetic; and that some day, if father and mother could afford it, she would go to art school and maybe learn to illustrate story-books herself.

CALL BREADLINES LONGEST SINCE 1916

Officials of Bowery Missions Say Jobless and Hungry Are Taxing Their Facilities.

BETTER CLASS IN THE LINE

Comfortably Dressed Men Instead of Derelicts of Old—Mild Winter Mitigates Suffering.

Breadlines on the Bowery last week grew to the heaviest proportions since the Winter of 1916, the officials of six missions reported last night, with Sunday's totals mounting higher than the previous figures. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon the breadlines began forming. Hundreds of jobless men stamped on the sidewalks to keep warm, meanwhile jealously guarding their positions in the line to be sure of bread and coffee when the missions opened at 7 P. M.

Superintendents of the missions said that during the past few months bread lines that had been discontinued for years had had to be revived, and free sleeping quarters, found to be unnecessary after the war, again were opened. At the Holy Name Mission, the Bowery Mission, the Hadley Mission and the Chinatown Rescue Society Mission officials said their facilities during the past week had been greatly overtaxed. Yesterday hundreds had to be turned away.

Heretofore breadlines consisted of only twenty to thirty men in single file, but last week they were a block long in some instances, with men three and four abreast, rescue workers said yesterday. They also commented on the fact that the men in the lines appeared to be better dressed and of a higher calibre than the Bowery derelicts who for years were the only habitues of the missions.

At the Holy Name Mission, 319 Bowery, the line started yesterday at 2 o'clock and by 5 it stretched from the mission, which is half-way between First and Second Streets, to Second Avenue, a block and a half away. Although the mission can accommodate only 400, an attempt was made by Father John Rafferty, the Superintendent, to supply all the applicants with tickets on lunchrooms and hotels for a meal and lodging. Many, however, had to be turned away.

Four deep and almost a block long, the line at the Hadley Mission, 289 Bowery, began at 3 o'clock and grew so rapidly that the Superintendent, John Callahan, opened the mission's doors an hour ahead of time.

Throughout the past few months the Salvation Army Memorial Hotel at 319 Bowery has been packed to capacity.

At the Bowery Mission, 261 Bowery, 800 men were admitted to the Sunday evening services. After the services they filed to the basement to receive coffee and sandwiches.

A file that in the last few years usually averaged around thirty increased until last week there was an average of 400 a day waiting to receive the meal supplied by the Catholic sisters at the Madonna House, Cherry and Market Streets, on the lower east side.

Thomas Noonan, superintendent of the Chinatown Rescue Society Mission in Doyers Street, said last night that the present employment situation was the worst he has seen since 1916.

The midnight breadline at the Mission, which for the past ten years consisted of 200 men, has increased to 800 during the past month.

Social workers on the Bowery hesitated to estimate the total number of jobless and derelicts who are now roaming the Bowery, but some placed the figure at 5,000.

NURSES' HOME DEDICATED.

Governor Moore Speaks at Cornerstone Laying at Teaneck, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 12.—Governor A. Harry Moore was one of two speakers this afternoon at the laying of the cornerstone and dedication of the new nurses' home of the Holy Name Hospital at Teaneck. He paid tribute to the Sisters of St. Joseph of Peace who two years ago built the hospital at a cost of $400,000, paid $100,000 recently for a boiler room and erected the nurses' home at a cost of $300,000.

"These institutions are not only a credit to Bergen County, but will stand as a monument to the glory of God and the healing of humanity, and, like the great martyred President, Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday is being observed today, these sisters have a similar ideal; they seek to help humanity and relieve suffering," said the Governor.

The Right Rev. Mgr. John J. Duffy, administrator of the diocese of Newark, praised the Sisters of St. Joseph of Peace.

Students' League Test March 16.

The second nation-wide examination of high school students on the League of Nations will be conducted on March 16 by the Educational Department of the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association. Registrations for the examination have been received from 923 high schools throughout the country. The first prize will be a trip to Europe and the League offices at Geneva. The second prize is $100, the third $50. State branches of the association will give State prizes for the best essays.

50 REPORTED DEAD IN EUROPEAN GALES

HAVOC IS WROUGHT ASHORE

Britain and Scandinavia Hard Hit —Countless Millions of Fish Are Killed.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The death toll of the gales of cyclonic force which have swept Western Europe and the North Atlantic during the last few days will probably be not far short of fifty when the full destruction is known, it was believed here tonight.

Already twenty-five lives are known to have been lost in Scandinavia and nine in Great Britain, with accidents to shipping just becoming known. This latest scorge of a Winter which has been the worst in recent years for trying weather experiences has buffeted shipping in the North Atlantic until the stricken vessels have sent S O S calls and limped disabled into port with the aid of tugs.

Great property loss accompanied the gales on land. Not only were houses blown down and roofs carried away, but the torrential rainfall which accompanied the high winds in the British Isles caused fresh floods.

Struggles With Atlantic Gales.

All incoming shipping reports great struggles against the Atlantic gales. The steamship American Farmer, which arrived at Plymouth thirty hours late, sustained damage to her propellers four days out of New York and contended throughout the passage with the heavy gales.

The steamship Montclare, bringing Lieut. Col. Leopold S. Amery, Secretary of Colonies and Dominions, from Canada, after a long tour of the Dominions, reached Liverpool twenty-four hours late. The British steamship Sandown Castle, from Tyne to New York, reported by wireless that she was returning to Queenstown with the forehold full of water.

A thrilling story was told in radio reports concerning the difficulties of the tanker Varand on her maiden trip from New Orleans to London. For twelve days the Varand had been in tow of the Dutch tug Zwarte Zee because of serious damage to her rudder post and propeller, thought to have been caused by striking wreckage during a westerly gale 1,000 miles west of Queenstown. Besides losing three blades of her propeller, the ship had sprung a leak.

Towing the helpless ship through the heavy seas became so difficult that another Dutch tug, the Seine, went to their assistance. The hurricane completely disabled the Seine, however, carrying away the compass, rails and ventilators and wrecking the wireless apparatus.

Other Vessels Go to Rescue.

The liner Muenchen left her course to assist the crippled tug and two other Dutch tugs which had previously gone to the assistance of the liner Burgendijk, also came to the aid of the Seine. The tug hobbled back to Queenstown under convoy.

The last report received today said the Zwarte Zee was still towing the Varand 65 miles south of Valentia, Ireland.

Six of the crew were missing and believed drowned after the dredging vessel Grinkel sank in the Mersey River during the gale.

The crew of the British schooner Agnes Glover was saved through the pluck of one of the seamen, John Lewis. During the terrific gale of Friday the schooner's anchor chains parted and she was being rapidly carried to sea, tearing through the mountainous waves. Lewis, at great risk of life, climbed into the rigging and wigwagged an appeal for aid, which was sighted from Holyhead. A lifeboat put out and came close enough to the almost sinking schooner for the crew to leap to safety. Some were badly injured.

Great Havoc Among Fish.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 12 (AP).—From twenty to twenty-five lives are known to have been taken by the furious storm which swept in from the British Isles yesterday and ravaged the whole northern country. Shipping was demoralized and the sea was pounded with such force that millions of fish were killed and washed ashore.

Most of the casualties were reported from the vicinity of Soerland and Vestland, where the gale attained its maximum velocity, crushing houses, barns and causing much property loss as well as live stock. Millions of dead fish were swept ashore along the coast and countless other millions floated on the sea. Scientists attribute the death of the fish to sulphureted hydrogen, which came to the surface from the ocean bottom when disturbed by the tremendous force of the gale.

A fish famine threatens, as housewives refuse to buy them, fearing the fish poisoned.

Incoming Liners Delayed.

According to radio messages received yesterday from the navigators of inbound passenger liners, heavy seas are still running and the stormy winds are blowing with renewed vigor.

The new 24,000-ton motorship Saturnia of the Cosulich Line on her maiden voyage from Trieste, due tomorrow, will not be here until Wednesday forenoon.

The Cunarder Mauretania has had a bad twenty-four hours, which will delay her docking until tomorrow afternoon instead of 9 A. M., her usual hour.

The French liner Suffren is due this morning from Havre, three days late.

The White Star liner Regina and the American Banker will arrive on Wednesday morning, two days late, and the Republic will arrive tomorrow, two days late.

Other Atlantic passenger vessels delayed by weather one to two days are the Cunarders Caronia and Antonia, the Anchor liner Athenia, and the Frederik VIII of the Scandinavian-American Line.

YOUNG PRISONER ESCAPES.

Neighborhood of New York Reformatory Being Searched for Smith.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 12.—James Smith, 17, a prisoner in the New York Reformatory, near here, escaped at 6:45 A. M. today while at work in the mess hall.

The countryside is being searched for him.

To The Editor of The New York Times:

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 12.—Talk about me even joking about our President while the dignified United States Senate went clear out of its way to take an unnecessary slap at him with a resolution that he shouldn't run again. Now off hand, you would think that a Senate resolution meant something, but they carry no more authority than a Chamber of Commerce one does.

The Senators voted that Coolidge shouldn't run again, but that each one of them were eligible. They wanted to show that the country was not entirely destitute of great men, that there were ninety-six men that could improve on Cal at any minute.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

WORKMAN DROWNED IN MOVING OF BRIDGE

Hits Masonry in Toppling Into Newtown Creek—Comrade in Peril Trying Rescue.

ANOTHER SAVED AFTER FALL

Thousands, Including Goldman and McGuinness, See Span Shifted to Make Room for New Structure.

One workman was drowned and two more were in danger of drowning yesterday afternoon when the 325-ton draw span of the Greenpoint Avenue bridge over Newtown Creek was moved upstream 200 feet to make way for a new $1,500,000 bridge of improved type. The old bridge, which has been in use since 1900 to connect the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn with the Bliesville section of Long Island City, has been inadequate to accommodate the heavy land and water traffic. It will be used in its new location until the new bridge is completed.

The workman drowned was Elmer Collins, 29 years old, of 657 Manhatten Avenue, Brooklyn. In the preparation for the removal of the bridge, Collins lost his balance and fell. Just before striking the water, he struck his head against a masonry support of the western approach. Probably stunned, he sank immediately.

George Mains of 455 Grand Street, Brooklyn, another workman, dived after Collins but could not reach him. Mains became exhausted and was pulled out by Patrolman Elmer Toupant of the Marine Division, who was in a launch. Mains was taken to St. John's Hospital suffering from submersion and shock. Collins's body was recovered by dragging half an hour later.

A crowd of several thousand spectators and the city officials present, among whom were Commissioner of Plant and Structures Albert Goldman and Alderman Peter J. McGuinness, had hardly recovered from the shock of Collins's drowning when another workman, Thomas Casey of 1,173 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, who was on the Queens end of the bridge, fell when a cable on which it was pulling suddenly became loosened. Casey swam to a bridge fender a hundred feet away and clung there until hauled aboard the police launch.

As an engineering feat the removal of the draw span to a new location was entirely successful. Two scows were set under the draw span at low tide. Blocking was placed on the scows so that when the tide rose the span was lifted from its foundations and its entire weight carried by the scows. The scows were then hauled to the site of the temporary bridge and when the tides ebbed the draw span was lowered to rest on its bearings in the new location. Successful accomplishment of the removal was greeted with cheers by the crowd.

It is expected that the new temporary bridge, of which the old draw span is a part, will be in use for about two years, after which the permanent bridge will be finished.

Bids for the construction of the new bridge will be received by Commissioner Goldman on Wednesday. It will be a lift bridge of the bascule type with a height of about twenty-four feet above high water.

TWO GET HARMON AWARDS.

R. C. Patterson, for Walker, Presents Music Prizes to Negroes.

The Harmon Awards for distinguished achievement among negroes were presented yesterday for work in music to William Grant Still and Edward H. Margetson, at the Abyssinian Baptist Church, 132 West 138th Street, before a crowd of about 500 negroes and white persons. Each award was $100 in cash and a bronze medal. They were presented by Richard C. Patterson, Commissioner of Correction, representing Mayor Walker.

The principal address was made by Dr. Charles MacFarland, General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, who said negro advancement would not come through social equality, however important that might be, but through advancement in culture and the devotion of that culture to human service. Dr. F. A. Cullen, pastor of the Salem M. E. Church, presided.

SEEKS 300 ON AN ICE FLOE.

Russia Asks Esthonia's Aid to Rescue Fishermen.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—According to The Daily Mail's Riga correspondent, the Russian Government has urgently requested the Esthonian Government to assist in the rescue of 300 fishermen and 200 horses afloat in the Gulf of Finland on a huge ice floe.

Nine hundred fishermen were carried away while attending an impromptu race meeting on the ice in Luga Bay when the gale tore off an ice floe and swept it seaward. Esthonian and Russian icebreakers saved 600 fishermen.

CITY PLANNING PAYS, HOOVER EXPERTS SAY

His Committee Finds It Makes for Better Business and Happier Living.

CASE FOR IT UNANSWERABLE

'Primer' Suggesting Methods Declares Local Governments Hold Key to Situation.

PLAYGROUNDS EMPHASIZED

Regional Plots for Apartment Children and Rural Ones to Check Drift to City Urged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Modern city planning pays and means better living conditions and better business, according to the report of the Advisory Committee on City Planning and Zoning made public today. The committee consists of nine nationally known business and professional men appointed by Secretary Hoover several months ago to make the study.

Their findings are embodied in "A City Planning Primer," in which the committee sets forth what it regards as the best ways of procedure.

Personal observation and analyses of the experiences of hundreds of American communities to ascertain how city planning works out in practice formed the basis of the committee's conclusions.

"American cities," the report asserted, "have found that following a well-considered city plan is far superior to the usual haphazard growth. The cost of preparing such a plan is so reasonable and its advantages are so great that the arguments for it are unanswerable."

The report suggested ways in which citizens could help. These involved the allotment of adequate appropriations for the preparation of plans, support of City Councils' measures to execute them, encouragement of property owners to conform to the plans, and personal advocacy of city planning.

Local Authorities' Role.

The report observed that many communities doubled their population every twenty to thirty years and that local authorities, through control of new developments or lack of such control, could largely determine for good or ill the conditions affecting the present and succeeding generations.

"City planning," the report stated, "encourages a better distribution of centres of employment and thereby reduces the number of employes who must live near the business centre.

"By providing an adequate, coordinated street system it reduces delays in transit and so makes wider areas for dwellings available within a given time for travel between home and work. Hence the success with which the automobile enables city populations to spread out depends largely on good city planning.

"While some broad avenues and wide streets are necessary to care for through traffic and to give access to a residential district, minor streets with narrow roadways and inexpensive pavements are adequate for the traffic serving the immediate neighborhood. It permits wider grass plots and thus makes the streets more attractive. At the same time development of the land is cheaper and more families are enabled to own their homes."

As to the importance of parks and playgrounds, the report said:

"A lawn around the home is the best place for very small children to play, but public playgrounds and athletic fields are needed for organized games for larger children and adults. The increasing dangers imposed by rapidly moving traffic further emphasizes the hazard of streets as play space.

"The need of more public open spaces of all kinds is one of the consequences of apartment house living and must be borne in mind as apartment house areas develop.

"A great country park, desirable as it is, is now generally recognized as a supplement to, not a substitute for, smaller parks convenient to the people, who need ready access to trees, grass and open space.

"Public recreation facilities are as important to the village as to the large city. Every form of wholesome recreation for adults helps to check unwise movement of population to larger cities."

Personnel of the Committee.

The members of the committee are Charles B. Ball of Chicago, sanitary engineer and Secretary Treasurer of the City Planning Division of the American Society of Civil Engineers; Edward M. Bassett, counsel of the Zoning Committee of New York; Frederick Law Olmsted of Brookline, Mass., former President of the American Society of Landscape Architects and former President of the American City Planning Institute; Lawrence Veiller of New York, Secretary of the National Housing Association; Alfred Bettmann of Cincinnati, Director of the National Conference on City Planning; Irving B. Hiett of Toledo, former President of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; John Ihlder of Washington, D. C., manager of the Civic Development Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Morris M. Knowles of Pittsburgh, Chairman of the City Planning Division of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and J. Horace McFarland of Harrisburg, former President of the American Civic Association.

The committee's studies are part of the program initiated by Secretary Hoover several years ago to cooperate with local Governments, business groups and civic bodies to improve living conditions and to obtain the most benefit from the $6,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 a year which the American people are investing in new construction.

LINCOLN AS PATRIOT EXTOLLED IN PULPITS

America Should Strive to Be the Embodiment of His Spirit, Dr. Merrill Says.

GUIDE IN MODERN CONFUSION

His Tolerance Is Stressed by Dr. Knox—G. E. O'Dell Sees Value in Hero Worship.

Preaching in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill said:

"Just after the World War, at a time when 'Americanism' was the magic word and idea and process that was claiming every one's interest, Franklin K. Lane said that the best practical definition of 'Americanism,' was to 'get people to look at our country through the eyes of Lincoln.' Nothing better could come to pass in the life of this land today than that as many as possible of its people should come to look at America, through the eyes of Lincoln, to seek in the life of our country that which Lincoln sought, to be faithful to the great, simple ideals in which he was so inflexibly true.

"It is a religious exercise to look at our country through the eyes of Lincoln, for those eyes never lost sight of God. What could be better for this nation and for the world than that America, as a whole, should be the incarnation, the embodiment in its inner life and in its dealing with all other nations, of a spirit which, like that of this man, sees clearly, stands inflexibly for the right as it sees it, holds men and movements together with patience and large-mindedness, keeps its heart kind, its judgment just, and ever has God for its silent companion; the spirit that can and will meet all the confusing and conflicting issues of this hour with malice toward none, with charity for all, and with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right."

Chaplain Knox Urges Emulation of His Charity and Tolerance.

Tolerance was urged by the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox in his vesper sermon yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, of which he is chaplain. He pointed out that Abraham Lincoln was free from pettiness and jealousy.

"The great need is for tolerance and cooperation," Chaplain Knox said. "Not conformity, nor antiquity, nor authority, is the evidence of faith, but charity.

"Nothing in Lincoln's character has so commanded the admiration of his fellowcountrymen as his charity, his freedom from pettiness and jealousy, his magnanimity. His life abounds in incidents showing his forgiving spirit, his wide and generous tolerance."

LAUDED AS A NATIONAL HERO.

Lincoln Applied Good Sense to Affairs, Says G. E. O'Dell.

Speaking at the meeting of the New York Society for Ethical Culture, Central Park West and Sixty-fourth Street, yesterday morning on "The Heroes of Israel and America's Great Men," George E. O'Dell said that hero worship in a democracy should be a means to the greater appreciation of the best potentialities of common men.

"Perhaps this is one reason, he said, "why Washington and Lincoln are the chief national heroes of America; they were men who applied good sense and easily understandable principles to the management of affairs. Like the great kings and prophets of Israel, whose story, as literature and religion, is part of the heritage of America, their qualities were such as they could themselves wish to see emulated by others."

COOLIDGE POLICY ASSAILED.

Rabbi Wise Says Havana Message Reveals Our Self-Deception.

"Who will dare to say today what Lincoln would have said and thought in our own time," asked Rabbi Stephen S. Wise in his Free Synagogue sermon, "The Light That Failed Not—Abraham Lincoln," at Carnegie Hall yesterday morning.

"First and most real of the dangers of American life is that from which nothing less than the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, rightly, truly interpreted, may save us, that we may not avoid rather than face another irrepressible conflict. Self-deception rules America today. I will not call it hypocrisy, but I will say self-deception, self-delusion, self-complacency.

"The perfect example of it came to light lately in the message of the leader of our nation at the Pan-American session at Havana a fortnight ago. The lamentable thing is this—that illimitable, unthinking, ununderstanding self-approval which moves the nation's leader in the sight of Nicaragua to mouth beautiful sayings about the equality of the American republics, the Golden Rule and the Decalogue. We have reached that worst of stages in American history—Articulate and unashamed self-approval, right or wrong, which implies the absence of self-knowledge and the presence of self-delusion."

LINCOLN AS A RATIONALIST.

Not a Christian but Truly Religious, John Haynes Holmes Says.

John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, preached yesterday morning on the religion of Lincoln. He said:

"Abraham Lincoln was not a Christian, but he was one of the most truly and beautifully religious men who ever lived.

"Lincoln was not a Christian in any theological or ecclesiastical sense. While he read the Bible constantly and devotedly, he said he relied in its divine origin. He rejected most of the characteristic doctrines of the Christian creeds. He rejected the miracles. He questioned the Diety of Christ. He was a thorough-going rationalist, and that in pretty defiant revolt against organized Christianity.

"But this is only half the story. Deeper and more significant than his rationalism was his mysticism. His was a soul moved profoundly by the mysteries of life and the august spiritual imperatives of the universe. He toiled again and again his prayers found faith in an over-ruling Providence. He believed absolutely in God and in God's intervention in the lives of men on behalf of justice and the right.

"Lincoln typifies in noblest form the inevitable revolt of men from historic Christianity, and also the inevitable movement of men not to infidelity, or materialism, or unbelief, but to a religion deeper and higher than the Church has ever served."

HELPED MAKE NATION GREAT.

Lincoln Led America on Path to Power, Dr. Lubeck Declares.

Lincoln's work in saving the Union has led directly to the establishment of the United States as a nation to which the whole world is looking for salvation, said the Rev. Dr. Henry Lubeck, a canon of the National Episcopal Cathedral at Washington, D. C., yesterday at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue at Twentieth Street.

"Since the country's unity was definitely established by this leader of saviors we have grown to a position of wealth and power where we must now administer to all of humanity," he added.

Praises Lincoln for Peace Making.

The Rev. Harry Lathrop Reed, President of the Auburn (N. Y.) Presbyterian Theological Seminary, preached yesterday morning at the Madison Avenue Methodist Church at Sixtieth Street on the "sonship" of man to God.

Dr. Reed said that one of the truest marks of Abraham Lincoln's "sonship" was his peace making, and it was wrong to refer to him as a "war President." The Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of the church, preached in the morning at Mount Holyoke College, and in the afternoon at Smith College.

POINTS TO LESSONS IN POLITICAL UNREST

Attorney, Speaking in Church, Recalls Nation's Founders Were Often Abused.

Major John Vernon Bouvier Jr., attorney and member of the Sons of the Revolution, spoke yesterday morning at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles, Ninth Avenue at Twenty-eighth Street.

"On the anniversary of our great emancipator," he said, "it is fitting that we should consider the part of our country. In economic disturbances and political vagaries, in the shattering of old ideals and the rearing of new, there is nothing so extraordinary.

"To animate patriotic spirit in the people, Washington, Lafayette and others organized the Cincinnati. The move brought down storms of invective from the press and prominent statesmen. Even Mirabeau called it a society of barbarians.

"The Constitution was berated on all sides. It was said that it would impose restraints; that it would curb individualism and make people pay their debts.

"After the Revolution, the influence of Tories terminated, among other things, the Whisky Rebellion. Later, in Washington's own State, it was declared that he had debauched the nation and toasts were drunk to his speedy downfall. Jefferson was called the flag-bearer of anarchy and sedition.

"We must understand and interpret the past, first of all; we must have the courage to carry on and the wisdom to watch over the rich treasures that are ours.

MAJORITY OF STUDENTS IN RELIGIOUS COLLEGES

Dr. Bell Urges Church Institutions to Combat Evils of Secularist Instruction.

"It may be a revelation to some people to know that the majority of students in American colleges are in institutions definitely under the control of religious denominations," said the Rev. Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, President of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal College, Annandale, N. Y., preaching at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, 87 East Eighty-ninth Street, yesterday morning.

"These colleges," he said, "if they are properly supported and rise to their full opportunity, can do a vast amount toward rectifying the lack of balance which has come into education because of secularist inhibitions. It is quite as wicked to leave religion out of a modern education as it was to leave science out of a mediæval education.

"The secular college is forcing students into scientific experiment at the expense of religious experiment. The religious schools must not retaliate by attempting to do the same wicked thing to science. Only stupid theology needs to be buttressed by bigotry."

Calls Sinclair Lewis Only Man He Ever Heard Of Denying God

The Rev. Ralph C. Lanker, pastor of the Christian Church of Plymouth, Pa., declared in the West End Collegiate Church, West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, yesterday morning that Sinclair Lewis was the only man he had ever heard of who denied God. Mr. Lanker preached on "Fighting the Inevitable," which, he said, Lewis was trying to do.

"Not so long ago, in a Kansas City pulpit," said the preacher, "Sinclair Lewis declared: 'If there be a God, I defy him to strike me dead.' Lewis was not struck dead; therefore you and I are supposed to believe that there is no God. But that is not the manner in which God works. He works surely, but surely, over a long period of time. Why should God give special dispensation to that agnostic?

"The prevailing disregard for religion and the materialistically bias populace tell us all too plainly that the people of our generation have become careless in their attitude toward the spiritual and eternal realities of life. We may never live to see the result of our disobedience, but our children will."

DR. FOSDICK ASSERTS FAITH IN DEMOCRACY

He Lauds Lincoln's Principles as Example and Criticizes Disrespect for Law.

HE CONDEMNS AUTOCRACY

Dwells on Mussolini's Growing Power and Calls Spirit of the Pope's Encyclical Dangerous.

The United States does not need a Mussolini but she does need a new birth of democracy, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, at Sixty-fourth Street, told his congregation yesterday morning. His topic was "A Confession of Faith in Democracy."

Dr. Fosdick declared he would not vary his vote because any man held or did not hold to the Roman Catholic religion, but he criticized the encyclical of Pope Pius XI in which the Pontiff said that the only kind of church union in which the Catholics could participate would be a reunion with the Roman Church.

"Mussolini started by being a political autocrat," said Dr. Fosdick. "That brought order, and many liked it. Then he went on to be an autocrat of opinion. All free speech, free assembly, free press have been stopped in Italy. Then he went on to be an industrial autocrat, and everything—hours, wages, financial arrangement, even holidays—is now run by the dictatorship. And now Mussolini is hand in glove with the Vatican. He used to dislike it; now he works with it. It fits his purposes well. Two dictatorships speak the same language.

"Roman Catholicism as a religion I deeply respect and from it some of our greatest things have come. Roman Catholics as individuals are among my most valued friends, and they are as loyal as any citizens of the Republic. But while Roman Catholicism as a religion is to be deeply respected, and Roman Catholics as individuals valued as among our best citizens, the Roman Catholic theory of absolute autocratic government, of which the Pope's last encyclical is one of the most unbending and relentless exhibitions in all history, is to a democrat one of the most dangerous forces in the world.

"We believe in the democratic idea of the meaning of law—that all the people should have a hand in making the laws which then all the people will obey. Do you care enough for democracy, for example, to observe the prohibition law? Keeping Lincoln's birthday would be serious business for some people if they should really keep it. There were days in his day that he did not like, especially that most dreadful law in American history—the fugitive slave law. Lincoln fairly sweat blood trying to be a good democrat and keep that law. He said it was ungodly, but it was the law of the land, and we must obey it as we find it.

"There is no deeper need in this nation today than a rebirth of a genuinely democratic spirit. Democracy is at one of the most dangerous points in its history. But it must not fail."

RABBI KRASS ASSAILS RELIGION IN POLITICS

Calls Attempt to Make a Man's Faith Bar to Office 'Vicious'—Defends Popular Preachers.

Recent demands for a return to pure religion and Bible sermons were criticized by Rabbi Nathan Krass in his sermon yesterday morning at Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street.

"People are no longer interested in hell-fire and brimstone," he said. "They go instead to churches where light is thrown on their own life problems. Great preachers have always been those who vitalized the interest of the people by talking on the things of vital interest to them.

"When politics presents a moral issue, it is the duty of the preacher to point it out. Thus the present attempt to bar a man from political office because of his religious faith should be challenged from the pulpit as a vicious, anti-religious and un-American."

Declaring the church and synagogue today find themselves in a world of advertising, Dr. Krass said religion must advertise in order to fulfill its duty of bringing the public to hear the word of God. He believed criticisms of preachers who drew great crowds were made in a spirit of envy and misunderstanding, and asked why it was wrong to address themselves to thousands and right to address dozens.

"Abraham Lincoln will always continue to interest people because he was so intensely human and will always be a worthy pulpit theme," Dr. Krass declared. He said he hoped that future generations would not "make a plaster saint of him."

ASSERTS JAPAN NEEDS MISSIONS AND MONEY

Although Buddhism was not merely idolatry but a real religion, Christianity is needed in Japan today, the Rev. Dr. Takaharu Takamatsu, rector of St. Mary's Church in Kyoto, Japan, told the congregation of St. George's Episcopal Church, East Sixteenth Street and Stuyvesant Square, at the morning service yesterday.

"If America should withdraw her missionaries Japan would suffer, and since the world has now grown narrow, other nations would suffer too," the visiting rector said.

"There are two ways that you can help to spread Christianity. One is to continue to send good missionaries and the other is to send money. Japan still needs both."

The young rector himself was not converted to Christianity until he was past 18 years of age. It was, as he expressed it, really a matter of luck that he became a convert, for he had grown up among Buddhists who believed that Christianity was a kind of magic. But his brother took him to the Christian church where he was converted.

Dr. Takamatsu feels that if the Church can become international rather than national it will be a great factor in world peace. This was his first address in New York.

Pastor Demands England and America Agree On Freedom of Sea to Remove War Menace

England and America must come to an agreement on the freedom of the seas to avert war, said the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons yesterday in his sermon at All Souls' Unitarian Church, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

"The two countries must make no mistake about this matter," he went on. "Something must be done and done now, because we are today on a current of evasion and equivocation. Competitive naval building is inevitable. It is idle to deny it. To this end the intention of the House Naval Affairs Committee is clear, rejecting from its naval bill the provision that 'in the event of an international conference for the limitation of naval construction, the President might suspend part or all of the ordered construction.' This decision commits the United States, unless it is overthrown in Congress, to competitive naval building, and ties the hands of American negotiators in any future disarmament conference. It would be impossible to imagine a more stupid thing for Congress to permit.

"To remove such a terrible menace England and America must come to some agreement with regard to the freedom of the seas. The recent suggestion of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler that the United States agree to recognize a blockade as punishment for an aggressor nation is a possible way out of the present impasse. It is the most constructive suggestion yet made in this matter. It is Lincoln's spirit of frankness and sincerity which speaks both to England and to America the needed word of the hour, 'Come out into the open with the issue of the freedom of the seas, and settle it now while there is yet time.'"

WARNS OF DANGERS IN UNEMPLOYMENT

Dr. Sunderland Says Periods of Idleness Create an Increased Number of 'Won't Works.'

URGES PART-TIME LABOR

Superintendent of Episcopal Mission Society Asserts Jobs Are Scarce at Present.

"The most serious phase of an unemployment crisis such as we are now facing is the moral and spiritual effect upon the characters of its victims," said the Rev. Dr. L. Ernest Sunderland, superintendent of the Episcopal City Mission Society, in his sermon yesterday morning at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, Thirty-fifth Street and Madison Avenue, where the Rev. Dr. Percy Silver is rector.

"Each great period of unemployment in the past has left in its train an increased number of those who have become delinquents or 'won't works.' Inevitably, enforced idleness increases the population of prisons and reformatories, and paroled prisoners and probationers fall in great numbers.

"In this emergency, therefore, the social service agencies are feeling that it is better to have a man earn 50 per cent. of what it costs him to live than to be idle and a recipient of handouts. In this emergency every effort is being made to create employment.

"Already the increase in sickness and destitution is making itself felt in our centres as the result of this unemployment. Upon the women and children of the unemployed falls the brunt of the burden. Lack of work means lack of income, and this means cutting down on food, with subsequent malnourishment and illness. The effects of this situation will last long after the amount of employment increases.

"This condition, indeed, is registering itself in every department of our society's work. In the last two months 1,716 people have come to our relief department for help in finding work, shelter and food.

"To as many as possible we have tried to give assistance. In many cases, however, where we have secured part-time work or have created work for them, the small wage was not sufficient for their families' needs, and there has been the necessity of supplying clothing or advancing rent or medical assistance over the emergency."

PRIEST CALLS PERJURY MOST SERIOUS CRIME

The Rev. M. J. Ripple Tells Holy Name Society It Is Worse Than Murder.

Speaking yesterday at the communion breakfast of the Holy Name Society of the Church of St. Catherine of Sienna, the Right Rev. Michael J. Ripple, national director of the society, said perjury was the most serious of all crimes. Murder, adultery and burglary are secondary crimes, he added, because where they offended the majesty of men, perjury offended the majesty of God.

Magistrate John V. Flood, who also spoke at the breakfast, which was held at the Hotel Woodstock, asserted it was difficult to convict for perjury because so many jurymen had been guilty of perjury themselves.

"Many lawyers (said they are the ones on the ragged edge of the profession) not only allow their clients to commit perjury, but actually suborn it," he added. "I have watched all the men who have come before the wearing the badge of the Holy Name Society, and I am glad to say that I don't believe that any of them have spoken an untruth."

The Rev. T. S. McDermott, O. P., pastor of St. Catherine's, said:

"Never in history as today has there been such a movement to render the mission of the Church fruitless. College boys laugh and scoff at the idea that there is a God. If the movement had its effect only outside the Church, it would be nothing to worry about, but it is eating into the very vitals of the Church."

Thomas J. Farley, First Deputy County Clerk and Democratic leader of the Fourteenth Assembly District, also spoke briefly. His candidacy for Sheriff of New York County next year was announced by Robert J. Fitzsimmons, President of the society, who acted as toastmaster.

RABBI SPEAKS FOR CADMAN.

Dr. Lyons Praises Liberalism of the Bedford Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Alexander Lyons, Rabbi of the Eighth Avenue Temple, spoke at the Bedford Branch of the Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn yesterday in place of the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who is out of town. It was the first time that a rabbi had preached there.

He praised "the fine token of religious liberalism that is extended to a rabbi to occupy for the first time a distinctly Christian platform of religious effort."

Speaking on "Lincoln's Strength," Rabbi Lyons said the secret was to be found "in the acknowledged dependence of the human upon the divine."

END 48-HOUR PRAYER IN CALVARY CHURCH

Worshipers Break Fast After Two Days and Two Nights of Supplication.

MORE WOMEN THAN MEN

Dr. Towner Laments That There Is Only "One Enthusiast About God" to Every 1,000 in a Church.

A forty-eight-hour period of fasting and silent prayer came to an end yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in Calvary Baptist Church when the last relay of men and women went home for beer tea and other fast-breaking foods. Most of them returned an hour later for the regular morning service, at which the Rev. Dr. William Keeney M. Towner, pastor of the First Baptist Church, San Jose, Cal., preached on "Peter, the man who came back."

The fasting and the prayers began Friday at 10 A. M. Women who had sworn to forego food for forty-eight hours gathered in the ground floor ante-chamber of Calvary, while men who had taken the same vow assembled in a smaller room upstairs. The women undertaking the fast outnumbered the men. No count was taken of the number who fasted.

In San José, where the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, Calvary pastor, is filling the pulpit of Dr. Towner, a similar interlude of fasting and prayer started at 10 o'clock Pacific time.

For two days and two nights the chain of silent supplication was unbroken in the Calvary ante-chambers. "They worked in relays," said Don Fitch, Dr. Straton's secretary, yesterday morning. "Each man and woman prayed two hours and then went home to sleep and rest before returning to pray again. At one time there were as many as twenty-five women praying; the peak reached by the men was fifteen at once."

Through most of the two days the ante-chambers were silent, a silence that was broken occasionally when the women sang hymns or the men prayed aloud, relapsing then again into silent meditation.

In the morning services that came after the fasting session was over, Dr. Towner urged his temporary congregation to "get a good, clean spit-away to Jesus." "Jesus," he said, "is the lightning rod of God and it is through Him that God strikes fire."

Dr. Towner lamented that there was "only one enthusiast about God to every 1,000 apathetic men and women in a church." He praised Peter for his enthusiasm. In talking about Peter's defections and mistakes, Dr. Towner declared that "people who never make mistakes never make anything."

Yesterday afternoon there was the usual Sunday healing service, and in the evening Dr. Towner talked on "Abraham Lincoln—Christian."

CHURCH IS DEDICATED BY PRESBYTERY HEADS

Moderator Preaches on Missionary Work in New Featherbed Lane Edifice.

The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, Moderator of the Presbytery of New York, preached the sermon of dedication yesterday morning for the new Featherbed Lane Presbyterian Church, University Lane and Featherbed Avenue, the Bronx. The prayer of dedication was offered by the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, Stated Clerk of the New York Presbytery. The Rev. Theodore P. Savage, Secretary of the Church Extension Committee, read the Scripture.

The dedication was read by the pastor, the Rev. Carlos G. Fuller, who presided. The Sunday school students of the church, who filled the balcony, sang a hymn.

In his sermon, Dr. Duffield attributed the gradual falling away of people from the organized Church to the failure of the Church to touch the realities of life and to the failure of church people to show a more missionary spirit.

"The service in the Church is not the divine service," he insisted. "The divine service begins after the benediction, when we go out to carry the Word to those who are going on for a knowledge of God. That is the way Christianity began and that is the way it must go on."

DECRIES BIAS IN POLITICS.

Newark Methodist Pastor Urges Fairness Toward Smith.

The Rev. Frank S. Mead, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, Newark, in his sermon yesterday vehemently denounced religious discrimination in politics and declared, "Sometimes I think it would be a good thing for us to have a Catholic President, says The Associated Press. In referring to the Presidential election this year, the pastor said:

"One will run for that office who carries with him the cry of 'The Sidewalks of New York.' Surely we should be man enough, knowing to great him for the name freedom religiously that we ask for ourselves."

The Protestants, the Rev. Mr. Mead added, had no monopoly on the office of President.

FINDS PUBLIC VAGUE ON CATHOLIC TREND

Dr. Delany Declares Many in Episcopal Church Have Been Surprised by Controversy.

SEES CONVICTIONS ALTERED

Rejoices at Publication of the Malines Report as Putting End to Suspicions of Secrecy.

The Rev. Dr. Selden P. Delany, associate rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Forty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue, said in his sermon yesterday that the general public did not yet understand the growing movement toward Catholicism in the Episcopal Church of England and America.

"The controversy that has arisen over the revision of the English Prayer Book has been full of surprises for many Americans," he continued. "The vast majority of the Bishops, clergy and laity in the Church of England have approved of it in spite of its being a revision in a Catholic direction. Yet the Catholic bias of the new Prayer Book was precisely the reason why it aroused so much antagonism among the Protestant element in the House of Commons. This has been amazing news to many members of the American Episcopal Church. They did not realize that the Catholic movement had progressed so far in the Mother Church. Undoubtedly some hidden and mysterious influence has been at work during the past generation in the Church of England, and it has by no means come to an end.

"We may rejoice that the report of the Malines Conversations has at last been published. It ought to put an end to many misapprehensions. Some timorous souls have felt that reunion between England and Rome had been arranged for by some sort of secret conference. The report will show that there was no ground for such apprehension. At the most, the conversations have demonstrated that there were many subjects of agreement between certain scholarly leaders in the Roman and the Anglican communions. No one could seriously suppose, however, that Bishop Gore, Bishop Frere, Dr. Kidd, or Lord Halifax had a right to speak for the majority of their co-religionists. Perhaps it is just because of such utterances that the Pope has officially put an end to the conferences at Malines. When the leaven of Catholic life has leavened the whole lump of Anglicanism they may be resumed."

FINDS SUICIDE CAUSE IN HUMANITARIANISM

Father McQuade Declares Its Teachings Lead People to a Pessimistic Philosophy.

"Student suicides can be traced to the teachings of humanitarianism which are delivered from the pulpits of various non-Catholic churches," said the Rev. Bernard F. McQuade in his sermon yesterday morning at high mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

"Humanitarianism is not a religion," said Father McQuade. "It is a philosophy. It has no care for the hereafter, but tries to make this earth a paradise—to do away with pain, suffering and poverty, to mitigate its evils. This may be said to be the popular religion of today. It has a catching sound and fools many people. It is not Christianity."

The contrast between this teaching and that of the Catholic Church is most noticeable, Father McQuade said, in their attitudes toward pain and suffering. According to the Catholic belief, suffering is a necessary and inevitable part of life, while humanitarianism teaches that it can be eliminated.

"As long as death is inevitable," Father McQuade continued, "pain and suffering will be with us. Teaching otherwise is doing what the overindulgent father does when he shields his child from the troubles of the world so that the child, when he actually faces difficulties, is unable to cope with them. People who are taught to believe that pain and suffering may be avoided, instead of learning that they are inevitable and can be sustained with patience and faith, have nothing to fall back on. Pessimism in their natural philosophy, and suicide the one solution."

BRANDS US PROVINCIAL IN OUR WORLD POLICIES

Dr. Sloten Thinks It Ironical That We Demand an Honest Election in Nicaragua.

"We are in Nicaragua to do good to the Nicaraguans," said the Rev. Dr. Arthur Wakefield Sloten in his address "What Would Lincoln Think of our Policy in Nicaragua?" yesterday morning at the West Side Unitarian Church, 550 West 110th Street. "Kaboshing American politicians," he continued, "it will be a wonder in the end if we don't do them right."

"As a nation we are strangely and persistently provincial. We confess we are the greatest country in the world and our interests and outlook are entirely equable. The slogan 'See America First' has been translated to 'See America first, last and always.' Even the World War left us with only a handful of names and a lot of misplaced prejudices."

Following an outline of the history of American intervention in Central America, the speaker said:

"America is going to see that they get an honest election, such as we have at home. It seems rather doubtful to me if we should prevent Nicaraguans from killing each other by killing them ourselves. As to the election, with our disfranchisement of negroes, grandfather clause, senatorial scandals and prohibition fiasco, it is ironical that we are to establish honest elections."

"What we desire from intervention, now that we have all forces there, we think they have that there and carry out the Stimson program. The best we can do, now that we have started, is to muddle through."

Gentlemen:

This morning I had a smoking adventure worth recording.

Next to me in the smoking car a gentleman was puffing his pipe contentedly. I was not smoking at the moment, and the aroma of his tobacco intrigued me exceedingly. For twelve years I had smoked Edgeworth without being tempted by any other brand, but the fragrance emanating from the pipe of the gentleman beside me was so agreeable that I could not resist the temptation to speak of it.

"That is wonderfully fragrant tobacco you have there," I remarked. "Would you mind telling me the name of it?"

"It is Edgeworth," he answered.

We then congratulated each other upon our mutual good taste, and I decided that I would continue to use his brand and mine.

Sincerely yours,
S. H.

INCREASE OF POWER TO AID TELEVISION

Baird System to Use 10 Kilowatts Instead of 2 in Trans-Ocean Sending Next Week.

TO SHOW LIFE-SIZE IMAGES

Inventor and O. G. Hutchinson, His Aide Here, Enthusiastic Over Results So Far.

Within a week ten kilowatts of radio power will be ready to fling television images back and forth across the Atlantic between New York and London, according to Captain O. G. Hutchinson, Managing Director of the Baird Television Development Company of London, who is in America directing this end of the transoceanic experiments. Mr. Hutchinson said yesterday he had just conversed with John L. Baird in London, inventor of the system, by transatlantic radio telephone, and arranged to continue the tests with sufficiently powerful transmitters on each side of the ocean to insure greatly improved images.

"The pictures or images already transmitted whould have been better," said Captain Hutchinson, "if fading had not interfered. Static was not found to be very objectionable and the solution of the problem of clear images at the receiving station is expected to be completely solved by greater transmitted power."

The transmitter, which is now almost ready for use, will have the televisor unit within it and the person whose image is to be transmitted will merely stand or sit in front of the apparatus at the proper focal distance, he said. The transmitter of ten kilowatts power and the receiver for intercepting images from the London transmitting apparatus will be located at some convenient, but as yet undetermined, point on Long Island within the next few days.

"We can increase the size of the images being received at present to about life size and have them appear on a screen," Captain Hutchinson said. "We have already showed the head and shoulders of a man at about normal dimensions, and also have made enlargements of the original by means of lenses so that 100 persons seated around could easily see the image on the televisor receiver."

Captain Hutchinson said Mr. Baird was enthusiastic over the results achieved so far with only two kilowatts of power.

TRIBUTE TO HAIG HERE TO BE HEARD IN LONDON

Memorial Service in St. John's Cathedral Will Be Sent Out on Short Wave for Re-Broadcast.

A last tribute to the memory of Field Marshall Earl Haig will be broadcast next Sunday afternoon, Feb. 19, at 2:30 o'clock over station WRNY, direct from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, according to a WRNY representative. Bishop Manning will deliver a "Eulogy to Field Marshal Haig" before an assemblage of the British Great War Veterans of America, nine American Legion post delegations, representatives of every regiment of the National Guard in New York and vicinity with color guards, forty British societies, allied Consuls of all countries represented in the United States, and representatives of the army, navy and marines, it was said.

Station 2XAL, short wave broadcaster of WRNY, will transmit the program on the 30.9 meter wave and arrangements have been made, the WRNY representative said, for 2LO, London, to intercept the service and rebroadcast it to listeners in the British Isles. Broadcasting will continue for an hour, or until the service ends.

Among the musical organizations to take part in the program will be the Scottish Tripie Choir of seventy voices, sixteen Scottish bagpipers and the Cathedral choristers.

"This will be one of the few broadcasts direct from the cathedral," said Bishop Manning yesterday. "We have not permitted broadcasting because we do not want people to listen to our service over the air when they should be attending or listening to their own. This one, however, will be at a time when it should not conflict with other services."

NIAGARA 'ICE BRIDGE' CROSSED DESPITE BAN

Two Canadians, Sheathed in Frozen Spray From Cataract, First in Feat Since 1912 Tragedy.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 12 (AP).—Two men, who gave their names as Christian Gay and Ernest Lucas and who said they came from Toronto, today crossed the "ice bridge" in the Niagara Gorge from the Canadian to the American side of the river.

They are the first known to have made the crossing over the jagged frozen ice floes since Feb. 4, 1912, when the "bridge" of that year passed out without warning and three persons were carried to death. Officials on both sides of the river agreed after the tragedy to prohibit any one crossing.

Before the tragedy thousands made the crossing on the ice each year and the feat was not hazardous because pathways were worn by the constant travel.

Gay and Lucas had a hard time today, however, because of the absence of a pathway. They were exhausted and numbed by cold when they landed on the American shore. Their clothing was covered with frozen spray from the cataracts.

A reservation patrolman was waiting for them when they reached shore and he turned them over to immigration officials on the Falls View Bridge. They were ordered back to Canada and they made the return trip afoot over the steel structure.

The formation known as the "ice bridge" is not a bridge in the true sense of the word, but a mound of ice across the surface of the Niagara River from shore to shore about 500 feet below the cataract. In severe Winters the mound attains great thickness, the spray from the falls adding constantly to the dome-shaped top. The "bridge" this year is thinner than usual because of the mild weather during January.

PRINCETON SCIENTIST IS 70.

Professor Scott Guest at a Dinner in Honor of the Event.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 12.—Professor William Berryman Scott, oldest active professor in Princeton University, celebrated his seventieth birthday today.

In recognition of Dr. Scott's service to education and particularly to geological research, a dinner was given to him last night at the Nassau Club. Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, a former associate of Professor Scott at Princeton and now head of the Museum of Natural History in New York City, was Chairman of the committee which arranged the affair.

Professor Scott is one of America's most widely honored scientists. He has received degrees from Princeton, Heidelberg, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania and Oxford, and medals from various societies.

CITY WILL OBSERVE MAINE ANNIVERSARY

Walker Proclamation Calls for Tribute Wednesday, Thirty Years After Disaster.

Mayor Walker yesterday issued a proclamation calling for appropriate observance on Wednesday of the thirtieth anniversary of the destruction of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana. The proclamation follows:

City of New York.
Office of the Mayor.

PROCLAMATION.

Thirty years ago the people of this nation were grieved and alarmed by the destruction in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, of the United States battleship Maine. Two hundred and sixty-six officers and men of the ship's crew gave up their lives in the service of their country.

As each year comes around we pay a tribute of love and devotion to these brave men of the United States Navy. Each recurrence of the anniversary we observe with appropriate ceremony and with increasing affection and appreciation.

I therefore request the people of the City of New York, as a part of our municipal ceremony, to pause in their occupation and engagement at 9:15 P. M. on the 15th day of February, for one minute of meditation and prayer in memory of the battleship Maine and those of her crew who were sacrificed in that dreadful catastrophe.

I further urge that the national colors be displayed at half mast on all public and private buildings during the day.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of New York to be affixed this eleventh day of February, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight.

JAMES J. WALKER.

By the Mayor:
CHARLES S. HAND,
Secretary to the Mayor.

ASKS LAUCK TO TALK ON LABOR FORMULA

Chairman Cohen Says the Bar Association's Committee Welcomes Suggestions.

WANTS HIM AT HEARING

Jacob Billikopf and David Drechsler to Be Among Speakers—Large Attendance Expected.

David Drechsler, counsel for the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Exchange, and Jacob Billikopf of Philadelphia, Executive Director of the Federation of Jewish Charities in that city, will be among the speakers at the public hearings of the American Bar Association's subcommittee on its proposals for the peaceable adjustment of industrial disputes.

In making public letters received from each of these men, Julius Henry Cohen, Chairman of the Bar Association's subcommittee, who will preside at the hearing to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, said that interest in the movement was so widespread that he doubted if the auditorium in the headquarters of the Bar Association at 42 West Forty-fourth Street would be large enough to hold the audiences.

Mr. Billikopf's letter said:

"This much is quite obvious, namely, that you have succeeded in obtaining an extraordinary amount of worth-while discussion for the formula and all that it implies discussion, the collateral effects of which are bound to be of tremendous service in the happy adjustment of relations between capital and labor. Or, to use a favorite expression of mine, the 'spiritual by-products' resulting from your proposal are of far-reaching consequence.

"After all, the 'spiritual by-products,' while not so tangible, still are consequential."

Mr. Drechsler wrote:

"I am deeply interested in the work of your committee and am informed through the press of the hearings that are about to take place under the auspices of your committee. If admission to those hearings is by invitation, I would sincerely appreciate permission to attend."

Mrs. Cohen commenting on W. Jett Lauck's suggestion that his committee should not limit itself to considering machinery, but that it extend the scope of its hearings to include a discussion of a code of principles to be formulated into law, said:

"The proposed public hearings are intended to include discussion of just such constructive suggestions as Mr. Lauck offers. I am asking him to attend the hearings and present and discuss his views with us. His expert knowledge is valuable.

"The newspaper summaries appearing in Washington, as I have seen them, did not contain the entire announcement of our committee. Perhaps Mr. Lauck has not yet had an opportunity to read our entire announcement. I am sending him a copy and am asking him to discuss with us at the hearing whether or not his principles, Nos. 1 and 2, are not embodied in the proposed declaration of policy; next, whether Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 6 are declarations not of legal rights, but of economic rights and duties."

AUTO DEATHS PUT AT 25,000

Metropolitan Life Figures Indicate 1,000,000 Were Hurt in Year.

More than 25,000 person were killed by automobiles during the past year, the only blot on the unexcelled public cases in which death was due to collisions with locomotives and trolley cars at grade crossings. In addition to these fatalities, there were probably at least 1,000,000 non-fatal injuries arising from the use of automobiles.

These figures are estimates by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and are based on casual

Black Hawks Blank Ranger Sextet, 3-0, in Garden Hockey Before 14,000 Crowd

RANGER SIX TRAILS BLACK HAWKS, 3-0

Chicagoans Close Strongly, Scoring Once in Second and Twice in Third Period.

GARDINER HAS 43 STOPS

Turns Back Many New York Thrusts by Brilliant Work Before Crowd of 14,000 at Garden.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Tired of playing scoreless ties with Ottawa, the New York Rangers were all set to crash into the scoring records last night at the expense of the Chicago Black Hawks, but something went wrong with the signals, and when the smoke cleared away the Hawks had won the hockey game at Madison Square Garden by 3 to 0 before a crowd of 14,000.

In other words, the Rangers continued on their scoreless career, not having flashed the red light in three games. The New York sextet remains at the top of the American group of the National Hockey League, still leading the Boston Bruins by two points. The Bruins did not play last night.

It was a bad night for the Ranger followers who had bet their rolls lavishly at 8 to 5 or better, thinking the game a sure thing for the home team.

While the Rangers may not have played with their usual speed and brilliance, they bombarded the Chicago net heavily enough, and some very gorgeous goal-tending by Gardiner was alone responsible for keeping the New York sharpshooters out of the scoring column.

Gardiner turned in a great game, many of his forty-three saves being of the spectacular variety.

Mickey MacKay, Chicago's wingman, scored two of the Black Hawk goals and Ty Arbour the third on a pass from Wentworth. Because of a very capable defense on both sides no score was registered until the closing minute of the second period, when MacKay counted the first time.

The Cooks, Boucher, Johnson, Gray and other Rangers missed some close ones. They just could not beat Gardiner.

Both Goalies Excel at Start.

Some brisk attacks marked the opening period and only magnificent goal-tending by Gardiner in the Chicago net, and Chabot for the Rangers, prevented a score. Gardiner, defending the Black Hawk webbing, was decorated with a long white plaster over his left eye, but was especially effective.

There were probably a dozen drives launched by the Rangers which wound up in brisk scrimmages around Gardiner. The Cooks, Frank Boucher, Johnson and Bourgault all peppered the Chicago goalie at point-blank range and many of his saves were of the gilt-edged variety.

Chabot, at the other end, successfully withstood the fire of the Chicago forwards, notably Keats, MacKay, Arbour and McVeigh. The Chicago marksmanship was not as good as that of the Rangers, but Chabot blocked everything that came near him and the period was scoreless for both sides.

The Chabot was credited with fifteen saves for the first period, while Gardiner had fourteen.

Arbour Misses Close One.

In the opening minute of the second session, Arbour broke through to miss the Ranger net by inches. Bill Cook then organized an offensive of his own, only to have Gardiner block him with more good saves. Gray, Thompson and Boyd relieved the Cook boys and Boucher, but they had a hard time getting anywhere against the Chicago defense.

A whistle-blowing chorus at this stage slowed the play and the officials were roundly booed. Bourgault, skating down the right wing, was tripped and slid into the Black Hawk net, striking his head on the cross-bar. The game little defense man lay writhing on the ice for a time and then was assisted to the side lines.

Gardiner put in some more gingery saves after this to keep his net clear on heavy attacks by the Ranger forwards, aided and abetted by Johnson and Abel, the heavyweight defense twins. Keats and Arbour also got close to the Ranger net, but it remained for MacKay, speedy wingman, to hang up the first counter.

In the last minute of play in the second period MacKay picked up the disk at centre ice, whirled down the south boards and, skating close on Chabot, beat him with the shot. The time was 19:40, giving the Black Hawks a 1-to-0 edge.

Gardiner had thirteen saves for the period, and Chabot eleven.

Arbour Penalized in Third Period.

Arbour was penalized for tripping in the first minute of the third period and while he was in the coop, MacKay easily skated around Abel down the right wing to score again in 1:47. Johnson had skated down the ice on a Ranger attack and MacKay easily skated around Abel to make the goal.

Following a heavy Ranger offensive, Wentworth got loose and went twisting down the right wing almost to the end boards. The Black Hawk defense man swiveled a pass out to Arbour in front of the net and Ty swept the third Chicago goal past Chabot in 7:56.

Bourgault returned to the game and was loudly cheered. The Rangers put on a series of heavy drives but Gardiner put on a series of great saves and they could not count, the final score being Black Hawks 3, Rangers 0. Gardiner had sixteen saves for the period.

The line-up:

Black Hawks (3).		Rangers (0).
Gardiner	Goal	Chabot
Wentworth	Defense	Bourgault

U. S. SKATERS RACE IN OLYMPICS TODAY

Farrell Will Meet Bachmann of Finland in First Heat at 8 This Morning.

JAFFEE WILL FACE BARONI

Murphy to Meet Heiden, While Bialis Races In Afternoon—Norway Loses Its Protest.

By The Associated Press.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 12.—The United States has the honor of starting the Olympic speed skating competition tomorrow, as the name of O'Neil Farrell of Chicago was the first to come out of the hat when drawings were made this evening.

Farrell will have Bertil Bachmann of Finland as his opponent in the first heat scheduled. Irving Jaffee of New York will be lined up against Giorgio Baroni of Italy in the next heat, while Eddie Murphy of Chicago will race with Simon Heiden of Holland in one of the last heats.

Manager Hansen of the American contingent at a late hour decided to start Valentine Bialis in the heats. Bialis drew Otto Polacsek of Austria as his rival. The races will be at distances of 500 and 5,000 meters.

Norwegians File Protest.

The Norwegians, with Roald Larsen and Bernt Evensen favorites to win the 500-meter sprints, protested to the Swiss Olympic Committee that the arrangement to run off races both morning and afternoon was unfair to the contestants.

They submitted that a racer competing at 8 or 9 o'clock in the morning, when the temperature was far below freezing, had the ice hard and fast, an advantage over the other competitors toeing the mark at noon or 2 o'clock, when the sun would be high in the sky and strong, with the thermometer above freezing, slowing up the ice two, three and four fifths seconds.

The Swiss committee demurred at changing the program, which calls for the sprints to begin tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock as scheduled.

A trick of fate in the draw placed Clas Thunberg of Finland and Larsen of Norway in the same sprint against each other. The winner of this heat between these two speed merchants of Europe is expected to provide the Olympic champion.

Sent to Bed Early.

The curfew rang at 9 o'clock tonight for the American speed skaters, Farrell, Murphy and Jaffee, who must report at the Olympic Stadium at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Manager Hansen and Trainer Lloyd ordered an early dinner for the three American youths and packed them to bed at 9 o'clock sharp. The sprinters showed signs of disappointment at leaving the sitting room of a large hotel lobby where an orchestra was playing dance music.

Bialis, who does not compete in the morning, but races in the afternoon, was allowed another hour of grace before retiring. As his mates entered the elevator to go to their rooms Bialis mockingly waved to them and said, "Good night," children."

Hansen declared Farrell, Murphy and Jaffee are in the pink of condition and will be hard to beat.

BEST BOXER AWARD GOES TO TUNNEY

Voted The Ring Trophy by Leading Authorities After Poll by That Magazine.

LOUGHRAN SECOND CHOICE

LaBarba, Tendler and Late Tiger Flowers Others to Get Votes, Dempsey Being Ignored.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The distinction of being acclaimed the most valuable boxer goes to Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, according to a copyrighted article in the March issue of The Ring, international boxing magazine. On the majority vote of a committee of twenty-four authorities, including boxing Commissioners of various States and men prominent in different walks of life who are ardent boxing fans, Tunney received The Ring's Most Valuable Boxer Trophy for the year 1927.

This is the initial award of a trophy which, it is planned, will be given annually, similar to the most valuable player award in baseball.

Tommy Loughran, world's light-heavyweight title champion, was voted second to Tunney. The only other boxers to receive votes were Fidel LaBarba, Law Tendler and the late Tiger Flowers. A surprising feature was the absence of even a single vote for Jack Dempsey.

Among those who voted for Tunney were Mayor James J. Walker, Honorary Chairman of the committee; Commissioner William Muldoon, Chairman; Chairman James A. Farley of the State Athletic Commission, Commissioner George E. Brower, President Thomas E. Donahue, National Boxing Association; Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, New York Supreme Court; James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion; Eugene Buckley, Massachusetts Boxing Commission Chairman; Joe Humphreys, veteran announcer; Referee Lou Magnolia, Bernard F. Gimbel, John H. O'Brien, foreman New York Sheriff's Jury; James L. Bush, Madison Square Garden Club.

Promoter Humbert Fugazy has launched plans for his outdoor operations at Ebbets Field next Summer, with the engagement of Frank (Doc) Bagley as matchmaker. Fugazy and Bagley have been associated for four years. Fugazy's intention is to hold his first outdoor show in May and to conduct shows on alternate Wednesdays thereafter through the Summer season.

Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, is scheduled to swing into action tonight in Cleveland where he faces Clyde Hull for ten rounds.

Joe Glick, Williamsburgh's sturdy junior lightweight, tackles Al Gordon in a ten-round bout in Philadelphia tonight.

Jack Delaney opposes Leo Gates tonight in Rochester in the former's last battle before his bout in the Garden on March 1 with Tom Heeney.

Yale Okun, east side light-heavyweight, will undertake a campaign in the provinces, meeting George Manley in Denver on Friday night and Chuck Wiggins in St. Louis on Feb. 28.

Jack McVey, Harlem's negro challenger for the welterweight title, is to tackle Lou Scozza in Buffalo on March 2, following his bout on Friday night in the Garden against Maxie Rosenbloom.

Frankie Genaro, recently crowned National Boxing Association fly-weight champion, returns to the ring Friday night in Buffalo in a ten-round bout against Frisco Grande. The title will not be at stake.

Dominick Petrone and Lew Perfetti have been signed for one of the preliminaries to the Sid Terris-Jimmy McLarnin ten-round bout in the Garden on Feb. 24.

HARMON BOXES TONIGHT.

Meets Canada Lee in Feature Six-Rounder at Broadway Arena.

A card which promises plenty of ring action has been arranged by Matchmaker Andy Naiderreiter for tonight at the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, when a program of six-round matches among established fighters will be conducted.

Willie Harmon, veteran east side welterweight, will engage Canada Lee of Harlem in the main six-round event. In other bouts the principals will be: Pete Sanstol vs. Benny Hall; Terry Roth vs. Joey Rose; Henny Goldberg vs. Pierre Gendon; Felix Sportiello vs. Arthur Flynn; Danny (Spider) Terris vs. Willie Greenspan; Danny Frush vs. Jimmy Scott.

BOSTON TIGERS HOLD LEAD.

Top Springfield Six by 3 Points in Canadian-American League.

BOSTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Boston Tigers retained their hold on first place in the Canadian-American Hockey League by a margin of three points over Springfield as a result of last week's games. Providence is in third place, with New Haven and Quebec tied for fourth and Philadelphia last.

The standing:

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pts.
Boston	16	10	3	35
Springfield	15	10	3	32
Providence	14	10	2	30
New Haven	11	14	3	25

MOORE WINS AUTO RACE.

Beats Field of 12 in 100-Lap Event on Dirt Track.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12 (AP).—Lou Moore won the 100-lap feature auto race of a dirt-track program at Ascot Park here today over a field of twelve starters, completing the approximate sixty miles in 51 minutes 282-5 seconds. Babe Stapp took second place, a lap and a half behind Moore, with Chester Gardner third.

Norwich Wins Telegraph Shoot.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Feb. 12 (AP).—The Norwich University rifle shooters defeated Boston University, 1,827 to 1,775, in a New England Rifle League match, it was learned today when Manager C. S. Gilchrist received the Boston team's score. The victory gives Norwich sole possession of first place and puts Boston University in second place.

Capablanca Has No Passion for Chess, Glad To Beat Him, Alekhine Tells Paris Admirers

PARIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—Alexander A. Alekhine, 35-year-old Russian, was the guest of eighty chess enthusiasts at a luncheon here today in honor of his return from the battle in Buenos Aires in which he took the world's championship from José R. Capablanca.

Alekhine told his admirers that he was "glad to beat Capablanca, but even happier to have beaten the idea that Capablanca was unbeatable. As a matter of fact, Capablanca should never have been champion for he has no passion for chess and doesn't even like it as a game."

Even before Alekhine made the statement quoted above, Capablanca, on arriving in the United States last Wednesday, branded as absurd the fact that he preferred any game to chess. He said in part:

"It is ridiculous to suppose that I prefer any other game to chess. I consider chess as far superior that there is no comparison."

Capablanca's manager, Dr. M. L. Lederer, was indignant when he was informed of Alekhine's remark.

"That is absurd," he declared. "Capablanca gave the answer to that several days ago. I don't believe that Alekhine said that. It does not sound like him."

GIANTS' VANGUARD LEAVES FOR SOUTH

YANKS TO LEAVE FEB. 24

Robins to Depart for Training Camp a Day Ahead—Other Players Join Giants En Route.

The first baseball exodus to the Southland for Spring training began yesterday when the vanguard of the New York Giants left New York. James J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants, three players and others pulled out of the Grand Central Station in the afternoon bound for Hot Springs, Ark. The three players were Francis Hogan and Al Spohrer, catchers, and Chet Nichols, a pitcher. With other members of the Giants they will assemble at Hot Springs on Wednesday.

From then until late in the month the ball players will condition themselves at the health resort. The Giants are due to reach Augusta, Ga., on March 1. Comparatively few persons in the Grand Central Station were aware that they were witnessing the start of the Spring training trip when Tierney and the others climbed aboard the train.

The Giants took a long lead on the Yankees and the Robins, who will not get away for some time yet. The Yanks are scheduled to leave on Feb. 24 for St. Petersburg, where they will hold their Spring training. There will be several days in which to get acclimated in the Florida town and the Yanks will play their first practice game on Feb. 27.

The Robins, who will train at Clearwater, Fla., will leave for the South a day ahead of the Yankees. Manager Wilbert Robinson and several of his men will leave from New York and others will be gathered up en route. Still others will go direct to the training camp. It is expected that Spring practice will start about the first of next month.

The Giant contingent which got under way yesterday will be joined along the route by other pitchers and catchers. It is expected that members of the team will be picked up at Cleveland, St. Louis and other cities.

Cubs Leave for the West.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 (AP).—An even dozen Cubs, all battery men except one, inaugurated the active 1928 major league baseball season today when they entrained for the Chicago national Spring training camp at Catalina Island, in tow of owner William Wrigley.

Gathering adherents en route, the entire squad of batterymen will begin workout by Wednesday. Three absentees were checked off as the group departed. Jack Churry, third string catcher, was sick, and Doc Leggett, catching dentist, reported himself sick of baseball, declining to report at all. Pete Gink Fowler, recruit pitcher purchased from Atlanta, demanded part of the purchase money, and was notified to take up his argument with the Atlanta club.

The squad leaving today included pitchers Blake, Carlson, Grapp, Hansen, Weinert, Guy, Granville Bush and Welch, and catchers Hartnett and Gonsales, with outfielder Heathcote, and Coach Mike Donlin. Only one workout a day is planned by Manager McCarthy until the rest of the team arrives a fortnight hence.

WRESTLING BOUTS TONIGHT

Steinke Meets Siki in Featured Match at St. Nicholas Arena.

Wrestling will return to the St. Nicholas Arena tonight when Jack Curley offers to the wrestling fans as a feature finish match Hans Steinke and Reginald Siki of Senegal. In another finish match Jim Londos, the Greek Adonis, will tackle Dr. Karl Sarpolis of Lithuania. In the preliminary matches Wladek Zbyszko of Poland will clash with Henri DeGlane of France, a former Olympic champion, and Renato Gardini will encounter George Hillis of Wisconsin.

NATIONALS VICTOR IN U. S. SOCCER, 2-1

Beat Giants Before Crowd of 5,000 After Leading by 2 to 0 at Half-Time.

TWO HURT AND TWO BANNED

Croft and Tandler Knocked Unconscious and Guttman and McKechnie Sent Off Field.

The New York Nationals defeated the New York Giants by 2 to 1 in their replayed second-round National Challenge Cup tie at Starlight Park yesterday and earned the right to meet the Brooklyn Wanderers in the semi-final of the competition on Feb. 26.

Tremendous interest was aroused in the clash between the bitter rivals, and the largest crowd of the season, 5,000 enthusiasts, turned out to see one of the fiercest and most savagely fought games ever staged in this district. Plenty of police were on hand and no outbreaks occurred among the highly strung spectators.

The game was one of the roughest ever seen, no quarter being asked or given. Three penalties were called and two players, Bela Guttman of the Giants and Dave McKechnie of the Nationals, were ordered off the field for fighting and Croft and Tandler were knocked unconscious during the game. The ground was a sea of mud.

Nats Open With Attack.

The Nats kicked off and immediately worked the ball into the Giants' territory. George Henderson was racing through, but Moorhouse tripped him and the referee awarded a penalty, from which Walker scored after only four minutes of play. The Giants attacked and after Haussler had missed badly, Herd hit the upright with a smash. Back came the ball like lightning, and the Nationals got the first corner of the game after twenty-two minutes. The kick was cleared.

The ball went up and down the field until Walker obtained possession and, breaking away on the right, put over a fine centre from which Henderson scored and the Nats were 2 up with only twenty-five minutes gone. The game became very rough and McKechnie and Guttman, both seeming to blows, received marching orders.

Despite frantic attempts of the Giants to reduce the lead against them, half-time arrived with the Polo Grounders in front by 2 to 0.

The second half was greatly in favor of the Giants, but the mud and stubborn defense of Wilson and Warden prevented them getting through. Slaven fouled Hogg in the penalty area and the referee pointed to the spot. Schwarz took the kick and drove the ball into the net, but the whistle had gone a second before because Renault came out of his goal. Moorhouse then took the penalty and scored, which was disallowed because the rules call for the same player to make the attempt. Schwarz therefore lined up to try to convert the spot kick, but this time Renault raised his right hand and successfully deflected the ball over the crossbar, the resultant corner being cleared.

Tandler Scores Goal.

At twenty-three minutes Warden brought Schwarz down in the penalty zone, and the Giants received another penalty and this time Tandler made no mistake with an unstoppable shot which entered the net just under the crossbar. The Giants now fought harder than ever to draw level and although the Nats' goal had many narrow escapes, the equalizer could not be driven in.

Pete Rennulli played a great game for the winners in the closing minutes, saving his goal time after time under terrific pressure.

TWO INDOOR MEETS CONFLICT ON FEB. 22

Masonic and Y. M. C. A. Title Games Set for Same Night—Cutbill to Attempt Comeback.

While the authorities of the Masonic meet went on listing the names of outstanding athletic stars who will appear at their games on Washington's Birthday the announcement was made yesterday of a conflicting set of games, the National Y. M. C. A. track and field championships. These games were held only once before, in 1904 at the St. Louis Fair, according to the Y. M. C. A. announcement, but will be revived this year on Feb. 22 with entrants expected from most of the Y. M. C. A. centres in the United States.

The Masonic meet, which is a benefit affair, will be held at the 102d Engineers' Armory on Washington Heights. The Y. M. C. A. games will be held at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory in Brooklyn. Both meets will be held in the evening. The holding of two meets on the same day in the same city makes for the first serious conflict of the present season.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the Y. M. C. A. games came the news from the Masonic authorities that Harold Cutbill, New England minister who was under suspension of the A. A. U. for years, will make the first start of his comeback at the Washington's

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 12.—Macdonald Smith of the Lakeville Golf and Country Club, Great Neck, L. I., today scored his third triumph of the Winter tour of golf professionals. With a closing round of 36 34—70, 3 under par for the Hot Springs No. 1 course, he won the first prize of $1,000 in the South Central open championship with a seventy-two-hole total of 283.

Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., and Al Espinosa of Chicago tied for second at 285. Walsh, with 211, led the field going into the final round, and Espinosa and Smith were next, with 213.

Smith's previous victories during the last six weeks were in the Palos Verdes open, which he won on New Year's Day, and the Los Angeles open, which he captured a week later. He also was second at El Paso and fourth in the Texas open in San Antonio. In six weeks his winnings have exceeded $6,000.

In succeeding another New Yorker, Bobby Cruickshank, as South Central champion, Smith duplicated the feat of Cruickshank last year in annexing three major tournaments up to this juncture of the Winter tour. Cruickshank last Winter won the Los Angeles, San Antonio and Hot Springs tournaments. Illness prevented Smith's making the complete trip last year.

Armour Ties for Fourth.

Tommy Armour of Washington, national open champion, tied for fourth with two young professionals, Leonard Schmutte of Lima, Ohio, and Henry Ciuci of Bridgeport, Conn.

Horton Smith, young pro from Joplin, Mo., and Paul Runyon, a 19-year-old Hot Springs boy, who is professional at the Concord Country Club in Little Rock, tied for seventh, each totaling 290. Runyon, who learned his game on this course, moved up with the leaders by returning a 69 this morning.

Cruickshank, with a closing round of 70, finished ninth, with 291, and Harry Cooper of Buffalo was tenth, with 292. Only scores of 301 or better got in the money.

Smith, playing about three holes behind Walsh, was one stroke in back of the leader starting the last nine, and he pulled up level with a birdie 4 on the 515-yard thirteenth. A par 4 on the sixteenth, where Walsh had taken a 5, put Smith in front for the first time during the tournament, and he increased his lead to two strokes on the next to last hole of the competition by holing a birdie 3 on the seventeenth.

The last day cards of the three leaders follow:

Victor Gets Gold Medal.

In addition to cash, Smith was awarded a championship gold medal. Walsh and Espinosa split $1,400 and Armour, Ciuci and Schmutte divided $900.

A triple tie for the prize for low score among the amateurs involved Sam Rice, outfielder on the Washington club, John M. Read of Culver City, Cal., and Jack Vilas of Hot Springs. Each had a total of 320 for four rounds.

Mac Smith and other golfers will leave here tomorrow for Florida, where the next tournament of the Winter tour will be the West Coast open at Bellearir on Feb. 26 and 27.

THRALLS WINS, 3 AND 2.

Beats Carlson in Play-Off Match in "Snowbirds" Golf Tourney.

J. Thralls defeated Oscar Carlson in a play-off match in the "snowbirds" golf tournament at the Shinnecock Country Club yesterday, 3 and 2. Last week Carlson and Thralls tied in their game in the other match game yesterday Victor Carlson defeated M. S. Bowman, 5 and 4.

Thralls and J. Morton will meet this afternoon, and the winner will play Victor Carlson in the final match next Sunday.

Miami Beach Underwrites $15,000 Open Golf Tourney

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—Announcement of an open golf tournament carrying $15,000 in cash prizes, to be played over the La Gorce course here March 18, 19 and 20, was made today, citizens here voting to underwrite the purse. The tournament carries one of the richest purses in America, and, in addition, $1,000 in gold plate will go to the winner. There will be 108 holes of medal play, with a thirty-six-hole qualifying round, the low sixty-four cards entering the seventy-two-hole final. The pro finishing first will receive $5,000, the remainder to be divided among the next nineteen.

SARAZEN REPULSES HUTCHISON BY 3-1

Wins 36-Hole Challenge Match at Miami After Trailing 3 Down in First 18.

RECORD GALLERY PRESENT

Gene Squares Match at Tenth Hole in Afternoon Session, Then Goes on to Victory.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12.—Displaying the courage that has kept him among the world's greatest golfers for several years, Gene Sarazen, former U. S. open champion, won his challenge match at thirty-six holes today from Jock Hutchison, the Chicago veteran.

The New York star triumphed by 3 and 1 in a contest that was waged over two courses and drew the largest gallery that has ever witnessed a match in this section.

A mishap to the Chicago veteran on the seventeenth hole of the Miami open, played on Jan. 8, inspired today's challenge affair. Hutchison, after a brilliant uphill battle, had squared the final with Sarazen at the sixteenth, but a clicking movie camera upset him as he was about to shoot on the seventeenth and Sarazen went on to win the major portion of the $3,000 purse and the tournament. Today the Chicagoan again met with a mishap, but it was his own undoing and it decided the match.

The morning round of eighteen holes was played over the Bay Shore Country Club course at Miami Beach and going to lunch Hutchison had what seemed a commanding lead of 3 up.

The players and spectators trekked back to the city proper for the final eighteen holes at the Miami Country Club layout, and it was here that Sarazen turned defeat into victory.

Hutchison's Margin Cut.

Sarazen cut Hutchison's margin on the first nine holes in the afternoon to 1 up. He won the first hole with a birdie, but lost the fourth, conceding the hole after his second shot had carried over the green and into a water hazard.

The turning point on the short eighth was forced by Sarazen when his drive landed on the edge of the green, and his chip shot plunked into the cup from more than forty feet away. It was the best shot of the match, and Sarazen also won the ninth with a par 4.

Gene squared it at the tenth with a birdie 4, and went into the lead on the eleventh. Here he was over the green with his tee shot, but pitched back with his niblick two feet from the cup, while Jock missed his short putt.

Hutchison won the twelfth with a par 4, but Sarazen rallied and won the next three holes. On the fifteenth the New Yorker was over the green on his tee shot, but his niblick out of the rough stopped dead six inches from the cup.

Sarazen Captures Match.

Going to the seventeenth tee, Hutchison stood 2 down, his drive landed thirty yards to the left of the green. He pitched on the carpet but needed two putts to get down. Sarazen, meanwhile, was on with his drive and his two putts gave him a 3 and the match.

Hutchison was off in his approaching in the afternoon session, his efforts in this direction mostly being short. Sarazen's seconds invariably went over the greens, keeping him in trouble, but his recoveries were remarkable.

WERBIN AGAIN WINS GLENCOE ROAD RUN

Fourth Victory in Row Gives Him 4¾-Mile Trophy With Perfect Score.

Connolly Shows Way to Field in an Event of 9½ Miles—Abrams Is Second.

Harry Werbin of the Millrose A. A. won the fourth Glencoe A. C. four-and-three-quarter-mile run through the streets of the Bronx yesterday afternoon and thus finished the series with a perfect score of 100. He captured first place, with its 25 points, in each of the four runs of the series and as a result took the first of the four trophies donated by Frank J. Manley. Werbin finished yesterday in 19:34 to distance a field of more than a score.

Harold Schanck of the Yonkers Knights of Columbus was again second, as he has been in all three previous runs. His score was 96 for the series. Louis Milofsky, unattached, finished third yesterday and thereby clinched third place in the standing with a point total of 88. The fourth cup went to Leo Birnbaum of the Brooklyn Harriers, with a score of 76. He finished sixth yesterday.

Connolly a Winner.

The prizes were won in the short race, but a nine-and-one-half-mile race was also held, in which John P. Connolly of the Good Shepherd A. C. was the winner. He finished in 55:17 to beat a field of more than a dozen. The course was to Woodlawn and return. Richard Abrams of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. was second and John Conroy, unattached, third.

To win yesterday Werbin took the lead at the start and led all the way. Schanck held his pace for two miles and then gradually fell back. He never lost sight of Werbin, however, and never was threatened seriously by Milofsky. Werbin took things easily and his time yesterday was not as good as that made in some of the earlier runs.

New Series of Runs.

Max J. Silver, Director of Athletics at the Glencoe A. C., announced after the race that the series of runs would be continued. Following the opening of the new Glencoe clubhouse it was decided to attempt a series of four road runs to stir up interest in distance running. Greater success than was expected followed the effort and the races will be continued.

Due to the approach of the marathon season and the good condition of the athletes who have been competing weekly, it is likely that the races will be at a longer distance. Most of the men competing are preparing themselves for the Spring marathons, and Silver has decided that he will put on the races which will be most popular.

Connolly Makes Spurt.

Connolly, to win the nine-and-one-half-mile race yesterday, had to come from behind with a sprint in the last 200 yards. For the first four miles of the race Connolly, Abrams and Conroy ran in a group. Then they began to string out, and with two miles to go Abrams and Conroy left Connolly behind. The latter was far from out of things, however, and overhauled his rivals and passed them in the last 200 yards.

The order of finish in the two runs:

Assumes Four-Stroke Lead in First 18 Holes to Defeat Phillips at Coral Gables.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12.—Charles A. Roberts of New York won the thirty-six hole final today in the Miami-Biltmore invitation golf tournament on the links at Coral Gables. He was compelled to sink his last putt to triumph by 2 up over A. C. Phillips of Homestead, Fla.

Roberts was able to win through the lead he piled up in the first eighteen holes. He finished on the morning round 4 up on Phillips.

First Sixteen—Charles A. Roberts, New York, defeated A. C. Phillips, Homestead, Fla., 2 up.

Second Sixteen—Perley Boone, Homestead, L. I., defeated H. E. Loomis, St. Louis, 3 and 2.

Third Sixteen—Tom Higgins, Baldwin, L. I., defeated Noble Miller, Miami, 1 up.

Fourth Sixteen—G. Ar. Richardson, Chicago, defeated Bob Snawker, New York, 2 and 1.

Fifth Sixteen—C. A. Phinney, Miami, defeated R. Barringer, Miami, 1 up.

Sixth Sixteen—Hal Whitney, Boston, defeated Blaine Asher, Spencer, Iowa, 1 up.

Seventh Sixteen—John M. Young, Miami, defeated Robert E. Lewis, Washington, D. C., 3 and 1.

Eighth Sixteen—J. L. Yale, Miami, defeated J. L. Carter, Miami, 3 and 2.

Ninth Sixteen—B. L. Thomas, Miami, defeated G. Dr. S. L. Rainforth, Coral Gables, 1 up (19 holes).

Tenth Sixteen—W. H. Wolf, Syracuse, N. Y., defeated F. R. Greenfield, Washington, D. C., 2 and 1.

Glencoe Amateur Bouts Tomorrow.

Another program of amateur bouts will be held at the Glencoe A. C. in the Bronx tomorrow night. There will be eleven bouts in all, including two special contests. Tony Caragliano, metropolitan 126-pound champion from the Holy Name Club, will be in one of the bouts.

Hahn, Maker of Indoor Records, Will Seek New Laurels Tonight

America's Hope in the Olympic 800 and 1,500 Meter Races and Holder of Four Indoor Marks to Assault Two-Thirds of a Mile Standard in Elks Meet at 102d Engineers Armory.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Lloyd Hahn, native of Nebraska and member of the Boston A. A., who will strive to set a new world's record for two-thirds of a mile at the Elks meet tonight, is one of the most remarkable athletes in the country today. He is regarded as America's best bet in the Olympic 800 and 1,500 meter races and is considered by expert track followers to be the only hope of this country against such runners as Paavo Nurmi of Finland, Edvin Wide of Sweden and Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany.

Tonight's race will be held in the 102d Engineers' Armory on the flat board floor of the armory, where the use of spikes is not permitted. Hahn's main opposition will come from Jimmy Connolly of the New York A. C. who is not in particularly good form this season, yet it is a reasonably safe prediction that Hahn will set a new record.

The present record for two-thirds of a mile is 2:43 3-5, made by Connolly about five years ago. The time is one of the few indoor records that is faster than the outdoor time. Mel Sheppard holds the outdoor record for the distance on a curved track and also on a straightaway. Both were made in 1910 and are slower than Connolly's figures.

Holds 1,000-Yard Mark.

If he sets a new world's record tonight, it will be just another world's record to Hahn. At present he is the holder of the 1,000-yard and 1,000-meter records. Both were set last year. In addition, he holds the 1,500-meter record and the three-quarter mile record. All of his world's records are indoor marks.

Hahn at one time held the world's indoor record for a mile and, aside from Joie Ray, has run the mile under 4:20 more times than any other American athlete now competing. The present indoor season and the coming outdoor season at the Olympics are expected to be Hahn's last in competition. Jack Ryder, his coach and the man who developed him from a mediocre sprinter into America's greatest middle distance runner, is authority for the statement that Hahn will hang up his shoes after he has a shot at the "Iron Man" feat in the Olympics. This is the winning of both the 800 and 1,500 meter events in the one set of games.

It has been done three times before, only once by an American. This American was Mel Sheppard, who came down in front in both races in 1908. The probability of Hahn accomplishing this feat is not remote despite terrific competition from star runners from other countries, and there is much in Hahn's record that would justify the prediction that he will succeed.

Undefeated in Thirty Races.

Hahn has been undefeated in more than thirty races over a span of two years and has won eight consecutive races this season. His last defeat was suffered in Australasia in 1926, when he followed to the tape R. A. Rose, Australasian champion. Hahn was feted throughout his tour of Australia and New Zealand, and Ryder thinks that he did too much feasting and too little training while "down under." Yet, to defeat Hahn on one occasion, Rose had to set a new Australasian record of 4:13 3-5.

The last defeat Hahn suffered in America came when he chased Joie Ray to the tape to force the little Chicago runner to equal the world's record of 4:12 which had been set by Paavo Nurmi and which is still the record. This was in 1925. At the Knights of Columbus games on Feb. 29 at the Garden Hahn is going out to lower these figures. He will be opposed in this race by Dr. Otto Peltzer, Ray Conger and others.

Hahn is 29 years of age, and was born in Kansas, later taking up his home in Nebraska. When he attended the Falls City High School he was a one-man track team in that he singlehanded won meets for his school. On one occasion he won the 50, 100 and 220 yard dashes. On another he won the 100, 220 and 440 yard events. Such running ceased in 1920, and Hahn was always considered a sprinter.

Hahn came East after Joseph Nutter, a school chum, came to Boston to a preparatory school and trained under Jack Ryder, coach at the Boston A. A. and also at Boston College. Nutter was a reasonably good athlete, and remarked to Ryder that there was a friend of his back home who could lick the tar out of everybody in the neighborhood. Ryder told Nutter that if this chap had his fare to Boston and also back home to Nebraska, in case he didn't find a job, why it was all right for him to come East.

Hahn came in April, 1925, and at that time had not run a race in three years. Ryder put him to work sprinting, doing starts and other track work with Earl Dudley, Ray Robertson and whoever else was on the track at about 6 P. M. Hahn became able to do 0:10 2-5 in the hundred, which is nothing wonderful in these days of 0:09 3-5, 4-5 and 10 seconds flat. It was Ryder who thought Hahn had the makings of a distance man and he who took him out of the sprints and placed him in the middle distances.

LAYTON AND SCHAAF NEAR SCORING LEAD

Cornell and Penn Players, With 33 Points, Are Only Two Behind Fodder of Yale.

Although idle last week while his nearest rival engaged in one game, Fodder of Yale retains the lead in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League's individual scoring race. Fodder tops the list with 35 tallies and Layton of Cornell and Schaaf of Penn come next, each with a total of 33. In the list prior to this one, Fodder was being hard pressed by Layton, who was only three points behind, and it seemed that since Layton was to have a game and Fodder would be idle, Layton would gain the lead. Penn, which played Cornell, held Layton in check, however, and he got only one point.

Penn's victory on Saturday night also brought about some changes in the team standing. Cornell was dropped from first place and Penn advanced even with Dartmouth for the lead, each team now having won two games and lost one. Cornell is in a three-team deadlock with Princeton and Yale for third place, and Columbia brings up the rear.

Tonight the Penn five will play Columbia in New York. If the Red and Blue wins this game it will have an undisputed hold on first place, with three victories and one defeat, while Columbia then would be shoved further into the cellar. Should the Lions win, Dartmouth would displace Penn in first position and the latter would drop into a tie with Cornell, Princeton and Yale for second place. Columbia, even with a victory, would stay in the cellar.

The individual scorers, their colleges, positions, games played, field goals, foul goals and total points, and the team standing and schedule for this week follow:

DAVIDSON REMAINS AT TOP IN SCORING

House and Howland Advance to Second Place Tie in Swim League Standing.

Nippy Davidson, star Princeton sprinter and former Townsend Harris performer, continues to lead the race for individual honors in the Intercollegiate Swimming Association tournament despite the fact that his team has not performed for more than three weeks.

However, Captain Jimmy House of the champion Yale team, and his teammate Howland, the sophomore sprinter, have come up from far down in the list to tie for second, each scoring two first places against Syracuse, to raise their total from 5 to 15, seven points less than Davidson.

The individual scoring in swimming and water polo, the standing of the teams, best performances and schedule for the week follow:

Wednesday—

More Than 2,000 Dogs Benched for Westminster Dog Show in the Garden Today

WESTMINSTER SHOW WILL OPEN TODAY

More Than 2,000 Dogs to Compete for Ribbons and Prizes in Garden Arena.

EVENT RUNS THREE DAYS

Lower Level Benching Will Afford Good Chance to See Judging on Main Floor.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Dog fanciers from all over this country and Canada and many from across the water will gather in Madison Square Garden this morning for the opening of the fifty-second annual dog show of the Westminster Kennel Club. Everything will be ready for the more than 2,000 animals that will battle for three days for ribbons, cash and valuable trophies and for the great throngs of spectators that will examine them carefully on the benches and while they are in competition in the many judging rings.

On the main floor it will be more than a three-ring circus for the next three days, since all the early competitions will be held in twelve rings. No better place for a great exhibition of this kind could be had. The mere fact that there are twelve rings is assurance that every one will have a fair show—both the dogs and their admirers.

When there are only a few rings, congestion invariably follows. Fanciers naturally are anxious to witness every move in the judging of their favorites, and they crowd about the ring devoted to their especial breed until the very last ribbon and special prize has been awarded. With so many rings in action every one will have an opportunity to see what is going on, and a splendid bird's-eye view of the whole show in the big amphitheatre is offered from the seats. This vantage point will be favored by the casual visitor, one interested in dogs generally but not especially in one single breed. A remarkable picture is spread below of movement and color and a show that is constantly changing.

Kennels on Lower Level.

With all of the dogs benched on the lower level a great deal of the confusion that marked the exhibitions of the past in the old Garden is eliminated. There is no constant bedlam of barks and yaps coming from dogs that are not engaged in the serious business of showing off their good points in the ring and whose particular interest in life at the moment is answering aspersions cast by the occupant of the next benches.

In the same manner the excitement and crowding about the judging rings is a thing apart from the benches. Visitors to the show will have plenty of room to study individuals at their leisure. The educational side of a great dog show is of the utmost importance in the betterment of any breed. A study of dogs that have climbed to the top against the stiffest competition shows the fancier and breeder what he must know to be successful as an exhibitor. Comparisons may be made at close range, good points noted and bad characteristics studied that they may be avoided. Awards are made by the greatest specialists in their breeds and almost invariably the best dog fights his way to the top.

Right at the start of the show, interest promises to be as keen as at any point during the three days of the exhibition, since a lot of sporty dogs will be in the various rings when the judging gets under way at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The breed with the largest representation in the show—wire-haired fox terriers—will hold forth in Ring 3. Stanley J. Halle, the terrier expert of this city, has a somewhat onerous task ahead of him to judge 161 dogs in their many classes and specials. He will have to work right through the afternoon to clean up in his specialty.

One Foreign Judge.

Baron W. van der Hoop of Zurich, Switzerland, the only judge from the other side this year, will start work at the beginning, taking the airedale terriers in Ring 2. He is one of the keenest terrier men that has come over here and has a nice lot of airedales to pass upon. In the afternoon he will go on with the Irish terriers, which will conclude his assignment at the show.

Terrier men will also have Kerry blues and the bull terriers to interest them during the morning, while the Scotties and the Cairns will be in competition during the first afternoon. Hunting men will be out in the morning, too, to watch the battles among the retrievers, the springers and cocker spaniels, the basset hounds and the Chesapeake Bay dogs.

Judging will continue through the evening and every evening of the show. The revised judging program is certain to be appreciated by visitors to the Garden. No matter at what hour one drops in—save only during the regular intermissions—there will be something of interest going on. And this will continue right up to the close of the exhibition at 11 o'clock on Wednesday evening, the climax coming at 10 o'clock on the closing night with the judging of the five winners in the variety groups for the title of the best in the show.

All day yesterday the Garden was a hive of industry in preparation. While the benches were being erected to hold the great array of dogs, the latter were arriving in crates and boxes of every size from all points of the compass. The record has already been broken in the number of entries and the officers of the Westminster Kennel Club are confident that their efforts will be rewarded by the largest attendance in the fifty-two years that the organization has staged its annual show.

BRUSSELL IN EVEN BREAK.

Beats Ward in Amateur Class B 18.2 Play—Loses to Hammer.

Sidney Brussell broke even in two national amateur Class B 18.2 balkline billiard tournament games at Dwyer's Broadway Academy yesterday afternoon. In the first game he defeated Jack Ward in sixty-seven innings, 200 to 136. Brussell had a high run of 18, against 14 for Ward.

In the second game of the afternoon Brussell lost to Franklin Hammer, last year's national Class C champion, 200 to 145, in forty-three innings. Hammer had a high run of 19, against 15 for Brussell.

HOPPE MAKES GAIN, DEFEATS JACKSON

Increases Lead to Full Game Over Hall by Winning 3-Cushion League Match, 50 to 39.

TAKES EARLY ADVANTAGE

Loser Rallies With Run of Eight, but Is Checked—Hoppe Faces St. Jean This Afternoon.

Willie Hoppe increased his lead over Allen Hall to a full game when he defeated Clarence Jackson, 50 to 39, at the Strand Academy last night. The match required 48 innings.

Aided by high runs of 7 and 6 Hoppe remained in front, a cluster of 8 by Jackson failing to overcome Hoppe's advantage in the first part of the game. Hoppe gradually increased his lead until he was ahead, 44 to 30. Then Jackson spurted, a run of eight bringing him within six points of Hoppe. Hoppe answered this with three in his turn at the table. He followed with a brief run of two and then completed the game with one.

Hoppe will meet Andrew St. Jean at the Strand every afternoon this week, starting today, in a handicap three cushion match, 360 to 300, in blocks of 60 to 50. The match will be played afternoons only.

The standing of the players and the schedule for the week follow:

STANDING OF THE PLAYERS.

	Won.	Lost.	Per Ct.
Hoppe (Strand)	25	10	.714
Hall (Doyle's)	24	11	.686

Schedule for the Week.

Tonight—Layton vs. Wakefield at Fourteenth Street, 8:15; De Oro vs. Kleckhefer at Dwyer's, 8.

Tuesday—Kleckhefer vs. Reiselt at Philadelphia (two games); Wakefield vs. Hall at Doyle's, 7:45; Layton vs. De Oro at Wilbur's, Jamaica, 8:30.

Wednesday Night—De Oro vs. Hoppe at the Strand, 8:30; Hall vs. Jackson at Thum's, 8.

Thursday Night—Kleckhefer vs. Wakefield at Fourteenth Street, 8:15; De Oro vs. Layton at Hoppe's, 8.

Friday Night—Kleckhefer vs. Hoppe at Strand, 8:30; Hall vs. De Oro at Wilbur's, Jamaica, 8:30.

Seaback Plays St. Jean Tonight.

Charles Seaback of Boston will open a 750-point pocket billiard match against Andrew St. Jean at Kreuter's Billiard Academy tonight. The match will be played nights only in six blocks of 125 points each. St. Jean holds two victories over Ralph Greenleaf in handicap matches played this season.

Maturo to Play All Comers.

James Maturo, holder of the United States pocket billiard title, will meet all comers at the Forty-third Street Academy beginning this afternoon. He will concede handicaps to most of his opponents. Games will be played afternoon and evening.

Wardle Wins British Cue Title.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—A. Wardle of Manchester, won the amateur billiard championship of England at Thurston's Hall here yesterday by defeating A. Good of London, in 3,000 up, by 511 points.

Oklahoma Five Leads League.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 12 (AP).—The University of Oklahoma with twelve victories and no defeats continues to lead the pack in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race. Missouri University is second with seven triumphs and three defeats.

LEWIS ENTRY RATED BEST FOX TERRIER

BEATS FLORNELL RIGHTO

Baron van der Hoop Judges Smooth-Haired Dogs and Finds Lot Only Fair.

Champion Talavera Margaret was pronounced the best fox terrier at the Winter show of the American Foxterrier Club, which was held yesterday in the roof garden of the Pennsylvinia Hotel. This wire-haired terrier, the daughter of Ch. Talavera Simon and Talavera Unity, is owned by Reginald M. Lewis of Ridgefield, Conn. She won first as the best wire shown under the judgment of Alfred Delmont of Wynnewood, Pa., who passed on that division. In collaboration with Baron W. van der Hoop of Zurich, Switzerland, who judged the smooths, he gave the highest award to the Lewis champion.

Talavera Margaret, which was five times placed best in the show last Summer, was looking her best when she came into the ring. She is of a nice size, with fine shoulders and head, and there was little doubt in the minds of the spectators that she would carry off the honors when she appeared to be judged for the best among the wires. She beat the Halleston Kennels' Flornell Righto of Halleston, which was the best of the winners among the wires. She has an exceptional body, with good legs and feet, and probably eventually will beat the other.

Flornell Righto beat the winners dogs, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bondy's Crackley Supreme of Wildoaks. This is a wonderfully headed dog, with a good neck and shoulders; but some thought he was not going as well as he might. For winning he beat John G. Bates's Nedwob Tallyman of Blarney, equal in size and with a beautiful head and much character and expression.

New Blood Needed.

Baron van der Hoop, than whom there is no keener judge of a terrier on the other side, found only a fair lot of smooth fox terriers, which did not quite come up to the mark, nor did they average up with the wires as he observed them. He believes American breeders of the smooths will have to make another start and import some new blood if the breed is to hold its own.

Thomas Rice Varick of Manchester, N. H., had no difficulty in cleaning up in the local fancy with his nice dog, Southboro Satrap, which won winners dogs, best of winners and best smooth fox terrier. Southboro Satrap, an imported dog bred by F. Fletcher, is by Woodiore—Lady Muriel. He is a big dog, fully up to size. He has plenty of bone, with a head showing good quality, and is a sound mover. He went to winners easily, beating the Western dog ch. Flornell Desmond China, owned by Albert E. Mitchell of Deerfield, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Scott of Wantagh, L. I., took winners among the bitches with their Delsmere Diadem of Bandon, by Llandaff Peter of Delsmere—Sky Sail, which beat Dr. and Mrs. Homer Gage's ch. Dunstine. This was rather a stiff competition, and the visiting judge took plenty of time in making his decision.

Big Crowd at Show.

Delsmere Diadem was faulted by Baron van der Hoop because she was not quite straight going, being inclined to be a bit out on her elbows. Ch. Dunstine is showing signs of age, otherwise she might have beaten the latter's faulty going that again lost for her, as otherwise she would have defeated the dog for the best of the type.

A big crowd turned out during the afternoon, and many remained until the final award was made. Baron van der Hoop cleaned up his classes in short order. Mr. Delmont had a harder task with the wires, with many more entries to pass upon. He was extremely deliberate in making his decisions and the show dragged toward the end.

Schaefer and Cochran Challenge Any One To 3-Cushion Test With Diamonds Removed

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 12 (AP).—A challenge to any billiard player in the world for a match at three cushions with the diamonds covered was issued here by Jake Schaefer, champion, and Welker Cochran, former champion, at 18.2 balkline billiards.

"By utilizing the inlaid diamonds on the rails of the table the so-called system players have become mere mechanics and not billiard players in the true sense of the word," Schaefer said. "If the diamonds are removed from the table the key to their science is gone, and to prove my point I suggest that Cochran and I play any one in the world with the diamonds covered."

Willie Hoppe, headliner at both balkline and three cushions, said yesterday that he would be only too willing to oppose either Schaefer or Cochran at three cushions with the diamonds exposed or covered, but he stipulated that the challenge must be accompanied by a substantial side wager. Hoppe said it would be just as unfair to remove the diamonds from a billiard table as to substitute a tennis ball for a regulation baseball in championship game.

"If the three-cushion or system players were smart enough to devise methods to improve their game they are entitled to everything," said Hoppe. "I am not in sympathy with the suggestion for it is against the rules of three-cushion. Under the code the diamonds must be on the table. However, if they want a new game then I'll be only too willing to accommodate them."

HITCHCOCK'S FOUR WINS COAST FINAL

HITCHCOCK GETS 5 GOALS

Harriman, Roark and Moore on the Winning Four—Perkins Plays Well for Losers.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—Flashing a brilliant brand of polo before 12,000 Southern California spectators at the Midwick Country Club today, Tommy Hitchcock led the Rancho San Carlos riders to a 12 to 6 victory over the Marquis de Portago's Los Piratos in the deciding contest of the Midwick Country Club's twenty-goal series.

It was Hitchcock's riding and playing that brought victory to the Rancho team. He scored five goals and aided in most of the others the Rancho team gathered. W. A. Harriman, Arden Roark and George Moore played well for the winners.

Arthur Perkins, star in Coast circles, and Captains Forrester and McCreery, two English Army aces, were outplayed by Hitchcock and his men. The Marquis de Bortago, a low goal player, showed well at times. The Marquis's team gave the other one goal on handicap at the start of the game because of a difference in polo ratings.

San Carlos (12).	Los Piratos (6).
1—Moore.	1—Marquis de Portago
2—Hitchcock.	2—Perkins.
3—Harriman.	3—McCreery.
Back—Roark.	Back—Forrester.

SCORE BY PERIODS.

Rancho San Carlos	1	2	2	3	1	3	0	1—12
Los Piratos	1	2	0	0	1	1	0	—6

Scoring—Rancho: Moore 4, Hitchcock 5, Harriman 2, handicap 1; Los Piratos: Marquis de Portago 1, Perkins 3, McCreery 2.

Umpires—Major Brown and Major Wilson. Timekeeper—W. D. Medill.

Coffroth Winner Two Years Ago Trails as Shasta Bullet Scores at Tijuana.

OLD KICKAPOO IS SECOND

Other Jack Dempsey Entry, Dr. Wilson, Gains Show—Stake Worth $7,375.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Feb. 12.—Shasta Bullet, which was purchased a week ago by Alexander Pantages, carried the colors of his new owner to victory in the Speed Handicap for three-year-olds and upward at six furlongs here this afternoon. Closing with a rush through the stretch, Shasta Bullet beat Old Kickapoo by a nose, with Doctor Wilson third. The time was 1:11 4-5 and the race, the first of the stakes at this meeting, was worth $7,375 to the winner.

One of the surprises and disappointments of the race was the showing of Carlaris, winner of the Coffroth Handicap two years ago. The son of Phalaris finished well back among the also rans.

According to the custom of the track, the wreath of roses was hung on the neck of the winner by an important guest, and the one chosen today was Mrs. Estelle Taylor Dempsey. She just missed having the satisfaction of decorating one of her husband's horses, for Old Kickapoo and Doctor Wilson are owned by the former heavyweight champion in partnership with George Coburn.

Shasta Bullet ran a smashing race to win, for he was away badly in the big field and had to work his way up to a contending position by the time the leaders turned into the stretch.

From there he closed fast under a strong ride by Jockey R. Jones and got up in the last few strides. He paid $20.40 straight in the 12 mutuels.

VAN RYN PUT OUT IN HEIGHTS TENNIS

Sixth Ranking Star Trails Brunie, Who Provides Tourney Upset, Also Extending Alonso.

SPANIARD RALLIES TO WIN

Gains Semi-Final After Struggle of 2½ Hours by 9-7, 6-8, 10-8—Tilden in Doubles Today.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

An unrated player with little more than a metropolitan reputation defeated the sixth ranking player of the country and came within a point of triumphing over the fourth best yesterday in the annual invitation indoor tennis tournament of the Heights Casino in Brooklyn.

Harry C. Brunie of the West Side Tennis Club and the Casino performed the valorous feats, to the amazement of a gallery that was enthralled by the all-around perfection of his play. John Van Ryn was his victim and Manuel Alonso was the player who escaped a similar fate by the margin of a single stroke.

Van Ryn, one of the leading candidates for a position on the Davis Cup team, lost in two sets at 6–3, 6–4, and it was only after a magnificent struggle lasting two hours and a half, in which Brunie led at 6–5 and 40–15 in the third set that Alonso, an internationalist of world-wide renown, checkmated him at 9–7, 6–8, 10–8.

The indoor game is Brunie's forte and on the Casino courts his game is probably 15 better than it is on turf, though last year he carried Alonso to three sets in the invitation tournament of the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove. That was one of the few tournaments in which Brunie competed last year, and his name is seldom to be found in the lists during the Summer's play, except for the Class A championship of the West Side Tennis Club.

Brunie's Forehand Fast.

If there is any real weakness in Brunie's game, both Van Ryn and Alonso failed to discover it. His forehand went across the net like a whiplash and his backhand was just as effective. He has a follow-through on his backhand that sends the ball away like a streak and there are few players in this country who can play the ball down the line with such remarkable control as he maintained in these matches.

A backhand return straight down the line of a cross-court drive is as hard a shot to make as there is in the game and there are few players who are able to bring it in against the outward spin of the ball, yet Brunie made it with a regularity that was heart-breaking to his opponents and made it with a forcing shot that died like a flash.

Not only are his ground strokes entirely sound, although he does not pay enough attention to the position of his feet, but his service is a scoring weapon, his volleying and handling of lobs is of the utmost finality and he covers court in a fashion to make even Alonso look to his laurels.

On top of this he is a fighter, like Alonso, to the last ditch, who rises superior to physical fatigue and is never beaten until the last shot, no matter how far behind he is.

Van Ryn, who is not as good on indoor courts as he is on clay or turf, declared that he had played as well as he knew how, but that he couldn't beat the kind of tennis that Brunie played. The ball always came back with the speed of a bullet and he almost never got a point that he did not earn, for Brunie's control was infallible.

Alonso Surprised at Start.

Alonso, a player who thrives on opposition, who revels in a stiff, jolting slugfest, was played off his feet at the start of his match, falling behind at 1–4. This lack of success served only to goad him into a furious onslaught before whose blinding speed Brunie had to give ground as he was driven unmercifully from one corner to the other.

From the time that the score reached 4–all Brunie showed signs of the strain. Nevertheless, he gamely stood off the unrelenting attack of the dynamic Alonso and twice was at set point when he led at 6–5 and 40–15 and after losing the set went on to capture the second after a fearful struggle that was brought to an end as Brunie rushed madly from his base line to the net to retrieve a drop shot and lob over Alonso's head.

In the third set the badly spent Casino player rallied to pull from 2–4 to 5–4 and reach match point twice in the twelfth game. Over-cautiousness cost him the match when he had Alonso in the back corner and a short set-up before him. He failed to put the ball away and Alonso, saved by a hair, fought himself out of the hole to achieve a victory that was splendidly deserved.

This victory put him in the final round, where he awaits the winner of the semi-final match today between Francis T. Hunter and Frank Shields. Shields was in invincible form yesterday in defeating William Aydelotte at 6–1, 6–0, his deadly stroking off the ground and his service baffling the player who had put out Percy Kynaston and Dr. George King.

Tilden to Play Today.

Hunter will arrive this morning from Chicago with William Tilden and will play Shields at 12 o'clock. The final will follow at 2. Tilden and Hunter will meet Shields and Elmer Griffin in the semi-finals of the doubles at 11, and the final will be played at 3.

The summaries:

Singles.

Third Round—Francis T. Hunter won from A. W. Asthalter by default; Frank Shields defeated William Aydelotte, 6–1, 6–0; Harry C. Brunie defeated John Van Ryn, 6–3, 6–4; Manuel Alonso defeated Elmer Griffin, 7–5, 7–5.

Semi-Final Round—Alonso defeated Brunie, 9–7, 6–8, 10–8.

Doubles.

First Round—Kenneth Appel and John Van Ryn defeated Thomas Sturgis and E. W. Feibleman, 6–4, 5–7, 9–7; Louis H. Dalley Jr. and A. W. Asthalter defeated Anton Von Bernuth and Percy L. Kynaston, 6–2, 17–15; Frank Shields and Elmer Griffin defeated Hugh G. M. Kelleher and Jose Alonso, 6–4, 6–4.

Second Round—Alonso and Aydelotte defeated Appel and Van Ryn, 6–4, 5–7, 9–7; Shields and Griffin defeated Dalley and Asthalter, 6–2, 2–6, 13–11; William Tilden and Francis T. Hunter won from John F. Whitbeck and C. Gray by default.

Manhattan Chess Club Wins.

Teams of the Manhattan and Marshall Chess Clubs both made clean sweeps in the opening matches of the annual Metropolitan Chess League series at the expense of the Norwegian and Philidor Clubs, respectively.

Texans Suggest N. Y. U. Eleven Bring the Professors Along

Southern Methodist is employing a bit of salesmanship in order to lure the New York University football team to Dallas on Dec. 8 in order to fulfill the first part of the home-and-home series agreement. In response to the objection of the Violet that a game at that time of the year would be too much of a scholastic loss to the football players, Southern Methodist suggested yesterday that N. Y. U. do the next best thing to bringing along the class rooms, namely, bring along the professors. Before N. Y. U. had a chance to say that this would be impracticable the Texans declared that they themselves intend having members of the Faculty accompany them when they play the Army on Oct. 6.

TENNIS BODY READY FOR OPEN TOURNEY

TILDEN SUPPORTS MOVE

U. S. L. T. A. Suggests Fostering Professional Organization—Junior Change Made.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Competition between amateur and professional tennis players now awaits the invitation of a club and the formal sanction of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Approval of open tournaments was arranged virtually yesterday by the association at its annual meeting, when it passed a resolution paving the way for such event. Any organization holding membership in the association desiring an exhibition match or tournament open to professionals only or to both amateurs and professionals, at which an admission charge is to be made, must first obtain the sanction of the national body. This, it was indicated, would not be difficult to obtain by a tennis club in good standing.

William Tilden 2d, ranking U. S. tennis player, led the way for the passage of the resolution when he declared himself for open tournaments. Holcombe Ward, Chairman of the Amateur Rule Committee, stated the resolution had been framed after a conference with leading golf officials, as to the success of open golf tourneys.

Cooperation Is Urged.

Closer relationship between the professional and the national tennis associations was seen in the passage of the resolution. It carried a clause urging the fostering and the encouraging of the continuance and growth of the professional association by the amateur organization.

Reiterating former statements the association expressed itself as opposed to recognizing or dealing with any individual or organization, whose promotion of tennis matches or tournaments is for the purpose of personal profit.

Junior Courts Changed.

Hereafter the national junior and boy outdoor championship will be played on either turf or clay courts, the tournament committee to be the deciding body. This rule takes the place of a former regulation, which provided for the playing of such meets on turf courts.

An effort of the men's national championship committee to substitute the word "senior" for the word "veteran" in reference to the veterans' championship was defeated after a fiery talk by Julian S. Myrick, Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee.

MIAMI BEACH WINS INTERCITY TENNIS, 5-4

Miss Fox of Southampton Takes Two Matches as Palm Beach Team Loses Series.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—Miami Beach defeated Palm Beach, 5 to 4, in an intercity tennis match on the Royal Poinciana courts here today. Miss Genevieve Fox of Southampton, L. I., representing Palm Beach, was a double winner. In the singles she defeated Mrs. Stephen Gibbs of Miami Beach, 6–2, 6–4, and in the doubles, partnered with Paul Heston of New York, she scored a straight-set victory over Mrs. Gibbs and James Burns of New York, who played for Miami Beach.

Carroll Turner, Chicago, defeated James Van Alen, New York, 6–2, 6–4; Searle Barnett, Chicago, defeated John Black, New York, 6–7, 8–6, 6–4; Robert Gifford, Miami Beach, defeated George Thomas, Palm Beach, 1–6, 6–1, 6–4; John McKay, Miami Beach, defeated William Demuth, New York, 6–4, 6–4; Van Alen and Black defeated Turner and McKay, 6–4, 4–6, 6–3; Miss Genevieve Fox, Southampton, L. I., and Paul Heston, New York, defeated Mrs. Stephen Gibbs, Miami Beach and James Burns, New York, 6–2, 6–1; Miss Fox defeated Mrs. Gibbs, 6–2, 6–4; Stuart Gaynes, New York, and Barnett defeated Anthony Drexel Biddle and Thomas, 6–3, 6–1; George Aguilar and Warren Kruger, New York, defeated Jimmie Burns and Jimmie Burns Jr., New York, 8–6, 6–4.

Plays Against 47 Boards in Exhibition—Three End in Draw.

Playing against fifty opponents at forty-seven boards in his simultaneous exhibition at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, José R. Capablanca of Havana, former world's chess champion, won forty-four of the games and drew the remaining three. The performance lasted four hours. Dr. C. Levein, Henry J. Kapp and Dr. G. W. Averell, in consultation with C. L. Hays, drew their games.

Columbia-Lehigh to Grapple.

Lehigh, joint holder with Yale of the Eastern intercollegiate wrestling championship, will oppose the Columbia grapplers in the Morningside gymnasium at 2:30 this afternoon. Both of today's events are part of the annual Alumni Day program and will be witnessed by several hundred graduates.

Sports of the Times

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.

THE average big league baseball team travels approximately 15,000 miles a year, including the training jaunt. That's quite a respectable distance, measured in either direction, but there are other sports in which a competing athlete may cover even more territory. Tennis, for instance. Last year Bill Tilden campaigned from Chicago to Berlin, playing at all way stations. A French tennis team is now in Australia. A British golf team is just winding up an invasion of South Africa. There was a soccer team here from Uruguay last year and another from Austria. Baseball is a stay-at-home sport compared to some of these other games.

Queer way they have of coaching the crews at Oxford and Cambridge. They have no regular coaches such as the colleges have here. Mr. Harold Barker was coaching the Oxford crew a few weeks ago. Then Dr. P. C. Malian (Queen's) took it over. Somebody will relieve him shortly. It seems to be a volunteer job. But no matter who bobs up to do the coaching, a sweepswinger named Murray-Thriepland is given a great deal of tubbing. It doesn't seem fair.

Guy Nickalls (Magdalen) was out to watch the Oxford crew practice recently. Guy will be remembered as the Yale coach who tossed up his job some years ago because, as he put it, his crew had no "guts." This was the famous "gutless crew" that made a magnificent recovery, defeated Harvard, and started a string of six consecutive victories over the Crimson.

The European Plan.

This idea of changing coaches every now and then is a strictly European plan. It isn't done here except in startling emergencies. If it were in vogue here we would have Ed Brown giving way to Bill Bingham at Harvard one week and Bingham handing the job along to Ned Mahan the next week. And perhaps President Lowell would be reported accompanying the crews on a bicycle.

They not only coach the crews on bicycles in England, but on horseback, too. Perhaps the horses have webbed feet.

Bob Kelley says that one of the English universities had a coach who was so successful that the boys thought it wasn't fair. So they sent him over to the rival university for a while to even things up.

Holding a jar of Crosse & Blackwell pickles in his hand, Harry Stevens said: "Mr. Crosse was one of the greatest lay preachers of the Methodist Church in England. Mr. Blackwell won the Waterloo Cup four times with his racing dogs."

An entrant in one of the bobsled races at Chamonix went to the resort two months ahead and practiced every day. When it came time to start the race he was barred because he had practiced too much.

Potpourri.

Billy Barton, now the favorite for the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, was once owned by Charles A. Stoneham of the Giants. Mr. Stoneham sold the horse, a flat runner in those days, for $2,000, which appears to have been a mistake. Something like the Hornsby trade.

Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, thinks that several big league clubs could have used Earl Sheely to advantage. But they wouldn't pay the waiver price and the big first baseman hit the chute. These same clubs will step out and pay $30,000 or so for some rookie first baseman in the hope that he will be as good as Sheely.

Babe Ruth and Johnny Farrell were playmates in Artie McGovern's gymnasium through the early Winter. They went through the same exercises. The home run king was trying to reduce and the star golfer was trying to gain weight. Both were successful. Figure that out.

Dr. Otto Peltzer was beaten at Chicago by Ray Conger and, if he races Hahn at the Garden, he may be beaten again. But taking his measure at the Olympic Games will be a bit more difficult. He wasn't fooling when he set those world's records for the 800 yards and the 800 meters.

A correspondent takes exception to the statement that Leo Lermond is the best two-miler in this country. His nomination is Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C. "when in condition." Yes, but when is Willie going to get "in condition"?

Harvard is out to retain the indoor team championship of the I. C. A. A. A. A. The Crimson lost but three men from the team that took first place last Winter, Al Miller, "Red" Haggerty and Jim Ballantyne. Coach Eddie Farrell's men can make it three straight by winning the team trophy again this year.

Morris Muslin of Stuyvesant, 18 years old and only 5 feet 8 inches tall, is a consistent "six-footer" in the high jump. How many colleges have a jumper who can do as well?

The fastest college relay flashed around these parts this Winter was the 3:25 4-5 mile run by the Holy Cross lads in beating Georgetown in the Millrose games. Tut Hoctor, running anchor for Georgetown, just failed to get up at the tape. He may make it next time. And the "next time" may be in the "indoor intercollegiates" at the 102d Engineers' Armory on March 3.

The Georgetown team, by the way, "crashed" in last year's indoor championships, finishing in seventh place. But the lads from the Potomac are coming up twenty-five strong this year and hope to make things hot for Harvard and Holy Cross, among others.

A few high spots in prospect at the intercollegiates. Wildermuth of Georgetown and Scull of Penn in the dash. Holy Cross, Georgetown and Syracuse in the mile relay. Bates, N. Y. U. and Boston College in the two-mile relay. And Sabin Carr of Yale in the pole vault. Looks like a lively scramble.

COWARD AGAIN WINS SQUASH TOURNEY

Gains Second Leg on Westchester Biltmore Trophy by Conquering Hyde.

VICTOR'S WALLOPS DECIDE

Strong Drives Enable Him to Win at 15-11, 18-17, 15-9—Clark Vanquishes Ganley.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club, winner of the first Westchester-Biltmore invitation squash tennis tournament last year, gained his second leg on the trophy today when he defeated F. Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club in the final round, 15—11, 18—17, 15—9.

These two players advanced to the final this morning when Coward eliminated Edward B. Larigan of the Crescent A. C. at 15—1, 15—11 and Hyde put out B. H. O'Connor, also of the Crescents, at 15—17, 15—8, 15—1.

In an exhibition match that followed the meeting between Hyde and Coward, Ernest Clark, professional at the Columbia University Club, defeated William F. Ganley, coach of the home club at 6—15, 15—6, 11—15, 15—10, 18—17, bringing the three days of play to a close before a large gallery.

A match between Hyde and Coward is always an event in the squash world, and this was their first meeting in an individual tournament since 1926, Hyde having dropped out of competition. It was Coward's tremendous wallops straight up and down the court that decided the issue, for Hyde was not quite able to keep up with the ball. The Harvard player handled his opponent's drives around the corner in beautiful fashion, standing up front in the centre of the court to keep the ball in play with cleverly placed returns.

For the first two games there was little to choose between them, with Coward setting the pace and Hyde ever pressing him. In the second game the Harvard man had an excellent chance to even the count, but after a game of 5 had been set at 13-all Coward added greater pace to his strokes and came through by the margin of a point at 18—17. Standing two games down, Hyde fell off a bit in his control as Coward pressed the attack, and the Yalesian, hitting crashing drives, came through by a fairly comfortable margin.

GIANT ELEVEN PLAYS TODAY

Soccer Team to Meet Newark at Polo Grounds in Cup Game.

At the Polo Grounds this afternoon at 2:30 the New York Soccer Giants and Newark will meet in a Lewis Cup replay. The competition in this tourney is restricted to American League clubs and each match is decided on a home-and-home basis, with total goals determining the winner. In the first match between the Giants and Newark, staged at Starlight Park, the Giants won by 1 to 0. The following day at Newark the home team triumphed by the same score. The total score thus was tied and overtime failed to break the deadlock.

The Giants are anxious to win this afternoon's game. They have been eliminated from the national tourney and want to gain the Lewis Cup. As the match is being played on a neutral field, each side will have the same chance of winning.

MLLE. DEVE TAKES THREE NET CROWNS

Beats Mme. Golding in French Indoor Final After Great Rally, 2-6, 12-10, 8-6.

SCORES IN MIXED DOUBLES

Had Gained Women's Doubles Title Day Before—Rivals Mlle. Lenglen in Dashing Play.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Showing more ability than any French feminine player since Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, Mlle. Deve today concluded the French covered court championships with victories in three categories.

She won the women's singles, defeating the more experienced Mme. Golding in a gruelling contest, winning the last set after trailing at 1 to 5. Mlle. Deve lost the first set, 6—2, but in the second, which she won at 12—10, she showed a fast all-around game with much fine net play and a speedy service.

Mme. Golding, despite her lead of 5-1 in the last, couldn't take the match as the young Russian-Finnish player rallied to win at 8—6.

Playing with Thurneyshen almost immediately after the singles, Mlle. Deve won the mixed doubles by defeating Broqedis and Mlle. Charnelet. Yesterday Mlle. Deve, paired with Mlle. Conquet, captured the women's doubles title.

CELTICS' SPURT BEATS CLEVELAND, 26 TO 22

Visitors Rally Near End, but Are Held in Check—Visitations Bow to Philadelphia, 32-29.

The original Celtics, displaying a dazzling passing attack, staged a last half rally to defeat the Cleveland Rosenblooms in an American Basketball League game at Arcadia Hall in Brooklyn last night, 26 to 22.

The Celtics, who trailed at half time, 11 to 10, pushed their score up to 26 on resuming play, while Cleveland added only five. The visitors threatened in the closing moments, but the Celtics managed to stave off their rush.

A great spurt in the second half enabled the Philadelphia Warriors to score a 32-29 victory over the Brooklyn Visitations in the other league game last night at Prospect Hall. Brooklyn was able to score but ten points in the second half, while the Warriors scored twenty-two. It was the Visitations' first home defeat. They led, 19-10, at half time.

C. C. N. Y. TO PLAY TONIGHT.

Will Face Manhattan Five at the Ninth Regiment Armory.

The annual Manhattan-City College basketball game will be played at 8:45 this evening at the Ninth Regiment Armory on Fourteenth Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The contest, which is on a neutral court, should be one of the finest college games of the season as both the local quintets have splendid records thus far.

Coach Nat Holman's charges, after a poor start in which they lost three of their first four games, have won eight straight victories. Manhattan has captured eleven of thirteen encounters. A game between the freshmen teams of both colleges will precede the varsity game.

RAWLINS FINALIST IN SQUASH RACQUETS

New York Star Puts Out Poole in Five Games in National Individual Title Play.

BAKER VANQUISHES POWERS

Defending Champion Wins, 15-12, 15-13, 15-10—New York and Boston Score in Team Events.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Herbert N. Rawlins of New York, metropolitan champion, advanced to the final in the national squash racquets individual championship play today when he defeated J. L. Poole of Harvard University at the Penn A. C. in five hard games, 13—15, 18—15, 6—15, 16—14, 15—7.

In the other semi-final Myles P. Baker, present national champion, repulsed Ralph Powers of Boston, 15—12, 15—13, 15—10.

Rawlins and Baker will meet tomorrow afternoon for the United States title, and while the Bostonian generally is picked to retain his crown, there are many who believe the New Yorker has a chance of victory.

Poole Takes First Game.

Poole, recent winner of the Massachusetts State championship, rushed Rawlins off his stride by taking the first game, and the second furnished plenty of action before Rawlins won and evened the score. Poole took another game, and then the New York star cut loose with one of the finest exhibitions ever witnessed at the Penn A. C. to capture the next two games.

In the intercity team championship play New York and Boston gained the finals. The 1927 title was held by Harvard University, which was unexpectedly eliminated yesterday by Detroit.

The New York team took three of the five matches from Philadelphia, while Boston dropped one match in its five against Detroit. The Philadelphia team, conquerors of Washington and Buffalo yesterday without losing a single match, could not compete with the splendid playing of P. Lenhart, Philip Keenan and E. Fincke.

Maxon Wins for Detroit.

R. Maxon was the only Detroit winner. He defeated P. B. Watson in three games.

Individual Championship.

Semi-Final Round—H. N. Rawlins, New York, defeated J. L. Poole, Harvard, 13—15, 18—15, 6—15, 16—14, 15—7. M. P. Baker, Boston, defeated Ralph Powers, Boston, 15—12, 15—13, 15—10.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

A Time of Uncertain Indications —Stock Market, Steel Trade and Employment.

Last week's markets possibly reflected more perplexity than had been exhibited in a good many months. On the Stock Exchange, the almost daily alternation of upward and downward movements indicated at least the absence of positive views regarding the general situation. There was news enough on which to base belief; but the news was singularly conflicting, and both the Stock Exchange and the business community found it difficult to interpret confidently. Taken by itself, the unusually rapid increase of 26 per cent. in January's steel output would ordinarily be taken to mean immediate speeding up of activity in the industrial situation generally. The similarly sudden increase of 36 per cent. in August, 1924, and of nearly 40 per cent. in October, 1922, was shown by the sequel to have had precisely that significance. But at the same time the reports of the State Industrial Commissions, supplemented by Governor Smith's description of the scope of unemployment, indicate that conditions are worse in that direction than they have been at any time in the present industrial reaction, and apparently the worst since 1921.

It can hardly be doubted that the steel trade's recovery made far more impression on the financial mind than the news of unemployment. Revival in the basic industry has probably led to general belief that we are already passing out of the period of reaction, of which reduced payrolls were only one and perhaps a belated symptom. Nevertheless, the incident adds to the perplexities which have surrounded the past year's developments. It has been a period of trade reaction so unlike all previous episodes of the kind that, for a considerable time, some of our highest financial authorities refused to admit the existence of any such condition. Reaction prevailed on a disturbing scale early in 1924, its presence was proved then by the year's great fall in company earnings. There had been unmistakable reaction for several months after the armistice, and again after the breakdown of the inflation markets of 1920. On both occasions the character of the situation was indicated, not only by sweeping decline of prices but by great increase of unemployment. Earlier in 1927, it was pointed out that earnings were maintained, that labor was fully employed, and that therefore no real reaction in trade existed.

The 41 per cent. decrease in the United States Steel's December-quarter earnings, the 30 per cent. reduction of December's net railway income, and last week's news that unemployment had become nation-wide, settled that question in regard to 1927, but they still left some striking contrasts with the other periods. Granting the scope of trade reaction in the last half of 1927, it was preceded, accompanied and followed by a rapidly rising stock market and by uninterrupted increase in bank exchanges. This was an absolute novelty in our financial history.

What is the explanation of the curious anomaly? Study of the bank exchanges shows that their increase, regardless of the vicissitudes of trade, was itself a result of greatly increased activities on the Stock Exchange. For the rise in Stock Exchange prices, Wall Street is apt to argue that the market ignored the trade reaction of 1927 because it believed resumption of full activity to be certain. But that belief prevailed in 1924 and 1921 also, and turned out to be correct, yet without averting severe readjustment on the Stock Exchange. There would seem to be only two ways of accounting for this departure from precedent in the present instance. One is the supposition that confidence in uninterrupted maintenance of the highest prosperity has come to be so ingrained in the public's mind that even visible evidence to the contrary cannot shake it. The other is the fact that so great an army of buyers, speculative and non-speculative, had been drawn to the Stock Exchange by last year's action of the market and by the constant expansion in the facilities of credit, that the influences which would at ordinary times have shaken investment values produced no effect.

What will be the longer result of a condition of things so contrary to all previous principles and experience is a question on which different authorities will possibly disagree. It is in some respects, no doubt, a direct result of the unprecedented financial prestige which circumstances of the past thirteen years have conferred on the United States. It has been ascribed to the inflationary influence of the huge American gold reserve, operating on the least controllable speculative market all the more forcibly because the prudence of business men had prevented it from dominating trade and industry. But it certainly seems to rob the stock market of the capacity, once unanimously conceded to it, of foreshadowing the nearer as well as the more distant variations of the country's industrial fortunes, and it leaves the economic picture as a whole curiously perplexing.

Diversification Increases Income Stability

Earnings of the General Vending Corporation are stabilized through twofold diversification:

1. Principal subsidiaries derive earnings from essentially different sales appeals.

2. Contracts for placement of machines with leading chain store systems and Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Co. insure nation-wide diversification.

BANK OF ENGLAND ACCUMULATING GOLD

Belief at London Is That It Is Preparing to Amalgamate Paper Currencies.

DRAWS ON HOME RESERVES

Bank Now Holds 38⅝% Gold Against All Currency Issues, but Aims at Higher Percentage.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The most encouraging feature of the London monetary situation at the moment is the strength of the Bank of England's position. With last week's very large increase of its gold holdings, it is reckoned that the present ratio of the bank's gold reserve to the total outstanding paper currency, including currency notes, is 38.62 per cent. A higher proportion than this is aimed at before the amalgamation of the note issues, however, and it is now evident that the Bank of England is steadily preparing for that event.

Last Thursday's return showed gold holdings of £157,565,108, which compares with £150,189,275 a year ago, with £155,742,064 at the date of the return to the gold standard in April, 1925, and with £164,500,152 on Aug. 5, 1925, which was the highest point touched since the restoration of the gold standard. The bank's reserve at the present time, amounting to £42,045,353, is the highest since July, 1916, and compares with £32,969,620 a year ago. The ratio of reserve to deposit liabilities, at 37.3 per cent., is the highest since July 29, 1914, and not far below the pre-war figure.

Where the Gold Comes From.

During the week ended last Wednesday, the bank reported in its daily bulletin returns a net influx of £858,000 gold arriving from abroad, but the weekly return showed an actual increase of £1,687,180 in gold holdings. This means that £829,000 must have been received from internal sources. Gold paid privately into the Bank of England does not figure in the daily bullion return, and the suggestion is made that possibly a large amount of gold arrived from Russia on private account during the week, and was immediately transferred to the Bank of England. Gold does, however, accumulate in other banks from home sources, and is at intervals paid into the Bank of England. This latest transfer may represent such accumulation.

Although impressed by the strong position of the bank, the money market is firmly maintaining discount rates, owing to the uncertainty surrounding the American monetary situation and the knowledge that London is at present the repository of extensive foreign balances, which are kept here mainly because of the favorable level of interest rates. The successive advances of rates at the American Federal Reserve Banks is nothing more than was expected here, in view of the advance of the New York rediscount rate, but a very keen interest is being taken in the American financial situation.

Watching Reserve Bank Policy.

The London market is waiting to be necessary to check the New York stock market speculation; but thus far the feeling here is that the gesture of the American banks has been more or less ignored by Wall Street. It is beginning to be believed that, unless considerably greater pressure has to be applied in the American monetary situation, the financial markets outside of the United States will be free from important disturbance. Nevertheless, the change of Reserve Bank policy is considered adverse, inasmuch as it has stopped the flow of American gold to Europe.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £289,060,069, compared with £288,423,068 one week ago, £288,048,758 two weeks ago and £290,664,593 three weeks ago. The highest for 1927 was £302,059,998 for the week ended June 8; the lowest was £280,206,850 in week ended Jan. 21.

SPECULATIVE SPIRIT IN LONDON'S MARKETS

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Pronounced activity prevails on the "gambling counters" of the London Stock Exchange, where values of speculative industrials, in the judgment of conservative bankers, are becoming dangerously inflated. The speculative spirit is very pronounced, but there is also a big demand for industrials falling into the investment classes. New industrial securities, of both investment and speculative sorts, are being eagerly absorbed. Oversubscription is a feature of nearly all capital issues at present, except those which fall into the really gilt-edge category, and whose current yields are 5 per cent. or less. Those rates do not appear attractive to new capital.

A shadow has been thrown momentarily over gilt-edge securities by the statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer that there is little likelihood of a reduction of the income tax in the next budget. This has added to the vigor of search for comparatively high yielding securities, owing to the large proportion of income which is still absorbed by direct taxation.

Practically the whole yield from the income tax is at present absorbed by interest on the national debt, but the Chancellor's contention that the debt must therefore be reduced before any relief can be given income tax payers does not find general endorsement. Many believe that a lower income tax would so improve the Government's credit that national debt charges for interest could be substantially lowered by satisfactory conversions and that the income-tax reduction must precede and not follow the lowering of the cost of the national debts.

FRENCH BANK AGAIN BUYER OF EXCHANGE

Purchases Necessitated by Outside Speculation for the Rise in Francs.

INCREASE EASE IN MONEY

French Investors Are Now Buying Fixed-Revenue Securities and Selling Home Stocks.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Last week's increased purchase of foreign exchange by the bank was ascribed to the interpretation put by many people on the Poincaré speeches. On the theory that his ambiguous statement favored partial further revaluation, renewed buying of francs resulted. Since the bank was thus forced to take more foreign exchange than the week before, fresh money was placed at the disposal of the markets.

Part of these new cash resources, finding no better employment, went last week to increase deposits by private banks with the Treasury, and this permitted the Government to make the further repayment of 300,000,000 francs on its debt to the bank, notwithstanding the month-end payments, which usually compel the Government to borrow at this time. The money market has, therefore, continued easy, and cheap money has stimulated the rise in Government rentes and other fixed-interest bonds. Such securities still give a relatively high yield. The 6 per cent. loan of 1920, for example, still remains below par, also free of taxation on its coupons.

French stocks, on the other hand, are now selling at high prices in proportion to their dividend yield. The net yield of those most favored in speculation, after allowing for deduction of taxes, works out between 2 and 4 per cent. Their high price results mostly from belief that legal stabilization will cause an all-around further rise.

This, however, is considered in the Paris market to be the judgment chiefly of foreigners, and not of good financial authorities at home. On the contrary, many French capitalists have lately been selling at the present market level. They also bought last week foreign securities with a higher yield.

After last month's sharp recovery in home securities, profit-taking arrested an upward movement last week and a slight reaction ensued. The sales were made by speculators who had been disconcerted by Poincaré's speeches and who were selling French securities against an anticipated further rise in the franc, but the movement has now slackened.

FEWER IDLE IN FRANCE.

Advance in Wages Still Much Larger Than Rise in Living Costs.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The weekly official statistics of unemployment give a total of 17,469, compared with 17,840 in the preceding week and 14,700 in January. Wages have not been greatly reduced in connection with the decrease of industrial activity, although most industries have continued their shorter schedule of working hours.

Compared with the pre-war average, wages still show a much larger proportionate advance than the rise in the cost of living to the average working man. Salaries in the public service have been multiplied by a coefficient of eight for the lowest categories, but the higher salaries have been changed only by a three-fold increase.

Poincare's Vagueness Causes Perplexity in Paris Market

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Paris markets have continued to be influenced by Poincaré's speeches; but the effect has been confusing, for the obvious reason that his political-electoral declarations regarding legal stabilizing of the franc were purposely made vague, in order to please the different sections of his support in the Chamber. Paris bankers, however, are perfectly aware that the decision not to enact formal stabilization before the elections still holds.

They consider that all words from the Premier are spoken with the object of justifying that attitude. On the other hand, it is evident that the Government agrees with the bank that the de facto stabilization of the franc at the present rate of exchange must be maintained.

LITTLE REVIVAL SEEN IN BRITISH HOME TRADE

Foreign Orders for Steel Disappointing, Textile Industry Facing Cost-Reduction Problem.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Renewed slackness is reported in some heavy industries. The steel trade is being maintained largely by internal consumption and foreign orders are none too plentiful. Conditions do not seem to promise or warrant any further immediate expansion in iron output. The coal trade, however, while showing no particular change for the better, is giving promise of greater activity in the near future.

The textile trade is still facing the difficulties of an uncertain future, which is not expected definitely to brighten until the large problem of cost-reduction is solved and trade is put upon a really strong competitive basis. Unemployment shows further decline, but there is no reason to modify the view that British trade generally is on the up-grade.

BRITISH RAILWAYS RECOVER

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—British railway companies now are declaring their dividends for 1927 and for the first time since 1924 they are being paid out of actual earnings. The year's results are not yet stated in complete form, but those so far announced show no further drafts upon reserves necessary to pay the dividends.

The aggregate sum of nearly £19,000,000 was withdrawn from reserves for dividend purposes in 1926. But large savings, especially on coal, were effected last year, which probably marks a definite turn for the better for British railway finance.

BRITISH BANK BUYS GOLD.

Takes £416,000, Half of Transvaal Arrivals, in Week.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—During the last calendar week the Bank of England took in £416,000 gold. This was made up entirely of bullion bought in the open market; it represented about one-half of the week's total arrivals from South Africa.

Withdrawals were £61,000, of which India took £46,000 and Spain £10,000, while £5,000 went to unstated destinations. Gold arrivals from the Cape, due next Tuesday, amount to £325,000.

HIGH MONEY RATES PERSIST AT BERLIN

Bankers No Longer Expect Reduction at Reichsbank; Look for Strong Trade Demand.

MUST BORROW MORE ABROAD

Renewed Effort to Secure Abolition of Tax on Yield of New Securities.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The high money rates incident to the January settlements have this time continued longer into the new month than is usual. Until Feb. 9, day loans remained at 6 to 8 per cent., but the supply was sufficient and toward the end of the week the rate declined.

There were times when the day rate was as high as the rate for monthly loans, something which is said never to have happened before. Bankers have abandoned hope of any speedy reduction in the Reichsbank rate and are now inclined to think that the slackening of home trade activity will be slower than was anticipated and that therefore the demand for credit by industrial borrowers will continue large.

At the same time the capital market has been burdened by the first 100,000,000 mark subscription to the Railroad Corporation's loan. This had been regarded as a test of the money market. Although subscriptions came in satisfactorily, there was no eagerness to take the loan, and financial journals therefore predict that if foreigners (which in practice means Americans) are willing to lend, borrowing from abroad will continue unabated. For that reason a fresh attempt is being made to induce the Government to abolish entirely the 10 per cent. tax on capital yield, which is deducted from income tax at its source.

Since the foreign lenders refuse invariably to pay German taxes, this tax, so long as it is not remitted by the Government, falls upon the borrowers. A whole series of financial and industrial organizations have petitioned the Government to repeal the tax both for Germans and for foreigners, and two of the Reichstag parties have decided to submit a motion to that effect. If the tax were to be abolished, the result would be to increase the applications for American capital, and it is also argued that public finance would lose practically nothing through the abolition since German payers of the tax are allowed to deduct it from their income schedules.

ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN GERMAN BUSINESS

January Iron Output Again Increases—Steel Orders Large, Shipping Dividends Favorable.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Business conditions in Germany continue good. January's pig iron output was 1,180,576 tons, as against 1,149,680 in December and 1,060,000 in January, 1927. The January output exceeds that of any month in 1927. The Steel Works Association's monthly report again states that the mills have orders in hand for many months ahead. The first shipping company reports are also favorable. The African Woermann Line increased its dividend from 6 per cent. to 7, and the German East African Line not only showed increased profits, but paid 7 per cent. dividend, against nothing last year.

The textiles industry reports a smaller decline in orders, and there are signs that its stocks of finished goods are accumulating, but this is considered a natural reaction after the large home sales and heavy imports of 1927. The paper industry also reports a good home business, though it predicts that exports will decline as a result of tariffs in American and Latin countries.

LARGE DIVIDENDS PAID BY BANKS IN GERMANY

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The first reports and balance sheets of German banks for 1927 are beginning to appear. The Berliner Handelsgesellschaft, which ranks among the seven largest institutions, repeated its 12 per cent. dividend of the preceding year, and smaller banks which have thus far reported show good results.

The six other large Berlin banks are expected to repeat the dividend payments of 1926. Although 1927 is described as only a "middling banking year," owing to inactivity on the Boerse and shrinkage of the home market for new securities, the banks in 1926 had accumulated such enormous "hidden reserves" that they can easily afford to pay dividends at the former rate.

Expect Less Trade Activity Here.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—In this market confidence continues to be expressed regarding the longer future of American industry. Nevertheless, French financial circles believe that the present year will witness slackening industrial activity in the United States. They do not expect any sharp crisis, however.

Course of Sterling Depends On the American Situation

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Co. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The renewed firmness in sterling last week was taken here to indicate that the level of money rates in London is still high enough to attract American funds. The future, however, has been rendered very uncertain by the change in the American bank policy.

Sterling's course in the next few weeks will probably be determined almost entirely by events in America; so that New York, in endeavoring to estimate the possibilities, should first look on its own situation. The Bank of England will do its utmost to avoid raising its rediscount rate. It will take that step only if its hand is forced by developments in the United States.

LEIPSIC COURT RULINGS REOPEN OLD LAWSUITS

Claims Against Mortgage Debtors Revived Which 'Valorization Law' Had Disposed Of.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Private financiers began last week to express serious apprehensions concerning the reopening of the debt valorization question. The Government has three times declared this controversy finally closed, yet it constantly reopens. No fresh official legislation is pending, but the Federal Appeal Court of Leipsic has handed down a series of sensational decisions on existing valorization laws.

These decisions create claims against debtors, of which no expectation had been entertained. After ten years many individuals, including some foreigners, have lately been dragged into lawsuits over business deals whose existence they had forgotten. Some of these decisions had the effect of giving to old and supposedly extinct claims for mortgages precedence over other mortgages subsequently arranged.

The result is insecurity for both home and foreign capitalists, who, it is pointed out, may at any day discover their bonds to be worthless owing to alleged priority of ancient claims of which they never heard. Resurrection of such claims is plainly forbidden by the language of the Valorization law, but the Court of Appeals laid down a number of years ago that it is "entitled to intervene creatively in legislation"—which apparently means that it is entitled to make its own laws.

Berlin Reports Foreign Buying Checked by the Advance.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Stock Exchange authorities believe that the Berlin market has felt the influence of the rise in the New York Reserve Bank discount rate. They report that this has had the effect of reducing purchase of stocks at Berlin by Swiss, Dutch and other foreign buyers.

The Boerse showed no distinct tendency during the week. It was dull on most days and practically dead on Friday, but the undertone seems to be firm, though no demand was visible except for artificial silk shares.

SURPLUS GERMAN REVENUE.

Small Excess for 9 Months Due to Higher Salaries and Pensions.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The Federal Treasury's return for the first three quarters of the current financial year shows on the combined ordinary and extraordinary budgets a surplus of only 29,000,000 marks. The smallness of this return is due, however, to increase of salaries and pensions toward the end of 1927.

The January quarterly receipts, which are always large, should, however, replenish the Treasury.

SEES OIL SLUMP IN MEXICO.

Paper There Says Reduced Work Will Be Big Blow to Industry.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—Declaring its information to be from a first-hand source, the Universal predicts today a new and very grave depression in the petroleum industry in Mexico as a result of the action of the Huastecа and Transcontinental Companies, which, the paper says, have decided to cut their operations to a minimum.

The Huastecа Petroleum Company is said to have notified the Government of its intention to reduce field operations 60 per cent. and those at the refinery 50 per cent.

Reduction by the Transcontinental Oil Company is reported to be in about the same proportions, and hundreds of men, it is added, will be deprived of work. The paper says that the Huastecа is already putting its reductions into effect.

Regarding reimbursement of men losing employment the Universal reports that the Government Petroleum Agency at Tampico considers that the proposals of the companies do not comply with the law and that action is being taken at headquarters.

One of the principal causes for the curtailment in operations given by the companies, the paper says, is reduction in oil prices abroad, the American selling price being 80 cents a barrel, while it costs a dollar a barrel to produce oil in Mexico.

ITALY READJUSTED TO GOLD STANDARD

Stocks Rising, Money Market Easy and Unemployment Beginning to Decrease.

PAPER CURRENCY REDUCED

Believed That Legal Stabilization of the Currency Has Brought Return of Financial Confidence.

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The process of adjustment to the legally stabilized lira continues satisfactorily. Unemployment is now decreasing slightly from its maximum of 414,000 in December, which compared with a minimum for 1927 of 214,000 in June, with 181,000 in December of 1926 and with a low mark since the war of 72,000 in August, 1925. Of these now unemployed 100,000 belong to agriculture and an equal number to the building trades. Employment should increase in the last-named industry as a result of the recent tax exemptions on new buildings which are expected to give an impetus to new construction.

Money continues persistently easy; so much so as to have led to belief that the bank rate was about to be lowered. In high financial circles, however, reduction is opposed until after finances on the gold basis have been more definitely consolidated. The present note circulation of 17,768 million lire is the lowest reached since the maximum of 22,000 millions in 1920 began to be reduced. Compared with a year ago, the note issue has been cut down 1,975 millions and it has been reduced 696 millions during the past month. It is estimated that per capita paper circulation in July is now 82 lire, as against 73 before the war.

The stock market has moved favorably. At the end of January the index of Stock Exchange quotations stood at 129, an advance from an average of 124 at the end of the preceding month. The high point since the war was 230 in February, 1925; the low point 99, last July. At the present time all stocks show advances except shares of motor-car, hotel, restaurant and theatre companies. It is generally admitted that stabilization of the lira has restored confidence in industrial investments.

Locusts Menace Sudan Cotton Crop.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Feb. 12.—The Tokar cotton fields in the Sudan apparently are threatened with serious damage, owing to the presence of hordes of locusts, which are reported to have appeared in Kassala province and at Port Sudan, defying efforts to destroy them.

ITALY'S IMPORT EXCESS MUCH LOWER IN 1927

Copyright, 1928, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The report of Italy's foreign trade for the whole year 1927 shows an adverse balance of 4,759,000,000 lire. This contrasts with a similar import surplus of 7,214,000,000 in 1926; but the difference is accounted for almost entirely by the fall in prices resulting from appreciation of the lira. Foreign exchange values measured in the lira decreased during 1927 fully 25 per cent., while prices of goods for export declined 20 per cent.

This indicates that the almost equivalent decline in exports was due to the fall of prices measured in paper lire. Incomplete statistics of exports by quantities show a slight increase over the preceding year.

STOCK INDEX UNCHANGED.

Fisher Average Places Typical Values 2½ Times That of 1926.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 12.—The weekly index number of Stock Exchange prices, compiled by Professor Irving Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial stocks, reckoned on their average of 1926 as 100, is 267.9, unchanged from the week before. It compares with 261.6 two weeks ago, 255.9 three weeks ago and 258 four weeks ago.

The lowest average for the year to date was 255.9 in the week ended January 20; this week's average is the highest.

ENDURING FINANCIAL RECORDS

A limited number of copies of The New York Times each day are printed on imperishable rag paper which will last indefinitely in files. Banks and business houses that place their announcements in The New York Times will have the assurance that their advertisements appearing in the newspaper preferred for such announcements will also be a permanent record.

COOLIDGE URGES FAVOR TO CUBA

President Is Disturbed by Lack of Congress Action on Parcel Post Change.

MAIL COMPACT AT STAKE

Cuba Will Refuse to Renew It Unless It Allows Sending of Cigars.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge is represented as greatly disturbed because Congress has failed to enact legislation requested by Cuba permitting shipment by mail of cigars and cigarettes in less than 3,000 lots. The Cuban Government has notified the State Department that the temporary parcel post convention, which expires on March 1, will not be renewed unless such legislation is enacted and thus enable Cuba to obtain some advantage from the agreement, which is now mainly one-sided in that the benefits are almost wholly derived by American merchants who have built up a large business with Cuba.

The President is concerned lest Congress should fail to act promptly and thus prevent this Government from carrying out its promise to Cuba that the restrictive law would be repealed. Cuban officials have declared that the negotiation of a permanent convention is entirely dependent on the lifting of this restrictive law.

President Coolidge last week summoned House leaders and urged them to expedite the pending bill and thus make possible the continuation of the parcel post convention. He told them it was most desirable that the measure be passed because it not only would carry out this Government's promise but tend to develop better relations with Cuba.

President Coolidge has been assured by the House leaders that the bill sponsored by Representative Henry W. Watson of Pennsylvania will be passed shortly under a special rule. He was told, however, that it was very doubtful, because of the political complexion of the Senate, and the demand for tariff revision by the Farm bloc and the Democrats, whether the bill would be accepted by the Senate without amendment.

In the opinion of House leaders the same political combination that passed the resolution requesting the House to proceed with tariff revision would attach to the Cuban legislation as a rider tariff legislation unacceptable to the President.

President Coolidge, while in Havana, discussed the parcel post problem with the President of Cuba. It is believed that another extension of the agreement might be effected because of the friendly relations created by this visit.

In the event the bill should carry a general tariff revision rider, the President, it is believed, would not approve it.

This might cause American merchants to lose a considerable source of trade, as nearly 1,000,000 parcel post packages were sent to Cuba last year, while Cuba sent only 18,000 to this country.

Sections 3,804 and 3,402 of the Revised Statutes prohibit the importation of less than 3,000 cigars or cigarettes in a single package and these are the provisions that make it impossible for Cuba to ship cigars by parcel post to this country.

FOREIGN BONDS HIGHER.

Bankers Tell of Increased American Participation In World Finance.

That the United States is playing an important part in supplying the capital requirements of the world is evidenced by the fact that about 400 separate dollar bond issues have been underwritten during the last five years, as contrasted with only twenty or thirty such issues before the World War, according to Brown Brothers & Co.

As a result of this participation by the United States in foreign financing, the general tendency of foreign bond prices has been definitely upward for a long time, the bankers declare. The average quotations for twenty representative foreign issues outstanding in this country have advanced more than four points in the last four years, from 95.25 as of Jan. 4, 1924, to 106.28 as of Jan. 3, 1928.

The practice of issuing "American shares" against the deposit of foreign stocks, which was adopted with the revision of the listing regulations on foreign stocks by the New York Stock Exchange, is also reviewed by the bankers, who describe seventeen issues of this type.

HAWAIIAN BANKING GROWS.

Examiner Reports All Twenty-three Institutions In Sound Condition.

The condition of Hawaii's twelve banks and eleven trust companies on Dec. 31, 1927, was sound, according to H. A. Asch, Deputy Bank Examiner. The ratio of combined loans to combined deposits was 70.1 to 100. There was no increase in the capital stock of the twelve banks in the year. The combined resources of the institutions increased 7.8 per cent., or $6,647,747; deposits increased 7.2 per cent., or $5,148,188, and loans increased $2,625,518, or 5.8 per cent.

One trust company, the United Chinese Trust Company, Ltd., paid up its authorized capital stock in full, this item increasing the combined capital of the eleven institutions of this class by the sum of $40,500. The figures for the twenty-three financial institutions shows an increase of 15 per cent. in combined surplus and undivided profits to a total of $8,035,321; an increase of 8.8 per cent. in combined resources to $108,082,335; an increase of 9 per cent. in deposits to $84,898,386, and an increase in loans of 8.4 per cent. to a total of $59,517,013.

VLADIVOSTOK BUILDS PIERS.

American Mail Line Tells of Plans for $3,000,000 Improvements.

Plans have been made for the expenditure of about $3,000,000 in the next five years in improving the port facilities at Vladivostok, Siberia, according to information reaching the American Mail Line from agents in that city.

The Chinese Eastern Railway is said to be encouraging shippers to export their goods via Vladivostok rather than by Southern trade routes. Some of the largest bean oil manufacturers in Dairen have already removed their headquarters to North Manchuria in anticipation of the new changes.

STEEL PRODUCTION GAINS IN VOLUME

FURTHER GAINS CERTAIN

Heavy Buying of Foundry Iron in the East, but Business Is Dull In Other Places.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 12.—Two pecific steel news items of the week vere of a promising character. They vere the Steel Corporation's unfilled onnage statement and the report of teel ingot production in January. No price advances of note were announced, but the mills seemed to be etting along smoothly on the road oward full effectiveness of recent rice advances in actual shipments. The entire increase will not be felt ntil after April 1. In various lines ontracts running for the current uarter are at less than present asking prices, but these contracts in ost cases represent slight advances ver prices ruling on fourth-quarter hipments, so that there has been a ittle gain already.

The Steel Corporation has now hown increases in unfilled obligaions for four consecutive months. he increases in October, November nd December were more or less of outine character and therefore not specially impressive. There was the nnual rail buying movement, which ach year helps bookings at that ime, while December witnessed the sual contracting for the new quarer. The January increase just reorted, on the other hand, was different, as in both 1927 and 1926 January showed a decrease. Present unilled obligations of 4,275,947 tons ompare with 3,800,177 tons a year go.

December shipments of the Steel orporation were 925,000 tons, which ith 518,430 tons increase in unfilled bligations made approximately ,440,000 tons as the estimated bookngs. In January the unfilled obligaons increased 303,073 tons, but there as such an increase in shipments as o represent substantially the same ookings, a remarkable circumstance eeing that there was less mill buying nd quarterly contracting fell in December rather than in January.

Steel production in January was qual to the January average in the ast three years—and above the January four-year average. The gain over December, 25 per cent., was large, presumably as an outcome of December roduction having been below the December average. Further gains his month and next are a certainty rom the present outlook, and only 0 per cent. gain over last month would make next month the record igh in steel production. This does ot necessarily mean much as to the entire year, since March of last year ade a new record, yet the year as a whole was off 7 or 8 per cent. rom the year record.

The more important consideration s maintenance of a relatively high ate of production. The habit of the ast four years has been for production to begin declining in April. gainst a repetition of such performance is the larger unfilled tonage on mill books, as well as the prospect that the automobile industry will attain its heavy rate of production later this year than in other ears. The Ford program as thus ar disclosed would not indicate full roduction before about July 1. While orders for about 25,000 freight ars have been reported since early December, the report of the American Railway Association shows only 12,431 cars on order by the reporting roads Dec. 31, suggesting that active building of freight cars will come later this year than last. During December the roads retired 9,010 cars, but installed only 3,055 ars. Apparently they have been getting in arrears in this matter.

While the oil and gas fields are expected to do little more drilling this year than last, when their tubular goods consumption was light, it is noted that California has substantially increased its buying in the last two weeks, and some important natural gas pipe lines seem to be nearing the closing stage.

The raw material markets throw little light on the iron and steel situation. There has been heavy buying of foundry iron in New England and in the East generally, but that is an iron foundry matter chiefly. The iron foundry business in Western Pennsylvania and Ohio is still dull, and the valley pig iron market has been practically stagnant, showing even less turnover than in January.

Connellsville furnace coke for spot shipment has stiffened, odd lots at under $3.75 having been absorbed by slightly increased operations of blast furnaces dependent on purchased coke. The most significant coke item is the resumption of Connellsville coke manufacture by the Steel Corporation in the past week, after a couple of months in which the corporation supplied its blast furnace requirements exclusively with by-product coke.

The Pittsburgh district scrap market remains dull, but this is interpreted merely as increased confidence on the part of the mills that they do not need to provide extensively for the future.

STEEL EARNINGS SHOW AN INCREASE

Price Advances Hold, but Effect Will Not Show Until Next Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 12.—Steel company earnings in the present quarter will show a substantial increase over last quarter, by reason of tonnage. This, however, is the usual seasonal experience and is not in itself suggestive regarding the year as a whole. There will be a slight increase in average prices realized, but not sufficient in itself to make much difference.

The heavy increase in realized prices will at best come in the second quarter, as that is the time for price advances to become practically effective. There has been no weakening at any spot in the advanced stand taken by the various producers, and a reassuring point is the fact that specifications are coming in freely on bar, shape and plate contracts, which are at an advance of at least $1 a ton over fourth quarter contracts.

Sheet mills are well obligated through the quarter at old prices, but have now gotten the market up $3 a ton on black and galvanized sheets, while they are asking a similar advance on automobile sheets, so that if prices hold realisation will be higher in the second quarter. A little talk has arisen in the past week as to a possible stiffening in pipe prices. While there was a decline last year pipe prices are still rather remunerative, that decline having been the only one from the level reached in steel's general advance in 1928. In some sections there is shading by pipe jobbers, but that is not unusual.

APPOINT TWO AGENCIES FOR FERROMANGANESE

English Companies Redistribute Their Business Here—Implications of British Product Decline.

A redistribution of the agencies which have been marketing English ferromanganese in the United States has been completed, which has resulted in placing the business in the hands of two companies, Frank Samuel & Co. of Philadelphia and Rogers Brown and Crocker Brothers, Inc.

The Rogers Brown and Crocker Brothers Company is agent for the new United Kingdom Ferromanganese Manufacturing Company, Ltd., which includes the Darwin and Mostyn Iron Company, Ltd.; the Wigan Coal and Iron Company, Ltd.; Dorman, Long Company, Ltd., and the United Steel Companies, Ltd.

Frank Samuel & Co. have the agencies of the Linthorpe Smelting Company, Ltd., and Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., Ltd.; C. W. Leavitt & Co. and C. Tennant Sons & Co., formerly represented two of the companies now represented by Rogers Brown and Crocker Brothers.

The English product is much less widely consumed in the United States than in the past. The metal began to be imported from England when the American steel industry was in its infancy, and for many years practically the entire supply came from that country.

It was not until the war that American-made ferromanganese came into widespread use, although the United States Steel Corporation had produced its own ferromanganese and spiegeleisen requirements for several years.

Since the war the position of the domestic product has increased constantly, with chief imports coming from Canada, but England and Norway still shop some of the metal here. Our imports last year totaled 34,018 tons, against 43,982 tons in 1926. Domestic production last year was about 292,800 tons.

SPURNS SOVIET PLEA ON FUND HELD HERE

REJECTS RECHT'S DEMAND

Payment of $964,000 Is Dictated From Washington Not From Russia, Lawyer Declares.

As the Soviet Government is not recognized by the United States, it has no right to interfere in the matter of the payment of $964,000 by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company to Serge Ughet for loss of munitions in the Black Tom (N. J.) fire twelve years ago, Frederic R. Coudert of Coudert Brothers, 2 Rector Street, attorney for the "State of Russia," said yesterday.

The Moscow Government has protested against the award and the payment by Mr. Ughet, former financial attaché of the Kerensky Government, of the money to the United States Treasury as interest on the Russian debt to this country. After the fall of the Kerensky régime, Mr. Ughet remained here as the custodian of Russian property.

The State Department has announced that it would ignore the Russian protest, and Mr. Coudert has refused to accede to the demand of Charles Recht of 110 West Fortieth Street for an accounting of the disbursement of the money.

Mr. Coudert said that "neither the Soviet Government nor Mr. Recht has anything to do with the matter." He recalled that similar protests were made during the court proceedings which led to the award.

"The courts refused to allow the Soviet Government to interfere," he said. "The whole matter is within the competence of the State Department. Public policy as to information regarding the details of the transaction is dictated from Washington and not from Moscow.

"These protests were made before, but, as now, no attention was paid to them. The Soviet Government is not recognized by the State Department nor by the courts in this country, and this matter simply does not concern it. I don't know what purpose the Soviets have in thus advertising their existence."

TEACHERS' PAY PLAN DEFENDED BY PARENTS

Associations' Governors Rebuke Group Agitating to Change Program of Increases.

The recent $14,000,000 salary increase schedules of the Board of Education was defended in a resolution of the Board of Governors of the United Parents' Association of Greater New York Schools, made public yesterday.

An implied rebuke of the agitation against the schedule allotments conducted by the elementary school teachers was contained in the last paragraph of the resolution which said that "we, the parents, feel that we have the right to expect from the teachers of our children and from their leaders a dignified and judicial presentation of their grievances which should include a statement of the underlying reason for what has been done and for what it is desired to have accomplished."

Individual parents' associations were asked to consider "both sides of the question of teachers' salary schedules" and to "refrain from passing resolutions or endorsing plans until they have heard a full discussion of the reason for the schedules."

The schedules of the board, the resolution said, were fixed in accordance with the recommendation of the Mayor's Committee which had utilized research material gathered by the Citizens' Committee.

The resolution was passed as a result of a decision to organize a parents' committee to aid the lower grade teachers' campaign reached at a meeting last Wednesday night in the Community Church, 12 Park Avenue. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Kindergarten to 6B Teachers' Association and speakers attacked the "discriminatory nature" of the schedules. Johanna M. Lindlof, President of the association, pointed out then the difference between high increases given to administrative officers and the maximum rise of $200 a year allotted to lower grade teachers.

CHICAGO REFLECTS TRADE PROSPERITY

One Outstanding Feature Is the Marked Increase in Dry Goods Business.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Business conditions in the Chicago territory continue to make a favorable showing, an outstanding feature the past week being the marked increase in the wholesale dry goods trade due to a convention of merchants. There was also considerable activity shown in the steel and iron trade with mills showing a tendency to increase schedules on account of freer specifications against outstanding contracts.

The buying of steel is fairly general and it is expected that large orders for structural material will be placed in the immediate future. There has been no agreement as to wages between miners and operators, with the former refusing to recede from their stand in regard to the scale, and the latter determined that it will be reduced.

In the meantime production in the West continues equal to requirements, but there is a slow demand as the result of milder weather.

Automobiles continue to be bought with considerable freedom, although it is claimed that there have been numerous cancellations of orders for a low-priced car owing to inability to obtain deliveries. This has resulted in an enlarged business in several other makes.

WIDE SURVEY OF MAINE BEING MADE BY BOARD

Legislative Commission to Study Conditions in State With Aid of 100 Leaders.

One of the most comprehensive surveys ever to be conducted by a State is now under way, according to Clarence C. Stetson, Chairman of the Maine Development Commission, who discussed the undertaking yesterday at the Plaza. The commission, which was created by the Legislature, will analyze the State's "industry, finance, labor, power resources, agriculture, forestation, transportation, recreation, education and allied subjects," with the assistance of 100 leaders in these fields.

Mr. Stetson, who is here to consult the National Research Council in connection with the survey, explained its purpose was "to find out what is sound, to see what industries can be profitably expanded, to learn what new enterprises are suited to the State. Its primary object is to bring greater prosperity."

"The survey will show farmers how and where they can develop new markets," he said. "It will show merchants and consumers what can be made or grown in the State that is now brought in from outside."

The Legislature has appropriated $100,000 for the survey, he said, and the study is expected to "benefit all of Maine's 795,000 inhabitants, as well as make it even more delightful for the visitor."

Headquarters of the commission are in Augusta, Me. Its members are John E. Abbott, Charles Ault, Charles O. Beals, Lewis S. Bean, Willis E. Parsons, Hiram W. Ricker, Edgar C. Smith, Neil L. Violette, Frank P. Washburn and George F. West. Mr. Stetson is President of the Bangor Chamber of Commerce, the Maine Hardwood Association and the Eastern Maine Musical Association.

CUTS ATLANTIC CITY FARES.

Pennsylvania to Charge $7.50 for Round Trip From New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 12.—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today a reduction in fare between New York and Atlantic City. Announcement was also made of four one-day excursions from New York during the Lenten season. The Reading Railroad recently announced a reduction in fares from New York.

Beginning March 1, said James S. Murphy, division passenger agent of the Pennsylvania, seventeen-day tourist round-trip tickets between New York and this city will be issued for $7.50. The present rate is $8.40. He said that after March 11 and until Oct. 31 these tickets would be good for thirty days.

The first one-day excursion during the Lenten season from New York and Trenton will be on Washington's Birthday, and the other excursions are on March 4, 11 and 18.

Week-end travelers on the New Jersey Central trains to Atlantic City were surprised to see a man apparently distributing dollars to the passengers, but who, in reality was refunding the eone dollar difference between the regular round trip fare of $8.40 and the new excursion fare of $7.40. The one dollar excess fare was removed for the special week-end trains, but the road has decided to allo withe rate to remain, hereafter, throughout the week.

GROWTH OF SURETY WRITING

Business Now 100 Times as Great as Fifty Years Ago.

Surety and fidelity companies in the United States are writing a hundred times as much fidelity, surety and burglary insurance premiums as they did fifty years ago and almost four times as much as ten years ago, according to a graph prepared by the National Surety Company. Beginning with less than $1,000,000 in 1877, the total steadily increased until $18,000,000 was reached in 1911. It has been estimated that the underwriting profit to the companies has averaged approximately 5 per cent. of the total during this time.

"The surety business has become necessary to modern business. Business depends on agreements, and agreements are guaranteed. The surety companies guarantee contracts for the construction of buildings and subways, the payment of financial notes, bond issues and all kinds of financial paper. They guarantee bank deposits and the honesty of employes in corporations. Of recent years, however, surety companies have had to stand losses averaging $5,000,000 a year by guaranteeing deposits, and burglary and theft losses have increased to approximately $13,000,000 a year.

COSMETIC TRADE FINANCING

Industry Increased 477 Per Cent. Since Beginning of War.

The perfume and cosmetic industry, one of the oldest extant, is one of the latest to come to Wall Street for its capital requirements. Bankers who have made an investigation of this industry say the manufacture and sale of perfumery and cosmetics during the last decade has been one of the fast:t growing businesses in the world and that total sales have had a steady and marked increase each succeeding year.

Their calculations are supported by the Government census of manufacturers, which shows that the value of products made in the industry in one year amounted to $147,392,734 as compared with $25,514,352 in 1914, an increase of 477 per cent. since the beginning of the war. These figures are factory values and do not include selling cost, advertising and wholesalers' and retailers' profits. The consuming public pays for these products between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 each year, according to Shields & Co., who have completed a study of the industry.

COTTON ORDERS INCREASE.

South Reports Improved Demand From the Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—There were reports last week of an improvement in the demand for cotton goods as well as a better percentage of forward orders reaching the mills, which will permit a modification of the curtailment of operations which spinners have recently resorted to, to prevent an accumulation of unneeded stocks.

Several Southern mills in the Huntsville district of Alabama have resumed full time. Much interest is felt in the showing to be made in the monthly report of the Cotton Textile Institute showing the production and movement of cotton textiles during January. There is a belief that this report will be encouraging.

COTTON PLANTING TO BE RESTRAINED

Price Situation Tends to Prevent Excessive Acreage Over Most of South.

MARKET POSITION IMPROVES

Purchases From the Texas Cooperatives Help to Strengthen Tone.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—The cotton market, while not showing any great amount of activity during the past week, developed a firmer tone and prices gradually advanced until the May option at the highest reached Friday showed a gain of 102 points, or a shade over $5 a bale compared with the low of the recent downward movement reached on Thursday of the preceding week. The close of the week showed a net gain of approximately $4 a bale compared with the close of the preceding week.

Technical Position Stronger.

The improvement in cotton has been due in large measure to the stronger technical position of the market as a result of the drastic liquidation which accompanied the decline during January and the first days of the present month.

The shrinkage in values eliminated practically all of the stale long interest and at the culmination of the decline during the preceding week there was a great deal of price fixing by spinners and consequent selling of hedges. With this process out of the way the market was in a position to improve on any constructive development, and there have been several during the week under review.

Probably the first stimulating influence was the purchasing of a large amount of cotton from the cooperative associations in Texas. While this naturally led to some hedge selling which at first depressed contracts, it left the spot markets in better condition, with less pressure to sell.

The next aid which values received was the continued dry weather in the western portions of Texas and Oklahoma, which has deprived these sections of the moisture in the ground that is considered essential.

Large Planting Discouraged.

Probably the most important stimulant to the market was the growing belief that the decline in the value of cotton, especially October contracts, has served to discourage the enthusiasm of cotton growers for a larger acreage this season. The more conservative and intelligent farmers realize that with the price for October deliveries around or actually below the cost of production there is little incentive to add to the acreage with the certainty that the result will be a further decline in values. Moreover, the banks and commission merchants on whom the growers are dependent for financial assistance, realizing that with lower prices the element of safety in financing the crop will be very much weakened. Accordingly they are scrutinising credits very closely and are disposed to refuse advances to those farmers who show a disposition to unduly increase acreage.

Another stimulating influence to cotton prices has been the rapid spread of the pink boll weevil visitation in the western part of Texas. So far this destructive pest, infinitely harder to deal with than the boll weevil, has so far not extended beyond a district which heretofore has produced little or no cotton. At the same time there is grave danger that the pest will rapidly spread to the rich cotton districts to the east.

INDIA BUYING COTTON HERE.

Entry of Broadway Into Local Market Regarded as Significant.

The Far East has commenced to purchase cotton in the open market in New York, and, while the purchases in number of bales have not been large, nevertheless cotton traders believe the shrewd East Indian buyers have "caught the bottom of the market." The entrance of purchasers for Bombay delivery last year marked a change in the price trend. It is estimated that some 30,000 bales have been purchased for East Indian delivery in the last fortnight.

Commenting on this development, one of the large cotton houses said yesterday:

"The quantity purchased for East India is not statistically important, but the transaction is, nevertheless, highly significant. It is a striking thing that the South, paying wages of $2.50 a day to grow cotton, can sell it to East India, where the laborer is paid about 25 cents a day. If American cotton is cheap enough for India to buy it is cheap enough for every spinner in the world to accumulate with the utmost confidence."

Kunz Again Leads Scenic Society.

Dr. George F. Kunz has been re-elected President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society. Colonel Henry W. Sackett, Henry Harper Benedict and Reuben Leslie Maynard were re-elected Vice Presidents, and Wolcott J. Humphrey of Warsaw, N. Y., was added to the Vice Presidents.

LIVE STOCK PRICES HOLD WELL IN CHICAGO

Quality of Cattle Offerings Falls Off, While the Run of Hogs Improves.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—While cattle prices were 25 to 50 cents higher early in the week, the close found the advance practically eliminated, although the week's average price of $13.80 was 25 cents above that of the previous week and compared with $10.50 a year ago, and $9.70 in 1926. Quality of the offerings has fallen off considerably and the best heavy steers sold up to $17.65, compared with $18.50 the previous week.

Supply of stockers and feeders was small and prices were 25 to 40 cents higher for the week, with many unfilled orders in the hands of shippers. Bulk of beef steers for the week sold at $12 to $15.65, compared with $12 to $15.15 the preceding week. Calves gained around $1 from the recent low point and sold up to $17, and while 50 cents under the recent high of last year, were the best figure at this season since 1920. Supplies of all cattle at Chicago for the week were 43,000 against 50,000 the preceding week and 55,000 last year, with 46,000 estimated for all this week, which will compare with 58,000 in 1927.

Hog prices rallied sharply a one time during the past week, but the general average of $8.15 was ten cents under that of the previous week, and $3.85 under that of last year and compared with $9.25 two years ago. Quality showed considerable improvement, and there were more butcher stock weighing 225 pounds or more than for some time past and a further improvement is expected. Average weight the past week was 228 pounds, or 8 pounds more than the previous week and last year and the same as two years ago. Top and average price at the last was 35 cents apart, the widest in a month and is likely to widen still further with lightweights showing the most strength.

At the close the average price was within 5 cents of the lowest since July, 1924. Receipts here for the week were 215,000 or 50,000 under the previous week and 48,000 more than last year. Estimated arrivals for all this week are 235,000 and will compare with 140,000 last year.

Fat lambs and sheep closed $1 higher as compared with the finish of the previous week, lambs averaging $15.35 for the week, a gain of 5 cents over the previous week and at the top touched $16, compared with $13.25 a month ago. Yearlings sold up to $14.85 and ewes to $9.50 and shearlings at $15. Feeder lambs were up 50 to 75 cents for the week.

Receipts at Chicago the past week, 75,000, showed 11,000 more than the previous week and 12,000 under last year with 90,000 estimated for all this week against 82,000 in 1927.

MARCH DEADLIEST MONTH.

Life Insurance Company Watches Records for Ten Years.

March is deadliest month of the year, according to the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company. It has been so for ten years. The company's index of the average number of death claims shows that in March the claims jump abruptly to 106 from the February average of 84. This is an excess of 27.34 points from the year-round average of 78.66.

December and January are the closest rivals of March, their numbers being 90 and 85 respectively. Then begins the drop until the dog days of August and September become the safest to life of all the months, with the low index figure of 61 and 62, respectively. The returning vacationist finds another dangerous bulge i.. October, when the index hops 19 points to 81, easing again to 76 in November.

By seasons, the index is as follows: Spring, 87.66 claims; Winter, 86.33; Autumn, 73; Summer, 67.66. The year 1927 had the lowest mortality of the last five years, and greater savings were made from that source than in any of the company's seve.. t.six years of history, according to P sident Welch's annual report.

MOVEMENT OF CORN REACHES ITS CREST

Run From Farms Is Short-Lived, but in Excess of Last Season's.

PRICE OF CASH GRAIN RISES

Wheat Crop Scare Subsides With the Advent of Beneficial Rains in Southwest.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—The period when large receipts of cash corn at terminal markets are to be expected is rapidly drawing to a close and with normal weather conditions farmers should start to get into the fields in the Central West in a little over a month. Crest of the annual Winter movement of corn has passed, according to close observers of conditions. While there may be an increase in deliveries for a while with the return of cold weather, the movement in all probability will not last long and there are every few who look for receipts any time during the remainder of the crop year to equal the 1,156 cars received here on Jan. 30.

While the run has been relatively short-lived, it was far in excess of the previous season and since Nov. 1 terminal markets have received around 114,000,000 bushels, against 79,000,000 bushels in 1926-27. Despite the liberal arrivals there has been no large accumulation in stocks, the visible Monday probably showing around 35,000,000 bushels, or 14,000,000 bushels in excess of Nov. 1. Last year during the same period there was a gain of 21,000,000 bushels. The disappearance of cash corn from the terminals in three and one-half months has been 100,000,000 bushels, or nearly double that of 1926-27.

The fact that the price of cash grain has gained on futures in the face of the large receipts is having considerable influence on sentiment which is much more bullish than of late, and while setbacks are regarded as probable from time to time, there are a great many operators who believe that May will sell at $1.10 per bushel or above before many weeks.

March corn closed Saturday at 93 cents; July, 97¼ to 97¾ cents; May, 95⅞ to 96 cents, showing net gains of 4 to 4⅞ cents for the week.

Primary receipts for the week aggregated 12,993,000 bushels and were the best at this season in over five years, comparing with 15,617,000 bushels the previous week and 4,366,000 bushels last year. Shipments were 7,446,000 against 6,681,000 bushels the preceding week and 1,839,000 bushels a year ago.

The crop scare that seemed to be developing in the wheat market in the previous week vanished with the advent of highly beneficial rains in a good part of the dry area in the southwest. May wheat has had a range of 9¾ cents per bushel from the middle of September to date and there is nothing in the general run of the news to get the market out of the rut.

All breaks to around $1.25 per bushel for wheat so far this crop year have developed excellent buying and no material decline under that figure is anticipated, even though foreign markets are depressed by the increasing weight of the large Argentine exports.

Tightness prevails in March wheat here and it is claimed that there is a concentrated holding in that delivery of sufficient magnitude to make it very uncomfortable for shorts. The near-by delivery went to a premium over the May for the first time in a number of weeks, and owing to small stocks here any material revival in the shipping demand might cut down the local contract stock to a dangerously low total.

March wheat closed Saturday at $1.30⅝ to $1.30⅞, a net gain of 1⅛ cents for the week; May finished at $1.30¼ and July at $1.27⅛, showing gains of ⅞ to 1 cent.

Primary receipts for the week were 5,671,000 bushels; previous week, 5,668,000; last year, 4,963,000 bushels; shipments, 3,221,000; previous week, 2,200,000; last year, 2,308,000.

Oats prices held within a range of ⅜ to 1⅛ cents the past week, with trade light. The close was at net gains of ⅜ to ⅝ cents, with March 35 cents, May 35½ cents, old July 52½ cents and new July 33⅝ cents.

Rye showed relatively more strength than wheat, due to a revival in the export demand, and March and May closed at $1.00⅝ and July $1.04½, with net gains of 2⅛ to 2⅜ cents.

RUBBER IRREGULAR IN LONDON MARKET

Fluctuations Frequent, With the Closing Prices at Lowest—Tin and Lead Also Lower.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—In the rubber market plantation was again very irregular. Fluctuations were frequent between the range of a half penny per pound below last night's close and a farthing above. At the close, prices were at the lowest of the day with the tone unsettled and nervous.

Smoked sheet spot and February sold at 1s 3¾d to 1s 4¼d to 1s 3¾d and value; March 1s 4d to 1s 4½d to 1s 4d and sellers; April-June, 1s 4½d to 1s 4⅝d to 1s 4d and buyers; July-September, 1s 4⅝d, 1s 5⅛d to 1s 4¼d and buyers; October-December, 1s 5d to 1s 5¼d to 1s 4⅝d and value. In the shipment market smoked sheet July-December sold at 1s 4⅛d c. i. f. New York.

Grades were dull. Hard fine spot was quoted at 1s 2d; soft, 1s 3¾d and ball 1s 1d and sellers.

Tin—The East reported 325 tons sold, at £242 c. i. f., a fall of 15 shillings. The market here was weaker at the close, showing a decline of £5 for cash and 4s 1½d for three months. Sales, 1,200 tons. Cash at £235 to £232 to £233; February, £233 5s; March, £235 5s to £233 10s; April, £236 15s to £233 10s to £235; May, £236 5s to £235; three months, £238 10s to £234 to £235 5s. The settlement price was £233. English closed quiet at £234.

Lead: The market was poorly supported and under renewed offerings near dates fell 8s 9d and forward 7s 6d. Sales, 1,000 tons. February at £20 10s to £20 6s 3d; March, £20 12s 6d; April, £20 16s 3d and May, £21 2s 6d to £20 18s 9d. The settlement price was £20 7s 6d. English declined 10 shillings to £21 15s.

SEEKS RUBBER IN FERNS.

Edison Making Thorough Investigation of Flora in Florida.

Rubber even from ferns is being sought by Thomas A. Edison in his Florida investigations, according to a report made public at the New York Botanical Garden yesterday from Dr. John K. Small, head curator of the museum and herbarium of the garden, who is aiding Mr. Edison in the field.

"As showing how thorough Mr. Edison's investigations are, even these somewhat unpromising plants are being analized for their rubber content," the garden's announcement said.

"The fern flora of Florida is phenomenal. About 110 kinds of ferns and allied plants grow naturally in 'the Peninsular State'; over fifty occur in a small area at the Southern tip of the Peninsula."

WILL SPEND $6,000,000.

Philadelphia Suburban Gas & Electric Plans Extensions.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—More than $6,000,000 will be spent by the Philadelphia Suburban-Counties Gas and Electric Company on plant extensions and general improvements this year, it was announced here tonight by H. H. Ganser, Vice President and general manager. The company is a subsidiary of the United Gas Improvement Company.

Estimates show that the residential and industrial territory adjoining Philadelphia will use more than 4,600,000 cubic feet of gas during 1928. The estimated increase in electric sales is more than 17 per cent., and in gas sales more than 10 per cent., compared with the 1927 output. The company's territory embraces about 1,400 square miles.

TO CONFER ON TREND IN WHOLESALE TRADE

CHENEY TO GIVE KEYNOTE

Exchange-Irving Trust Officer Will Address Session Called by Chamber of Commerce.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A national conference of wholesalers will open here tomorrow under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, to consider suggestions for a more economical distribution of the nation's merchandise through improved business methods in important branches of trade.

Officials of the National Chamber expect the conference to present a cross-section of the country's business. Several hundred prominent business men, representing many wholesale trades, will attend, exchange facts and consider the opportunities and needs of the future.

W. M. G. Howse, President of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Associations, who is a director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will preside. Judge Edwin B. Parker, Chairman of the National Chamber's board, will make the address of welcome. The agenda embraces four chief topics, wholesale functions and services, economic factors affecting wholesaling, business analysis and financial aspects.

O. H. Cheney, Vice President of the American Exchange Irving Trust Company, the keynote speaker, is expected to stress important features of the present outlook and suggest fundamental problems facing wholesalers of the United States.

Style changes and group buying are among the economic factors to be considered. Means for determining profitable trading areas and the economic minimum of profitable orders are included in the list of probable subjects.

"Wholesalers of the United States face an interesting and changing future," the Chamber said in a statement tonight. "It is evident that wholesaling in many lines is in a state of flux. The variety of methods which have resulted from widespread distribution changes is so great that full exchange of information by wholesalers in all trades is the most direct and certain means for arriving at a true picture of wholesaling as it exists and functions in 1928.

"By defining and clarifying the scope of wholesaling throughout industry, the conference should be attended by economic results of the widest consequence and great benefit."

COMPLETING TWO INQUIRIES

Trade Board to Report on Cotton Seed Industry and Cooperatives.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Two more economic investigations conducted by the Federal Trade Commission are nearing completion, one dealing with price situations and competitive conditions in the cotton seed industry, the other into cooperative marketing. The field work has been finished on both and they are up for final consideration by the commission.

The cottonseed inquiry was made pursuant to a resolution of the House adopted March 2, 1927, directing the commission to investigate the action of those industries engaged in purchasing cottonseed for the purpose of crushing the seed, and those industries engaged in refining and otherwise processing and marketing cottonseed, and so ascertain if there be a combination agreement or association to fix prices of cottonseed or to violate any of the anti-trust laws.

The inquiry into cooperative marketing has reached the point where the commission is considering the draft report of that part of the inquiry dealing with the growth and importance of cooperative marketing associations, the extent and importance of interference with and obstruction to the formation and operation of such associations, their financing problems and a study of cooperative failures and suspensions, together with the underlying conditions. The report will also include a comparative study of prices and returns to producers as between the cooperative and other types of marketing.

COMMODITY AVERAGE ADVANCED LAST WEEK

Highest for 1928 to Date—British and Italian Average Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 12.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of commodity prices, based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 97 for last week, compared with 96 the week before, 95.6 two weeks before, 99.7 three weeks before and 95.1 four weeks before. This week's average is the highest for the year to date; the lowest thus far in 1928 was 95.1 in the second week of January.

Crump's index number of British commodity prices, as cabled for the past week and also based on 100 as the average for 1926, is 92.5, which compares with 93.6 a week ago, 94.4 two weeks ago, 94.7 three weeks ago and 94.4 four weeks ago. This week's average is the lowest for 1928 to date; the highest was 94.7 in the third week of January.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled and cabled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan and based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 74.3. This compares with 75 the preceding week, 74.9 two weeks ago, 74.5 three weeks ago and 76 four weeks ago.

COMMODITY PRICES

Mixed Trend in Cash Markets—Grains and Cotton Strong, Other Articles Lower.

New high prices for the grains, while some other articles were gravitating to low points, was the mixed result of the trading in the cash markets last week. The strength in the grains followed the lifting of hedges against mill sales of several thousand bushels of cash wheat in the Chicago market. This developed into a bullish turn for wheat, corn, rye and oats, in which the first two named were established at new highs. Cotton was another to rally from the sharp decline in the previous week. Other gains were reported in family beef, printcloths and silk.

Dairy products, lard, pork, lead, tin and rubber were heavy, all reaching new lows for the year. Steadiness prevailed in flour, iron, steel billets, copper, zinc, hides, gasoline and crude oil.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

RESIDENT OFFICES REPORT ON TRADE

Retail Interest in Ensembles Continues Very Keen, Buyers Explain.

REORDERS COME EARLIER

Toy Buyers Critical—'Gallack' New Crepes Advanced—Worsted Season for Men.

Orders for Spring apparel and accessories continue to be actively placed. The demand is well diversified, according to the reports of the leading resident buying organizations, and re-orders are coming through nicely for merchandise which retailers have shown. Ensembles retain their leadership in women's ready-to-wear. Purchasing of both men's and boys' clothing is on the upgrade, with quieter effects favored in the former.

Excerpts from the market reports follow:

McGREEVY, WERRING & HOWELL—"Retailers are riding the 'ensemble hobby' apparently to their advantage, no other feature of women's apparel lines comparing with it in favor. Domestic toy manufacturers opened their fair this week, without, however, any great activity being shown as yet. Buyer interest is more critical this season and for this reason orders may develop later than usual. All lines of plain silk crêpes have been advanced and delicacy of desirable goods cannot be had under three weeks. Fall orders on heavy-weight underwear for men are coming in very slowly due to price uncertainty."

ETTMAN & STORCH—"While the 'middy' and navy coat with the butter mole trimming is being re-ordered and promises to be good, many of the smart shops are already becoming interested in the all-black coat. The one fur trimming that is new and smart is 'gallack.' This fur is high-priced and cannot be copied very easily in cheaper furs and for this reason should take well with the better trade since the all-black coat is what the smart woman will buy. In ensembles there has been a noticeable demand lately for ensembles in larger sizes for women. In these ensembles most of the buying is of cloth coats with all silk dresses."

Early Re-Orders on Prints.

JOHN M. BIGGINS, INC.—"The silk fabric market is in a strong position. Desirable merchandise for spot shipment is pretty well cleaned up. Printed silk crêpes and chiffons are in active demand and shopping is required to get a desirable range of styles for immediate shipment. Re-orders are coming in for prints, which is unusual so early in the season. Flat crêpes look good and their vogue is indicated for another season. Prices have been advanced in some instances and all manufacturers are talking advances in the near future."

JAY & CO.—"Ensembles with dresses to match lining of coats lead in popularity. Two-piece suits of twill and gabardine are going stronger at present than was expected two or three weeks ago. A few of our Southern and Western accounts have ordered silk coats in faille and satin, combined in some instances with broadcloth and kasha. The latest models of these coats display a tendency toward monkey, blond mole and fitch as outstanding fur trimmings. Dresses of the better type have been in demand. Styles of flat crêpe, navy georgette prints and novelty woolen materials lead."

HART, FLANAGAN COMPANY, INC.—"Ensembles for children have been developed in sizes from 8 to 14. We think it advisable that retailers feature a few of these as they will undoubtedly assume added importance with the growth of the season. At prices ranging from $10.50 to $16.50 there are obtainable combinations of good quality tweed, lined with printed silk, the same material composing the dress. A $16.50 kasha leads the demand. This style is lined with flat crêpe and has a flat crêpe dress."

Decorative Oilcloth Offered.

MERCHANDISE REPORTING COMPANY. "Oilcloth manufacturers are introducing a decorative cloth in monotone for which there is an unusually great demand. This cloth is carried not only in the regular oilcloth departments but is being featured in most of the house furnishings departments because of the colors matching harmoniously with the colored enamel ware which is so popular today. This cloth can be had not only in the wider widths, but is also made scalloped in the narrow widths to be used in the kitchen for shelving purposes."

BEN F. LEVIS. "Many millinery buyers have been in the market. Straw styles of all types seem to be wanted, with the tailored mode dominating. In the popular priced ranges crochet visca is still lead. The cellophane braid hat, a shiny straw, has been copied from higher priced numbers. Flowers are being used as trimming in many cases. Felts have been selling fairly well. Blouses are meeting with a fairly good call. Silk styles in plain colors and high shades, including printed crêpe and radium numbers, from $33 to $42 a dozen, are being bought."

AFFILIATED CLOTHIERS. "Indications in men's Spring clothing point to a worsted season, with a decided tendency to shadow effects and cluster stripes. Fine herringbones in plain shades with subdued stripes are very well regarded. Various shades of tan continue to be outstanding colors. We believe, however, that new dark blue gray shades, together with medium blue grays, will sell well this Spring. The three-button soft-roll coat is still the leading model. The two-button style, however, is gaining momentum and should undoubtedly do well as the season progresses."

WILLIAM LOWETH COMPANY, INC.—"Conditions in the dress market have been most encouraging during the past week. Reports from out-of-town merchants indicate a healthy condition of their dress stocks. Practically no Winter merchandise remains and new styles coming in are moving nicely. Re-orders on dressy ensembles are noted, and ... are now entering a period of the dressy ensemble developed in softer afternoon types with silk crêpe and georgette full-length coats. Some excellent values to retail for $25 or more are now to be had with full-lined coats and long-sleeve dresses. Cables from Paris forecast a lively interest in taffeta frocks for daytime wear."

JACK HARTBLAY, INC.—"Retailers have been actively covering their boys' clothing needs for Spring. Suits in fancy mixtures, blue serges and blue cheviots are the outstanding types. Buying of suits with two pairs of golf knickers in sizes up to 14 and 16 showed a marked increase during the week. The call for suits in all sizes having one pair of long trousers and a pair of knickers has dropped off considerably, amounting now to only 15 per cent. of the total. Boys' topcoats with hats to match are still in good call. Manufacturers who heretofore made only topcoats are now turning out the hat and coat combinations."

Pacific Mills to Show Models.

In cooperation with Gimbel Brothers, Pacific Mills, will exhibit here this week a collection of models made of their new lines of Spring and Summer dress cottons. The display will consist of twenty styles of frocks and negligees, and will continue throughout the week in the wash goods department of the Gimbel store. It will be in charge of Miss Helen A. Dougherty of the Pacific Mills staff. Its purpose will be to demonstrate to women how easily they may make smart garments for the new season by using patterns of the well-known pattern companies. The models have been made from patterns particularly adaptable to make cotton frocks.

NO DEPRESSION FOUND IN CLOTHING TRADE

Survey of Profits in 1927 Refutes Belief Caused by Sales and Unseasonal Weather.

A study of the net profits of thirteen men's wearing apparel manufacturers for 1927, compared with the year before, shows that contrary to belief, the clothing trade was not depressed last year. This belief had been due to the unseasonal weather and to numerous sales by the retail stores to liquidate stocks of seasonable clothing.

Three leading shoe manufacturers, however, reported an aggregate gain of 31.10 per cent. in net profit over 1926, while five men's clothing companies show a gain of 11.98 per cent. Five miscellaneous men's wear companies showed an increase of 7.16 per cent., and the whole thirteen reported a 23.64 per cent. increase, only three showing declines.

The following table shows the net profits of the companies mentioned for 1927 and 1926, together with the percentage of change:

ANOTHER NEIGHBOR SELLS TO ROCKEFELLER

Follows Foley's Action in Yielding Tract Adjacent to Estate at Pocantico Hills.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Following the acquisition by John D. Rockefeller of the holdings of John Foley, a milkman, Edward M. Materne, a neighbor of Foley at Pocantico Hills, has likewise sold his property to Mr. Rockefeller, it was learned today.

The milkman's property was obtained for the Rockefeller estate after Foley for many years had refused to sell and had entered into lengthy litigation with Mr. Rockefeller regarding a road passing through property they owned. It has been reported the owners of two other pieces of property on the northeast corner of the Rockefeller estate at Pocantico have received offers to sell. The price paid for Materne's parcel was not made public.

Negro Tenants League Meets.

A mass meeting of negro tenants was held in the Rush Memorial Church, 58 West 138th Street, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Tenants League, formed recently to agitate for a continuance of the rent laws and for better housing for negroes in Harlem. About seventy-five attended. Among the speakers were Richard B. Moore, President of the League; Arthur C. Holden of the Commission to Examine and Revise Tenement House Laws, and Assemblyman Abraham Grenthal.

FAVOR NEW HUDSON TUNNEL

Fourteenth Street Merchants Back Hofstadter Bill.

Merchants of the Fourteenth Street section are supporting the bill introduced by Assemblyman Samuel H. Hofstadter in the legislature, authorizing the Port of New York Authority to construct a second vehicular tunnel under the Hudson River, according to an announcement by the Fourteenth Street Association yesterday through its President, H. Prescott Beach. The Fourteenth Street Association in a letter to the Port Authority recommends that the proposed tunnel be built between West Fourteenth Street and Castle Hill, N. J.

"Fourteenth Street is the longest crosstown street in Manhattan," says the announcement, "and its accessibility to numerous rapid transit lines would facilitate the movement of tunnel traffic. It may afford connection with the proposed west side elevated express highway. Fourteenth Street's connection with a vehicular tunnel would expedite trucking and cut trucking costs. Further it is suggested that Fourteenth Street would afford direct connection for traffic between New Jersey, Brooklyn and Long Island."

LAW TO FORCE WIFE TO PAY REPAIR BILL

Mechanics Lien Bill Amendments Will Stop Shifting of Responsibility.

ARCHITECTS ARE HELPED

Equipment Rented for Construction Aids Will Also Benefit by Proposed Changes.

Up-State building and supply interests met with New York contractors last week to put the final touches to the proposed amendment to the mechanics lien law. The changes proposed in the law will fix the responsibility of husbands and wives for payment for private house or other building repairs or construction, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

At the urgent solicitation of A. G. Senior of Utica, who, as counsel, represented the up-State building and supply associations, two amendments were incorporated into the proposed bill. They are aimed directly at the husband who orders repairs on property owned by his wife, who, when the bill is presented refuses to pay it on the ground that she did not order the work done. If the bill is enacted into law, and the wife does not have the work stopped before the expiration of the third day from which it is begun, the wife, as owner, becomes responsible for the payment of the bill.

Another amendment makes the foregoing principle apply to joint tenants, co-tenants or tenants in common.

The paragraphs inserted in the bill read as follows:

"Where the real property upon which the improvement is being made or is about to be made is owned by two or more persons as tenants in common, or as joint-tenants, one co-tenant or joint tenant shall be presumed to be the agent of the other co-tenant or co-tenants, or joint tenant, or joint tenants duly authorized to bind such co-tenant or co-tenants or joint tenant or joint tenants with regard to any matter relating to the improvement, unless such other shall within three days after visible commencement of such improvement give the contractor written notice of his non-consent to the improvement.

"Where the contract for an improvement is made with a husband or wife and the property belongs to the other or both, the husband or wife contracting shall be held to be the agent of the other, unless such other shall within three days after visible commencement of such improvement give the contractor written notice of his or her non-consent to the improvement."

Architects to Be Compensated.

James F. Bly of Brooklyn, representing the New York Society of Architects, urged a further amendment so as to include assured compensation to architects for preparing plans for vast building projects which proceed part way and for some reason stop. This change was agreed to upon condition laid down by Sidney G. DeKay of the last committee of the Association for the Revision of the New York State Lien law, that the architects agreed to add to the word "preparation," the words "and accepted."

The approved section, which also provides for lien law protection covering the rental value of hired machinery, appliances or equipment, such as pumps, power shovels, scaffolds, &c., used in modern construction, now reads as follows:

"The term 'improvement,' when used in this chapter, includes the erection, alteration or repair of any structure upon, connected with, or beneath the surface of, any real property and any work done upon such property or materials furnished for its permanent improvement, and shall also include any work done or materials furnished in equipping any such structure with any chandeliers, brackets or other fixtures or apparatus for supplying gas or electric light, and shall also include the drawing by an architect or engineer of any plans or specifications prepared and accepted for (which are) use (d) in connection with such improvement(.), and shall also include the rental value of tools, apparatus and appliances used in connection with such improvement."

Early in the campaign for the revision of the New York State Lien law A. L. Carr, Brooklyn manager of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, and W. P. Harvey, general counsel for that company, urged that adequate provision be made by bonding companies to insure the completion of projected buildings, even to the extent of seeing to it that subcontractors supplying materials to the job should be paid in private as well as in public work. This has been incorporated in the bill in the following section:

"Section 13f. Filing of a bond. The provisions of Sections 3, Article 2, 3a, 4, 4a, 12, 13a, 13b, 13c and 15d of this act shall not apply to any land and/or improvement if a good and sufficient surety, duly approved, as provided for in this article, and upon due notice to all persons having a right to file a lien, as herein provided for, shall have been filed in the office of the clerk of the county where the land and/or improvement is located, which bond shall be conditioned for the payment of all material furnished or to be furnished, and/or labor performed or to be performed, on the particular land and/or improvement, which bond shall inure to the benefit of those who otherwise would have a right to a lien against the property and/or improvement."

Commenting on the changes, Mr. Beals said:

Subcontractors Are Protected.

"The condition that this provision is expected to cure is that where an owner, with or without collusion with a general contractor, awards a job that could not possibly be completed for less than, say, $100,000, for something like $70,000. At present, when such situations arise, the subcontractor, supply man or material firm loses $30,000 when the completion bond is discovered to guarantee completion of the job to the owner and includes no provision for the payment of the subcontractor or supply man.

"By the same process the material man has no recourse to either a municipality or to the State, and in building construction alone, more than $20,000,000 was lost in the first ten months of last year by building material and supply firms in this city.

"The incorporation of Section 13f into law is expected to give a greater sense of security to lending institutions, for it will greatly reduce the chance of liens being filed on building jobs in which they have loaned money.

"The proposed amendments were printed over the week-end and will be ready for presentation to the Legislature probably this week."

APARTMENT ON AV. A IS SOLD TO AUTHOR

Blair Niles Buys House Near 91st St. Corner—Builders Are Negotiating for Large Plot.

Blair Niles, author, has purchased from Eva Kaas and associates the five-story apartment house at 1,741 Avenue A, fifty feet from the southwest corner of Ninety-first Street. The building is on a plot of 25 by 100 feet and contains ten apartments and two large stores. John Newton Porter was the broker in the sale of the property.

In the past few weeks, Mr. Porter has sold twelve parcels comprising the greater part of the block fronts on the west side of Avenue A, from Ninetieth to Ninety-first Streets, representing an area of more than 22,500 square feet. A large building syndicate is negotiating for the purchase of the entire plottage for improvement with apartments.

The Houghton Company and Raymond P. Quinn Company have sold for the Elizabeth B. Grannis Estate, represented by Winchester Hall, executor, the four-story private house at 54 West Eighty-second Street on a lot, 22 by 75 by 100 feet, which property has been owned by the seller since 1910.

The purchaser, the Griffin Holding Company, owns the three adjoining houses on the east, 48-50-52, and by the acquisition of 54 now controls a plot of 75 feet in frontage. This will be offered for sale or lease for a long term of years.

Martin Niederhoffer and Harry H. Daver sold for Fannie Gordon and Charles E. Dempsey a block front on 153d Street, between St. Nicholas Avenue and St. Nicholas Place. The purchaser, the Namreb Realty Corporation, has filed plans for altering the first story, and converting same into eleven stores. Both corners have already been leased to automobile concerns.

The property was sold for all cash over existing mortgages, totaling $94,000. A resale is pending with a Philadelphia syndicate.

BRONX BOROUGH SALES.

Wilkins Avenue Flat Figures in an Exchange Deal.

Resale of a Bronx apartment involving part payment with a frame dwelling was announced yesterday. H. Dranow disposed of the five-story building at 1,476-1,478 Wilkins Avenue, near Boston Road. The property was sold to Charoff, Kurtz & Friedman, who gave in exchange as part payment the two-story residence at 740 Manida Street.

The Wilkins Avenue property is on a plot of 50 by 100 feet and contains twenty-five apartments. The Manida Street house occupies a plot 55 by 100 feet. The Survey Realty Company negotiated the deal.

The nine-family tenement at 517 East 145th Street was sold by Deutsch Brothers to J. Kaufman. Frank Schwartz was the broker.

Schwab & Co. sold for Dr. Feitelberg the vacant block front on the east side of Oneida Avenue, running from 233d to 235th Street, to a builder, who will improve immediately with one-family brick dwellings. The plot is 217 by 100 feet.

John Caulway has sold for Harry Kimmel and Morris Lasker a plot on the south side of Hollywood Avenue, 50 feet east of Waterbury Avenue, to a client.

Ullman Real Estate Company sold for L. Pettinati to a client the two-family frame and stucco building located at 3,014 Bronxwood Avenue, on a plot 25 by 100 feet, consisting of ten rooms. The purchaser will improve the property and occupy it.

JOHN DAVID LEASES CORNER

Clothier Takes Space at Broadway and Warren Street.

John David, men's clothier, furnisher and hatter, has closed a lease for a long term of years on the northwest corner of Broadway and Warren Street. The space is now occupied by the Schulte cigar store and the Liggett drug store. Mr. David will occupy the space now used by both of these stores, and also the floor above, which will give over 8,000 square feet for his business and about 110 feet of windows.

This is the eleventh store in the John David chain.

Possession will be made on May 1, and the store will be opened for business the latter part of June.

On the same date the John David organization will take possession of the corner of Cortlandt and Church Streets, next to their present men's furnishing store at 25 Cortlandt Street. This corner will be remodeled.

SMITH TO LIGHT 8TH AV. SIGN

Governor Will Press Button in Albany for Hotel Lincoln.

A button pressed in Albany by Governor Smith at 5 o'clock this afternoon will illuminate an electric sign atop the new Hotel Lincoln on Eighth Avenue, between Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Streets.

The lighting of the sign, the top of which is 425 feet above the street, will come at the conclusion of the Lincoln Day exercises to be held in the lobby and club lounge of the hotel beginning at 3 o'clock. The hotel has just been completed by Irwin S. Chanin and Henry I. Chanin. It was erected at a cost of $10,000,000 and contains 1,400 rooms and baths.

Wade H. Cooper of Washington, D. C., who is President of the National Lincoln Memorial Association, will be the principal speaker at the exercises in the new hotel. A portrait of Lincoln will be unveiled.

Building in Flushing Is Sold.

Robert Dasey Associates, Inc., have sold to the New York Title and Mortgage Company the new three-story office building at 91-93 Main Street, Flushing, L. I., adjoining the corner of Amity Street, opposite the new five-story Flushing National Bank Building. The building, of fireproof construction with a white marble front, is on a lot 27 by 100 feet. It was held at $300,000 and had been occupied by Johnson, Quinlan & Terry. The New York Title and Mortgage Company will occupy it as its new Flushing headquarters.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, District of New Jersey.—JOHANNA HAASE ISRAEL, for whom has been substituted MAX KAUFMANN, Plaintiff, vs. HOWARD SUTHERLAND, Alien Property Custodian; FRANK WHITE, Treasurer of the United States, et al., Defendants.—On Bill in Equity.—Order for Service by Publication.

Upon the motion of Ralph W. Wescott, counsel for Kaufmann, and it appearing to the Court that the defendants, Friedrich Stahl and Paul Rumcker, are not inhabitants of, nor are found within, this District, nor have voluntarily entered their appearance herein, and that personal service upon the said defendants, Friedrich Stahl and Paul Rumcker, is impracticable, It is hereby ORDERED that said defendants, Friedrich Stahl and Paul Rumcker, appear, plead, answer or demur to the said bill filed by the plaintiff herein, by the 30th day of April, 1928, and in default thereof that the Court will proceed to the hearing and adjudication of said suit; and that this order be published in a newspaper of general circulation, to wit, The New York Times, once a week for six consecutive weeks.

And it is further ORDERED that a true but uncertified copy of the bill of complaint and of this order be mailed, with postage prepaid, addressed to each of said absent defendants at his last known address within ten days from the date hereof.

SALES EXECUTIVES,

REAL ESTATE.

We are just about to officially open our latest development, known as

"BRONX GARDENS,"

ON CASTLE HILL AV.

This is an exceptionally desirable property having the following features:

1. A few blocks from the Castle Hill Av. subway station.

2. Most of the property is already improved with sewers and concrete streets, and all modern improvements are continuing very rapidly.

3. Surrounding this property and right on it there is an extensive building activity in progress now.

4. Castle Hill and Lacombe Aves. have just been payed by the city.

5. A beautiful bathing park, which will have some of the most attractive outdoor sport facilities, is now in progress of completion by the Castle Hill Estates, Inc., and will be opened this Spring; this is one of the most attractive features of this locality, which will minimize sales resistance and will help make this location a great financial success to the men who are engaged in selling it to the public.

6. Commission arrangements to salesmen are very liberal and equitable.

We wish to employ several high-grade sales executives who have ability to organize and train salesmen.

To those that qualify we will offer a salary plus commission arrangement.

Please apply the whole week between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M. and ask for Mr. Daniels personally.

PORT LABOR UNIONS WATCH CONGRESS

Farm Committee to Place Views Before Lawmakers—Axtell Is Named Chairman.

FURUSETH IN WASHINGTON

Seamen's President Will Report to Maritime Group on Subsidy and Labor Legislation.

The maritime labor organizations of New York have organized a joint committee to study pending Washington legislation which concerns the merchant marine and to attempt to reach an agreement so that the views of marine labor can be expressed as a unit to Congress, Silas B. Axtell, counsel for the International Seamen's Union, has been named temporary Chairman of the committee and has called the first meeting for next Monday, at 345 West Twelfth Street.

In a circular letter sent yesterday to the organizations which will be represented on the committee, Mr. Axtell explains the principal marine legislation before Congress and emphasizes the need of a united stand by labor. He says:

"There is almost as much bugaboo about subsidy in the United States as there is about the Catholic Church. In my opinion, the people are willing and glad to have a subsidy because they realize that ships are necessary and that in spite of the equalization policy of the Seamen's act some additional aid must be given to shipping. These vessels are necessary to carry our exports and imports and will be helpful to the prosperity and welfare of nearly every man and woman and child in the United States. They are a public necessity."

Andrew Furuseth, President of the Seamen's Union, is in Washington, representing the committee. He will forward information on the progress of legislation to the Amalgamated Maritime Port Committee, as the group will be known. The members of the committee include the Neptune Association, Ocean Association, Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, Eastern and Gulf Sailors' Association, Marine Cooks and Stewards' Union, Marine Firemen's Union and the American Marine Mutual Association.

These groups will watch the legislation pertaining to crimping, the hiring of marine help through channels other than the labor groups, wages and other conditions as well as subsidy and the upbuilding of an American merchant marine.

Mr. Axtell discussed the marine legislation to be studied by the committee as follows:

"There are pending in Congress three bills looking to the relief of American shipping. There is the Jones bill, which provides for Government ownership and operation. This proposes to appropriate $250,000,000, I think, in instalments to build and operate ships. Even Senator Jones is not in favor of this bill, but proposes it because he says that although he has tried for thirty-five years to get a ship subsidy bill or a money subvention bill passed he could not do it.

"Senator Copeland has introduced a bill which provides for more liberal mail subventions. This is, of course, just another name for subsidy and is not so comprehensive a measure as the bill introduced by Representative Wood. This bill seems to be more comprehensive in its scope. It proposes to let the United States Government pay the difference between the cost of building a ship in the United States and what it would cost to build it abroad. This is in order to keep our shipyards busy, giving employment to labor here and have the vessels built in the United States. It amounts practically to a subsidy to shipbuilders. He then proposes rather indefinite payments to American operators for carrying mails, &c."

ELECTRIC SHIPS TO MEET.

First and Latest of Type to Berth at San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—An especially interesting feature about the arrival here Tuesday of the electrically driven liner California of the Panama-Pacific Line is that the pioneer and the very latest production of this type of propulsion will be inside the Golden Gate together.

Nearly twenty years ago W. L. Emmett, one of the General Electric engineers, conceived the idea of electrical reduction from a high-speed steam turbine to the speed of the propeller to take the place of steel gears. His company made a proposition to the Navy Department and installed this new type of plant in the collier Jupiter, built at Mare Island in 1913. The trial of the ship off this coast, in February, 1914, was a success that startled the engineering world.

For the past four weeks, and with every indication that it will continue during the rest of this month, there has been a remarkable boom in eastbound intercoastal cargo offerings. Space queries have been mostly for canned and dried fruits and beans, and the reason is that after March 1 shippers with such commodities occupying warehouse space will have to pay a State tax.

The slump in buying in the East during the latter part of last year had the effect of filling warehouses, with a view to delaying deliveries until times got better. The tax has given a needed boost to the steamship business.

Captain Robert Dollar and Stanley Dollar will be hosts at a luncheon in the Hotel St. Francis Tuesday in honor of P. S. A. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, with which the Panama-Pacific Line is affiliated. He is coming on the Boer California and is visiting this coast for the first time in several years.

TRAVEL CLUB PROTESTS TOURIST TICKET RISE

Dr. Keller Says New Increase to $127.50 Maximum Is Too Near Second Class Minimum.

The increase of $7 to $11.50 in tourist round-trip tickets by the North Atlantic Passenger Conference for those landing or embarking at British ports came as a surprise to travel organizations which had issued their literature for the Summer season and made their arrangements for booking.

Dr. Ernest Gray Keller, general manager of the Students' Travel Club, said yesterday that the increase brings the total price of a tourist ticket to a figure out of proportion to that for second and first class tickets.

"The tourist rate on some ships between June 15 and Sept. 22," he said, "is now as high as $127.50, to which has to be added the United States Government tax of $5 and, in the case of embarkation or debarkation at French ports, the French tax of $2. The maximum second-class rate in season is $137.50. This makes a difference of only $10 between certain second-class and tourist fares.

"This second increase in tourist rates in the same season seems to me to be ill-advised. It smacks of the antiquated 'public-be-damned' policy. Tourist rates have been steadily advancing year by year. In 1925 the rate for round-trip tickets was $153. In 1926 and 1927 it was $170. This year the round-trip ticket reaches a maximum of $210.

"Tourist traffic, which has made such gains during recent years, is bound to fall off if such arbitrary measures are resorted to by steamship companies. The majority of tourist third cabin passengers invest their hard-earned savings in a trip to Europe and every dollar counts."

CONROW IN CUSTOMS POST.

Placed in Charge of Inspections at Port of New York.

Thomas W. Whittle, surveyor of customs of the Port of New York, announced yesterday the appointment of Lieut. Col. William S. Conrow as deputy surveyor in charge of inspections to succeed the late William R. Sanders.

Colonel Conrow enlisted in the Twenty-second Regiment, New York National Guard, in 1887. He served in the Spanish-American War, in the Philippines, at the Mexican border and in the World War. He attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel while serving under Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Colonel Conrow is a pioneer in the customs service of New York, having entered it in 1893. He lives at 631 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. His new work deals with the entire group of men who are entrusted with the enforcement of prohibition.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—The northwestern disturbance is advancing east-southeastward, being centred over Eastern Manitoba, with a trough extending south and southwestward to Northern Texas and thence southeastward to the Texas coast. High pressure prevails over Eastern Ontario, Quebec, the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic States, and it is also high on the North Pacific Coast and over the plateau and the Northern Rocky Mountain regions.

The outlook is for rain on Monday in the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf and South Atlantic States and the western lower lake region, and rain Monday night in the Middle Atlantic States and eastern lower lake region. On Tuesday there will be rains in the South Atlantic States and light snow in the lower lake region. Elsewhere the weather will be partly overcast to overcast Monday and Tuesday in States east of the Mississippi River.

Temperatures will rise on Monday in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and Middle and South Atlantic States, and on Monday night in the Atlantic States. It will be colder Monday night in the western lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and the East Gulf States, and by Tuesday night in the Middle and South Atlantic States.

SHIP LINES TO ASK MORE FEDERAL AID

Larger Construction Fund Will Be Sought Today for River, Lake and Coast Vessels.

HOPE FOR BUSINESS REVIVAL

Problems of the Inland Industry Declared as Serious as Those of the Transoceanic.

Increased Government aid in the construction of river, lake and coastwise steamships will be sought by a resolution to be introduced tomorrow at the first annual Water Lines Conference at the Hotel Willard in Washington, according to announcement yesterday by H. J. Curtis of New York, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements and passenger traffic manager of the Hudson River Night Line.

Mr. Curtis said that he did not believe that the conference would endorse any of the merchant marine bills before Congress, but would confine itself to a demand for equality for river, lake and coastwise ships in Government aid for new ship construction.

"One feature of any shipping bill which Congress may pass," he said, "concerns the inland shipping industry, and that is the amount of money which can be borrowed from the Government for the construction of ships. Even though inland shipping lines are not obliged to combat foreign competition their problems are as serious as those of the transoceanic lines. I know of no unified opinion among the inland shipping men of the country on the worth of the Jones, Copeland and Wood bills."

Mr. Curtis pointed out that the lake, coastwise and river lines had borrowed about $10,000,000 from the Government for ship construction in seven years and that if the proposal to permit the borrowing of three-quarters of the total sum from the Government were passed and a low interest rate charged, the result should be a revival of inland shipbuilding and better shipping conditions.

More than thirty of the largest American and Canadian companies in the inland steamship industry will be represented at the conference.

28,962 MOTOR BOATS HERE.

Eight Cities on Atlantic and Gulf Coast Lead Nation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Eight large cities along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts have more than one-half the country's smaller motorboats and New York City alone has 28,962 registered there, or more than the entire Pacific Coast, according to a census of pleasure craft as of Jan. 1 by the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce today. The record was for pleasure boats under sixteen tons and working boats under five tons.

Including Alaska, the Philippines and Porto Rico, the entire country has 222,254 motorboats, of which 123,136 are concentrated in New York, Tampa, Baltimore, Portland, Maine; Philadelphia, Boston, Norfolk and New Orleans.

On the Pacific Coast and in Alaska are 38,768 boats, while 48,206 are located in the interior: Honolulu has 719, San Juan, Porto Rico, 181; Juneau, Alaska, 1,729; Seattle, 7,731; Tampa, which is second to New York, has 15,156; Baltimore, 15,018; Detroit, 10,424.

The number of motorboats has doubled since 1919, when the total for the United States was 130,731.

WORLD COURT MOVE WINS WIDE BACKING

Prominent Men in Both Parties Support Gillett Resolution to Resume Negotiations.

ASK END OF DIFFERENCES

No Insurmountable Barriers to Our Joining Tribunal Seen in Views Given to American Foundation.

The American Foundation, Inc., maintaining the American Peace Award, 565 Fifth Avenue, announced yesterday that prominent representatives of both political parties whose opinions it had collected had endorsed the World Court resolution introduced in the Senate on Feb. 5 by Senator Gillett, Republican, of Massachusetts.

The resolution instructs the Senate respectfully to suggest to the President "the advisability of a further exchange of views with the signatory States in order to establish whether the differences between the United States and the signatory States can be satisfactorily adjusted," with a view to America's adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice. The opinions, as collected by the American Foundation, Inc., include the following:

SILAS H. STRAWN, Chicago, President American Bar Association—I am heartily in favor of making further efforts, as contemplated by the resolution recently introduced by Senator Gillett, to reach agreement with the other nations on a plan for the United States to become a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

JOHN W. DAVIS, New York City, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's—The resolution presented by Senator Gillett in reference to the World Court has my earnest approval. With good-will on both sides, there should be no serious difficulty in reconciling the differences between the United States and the signatory powers. America cannot forever remain indifferent to this great new tribunal. Both our national dignity and national interest will be served by our adherence.

ALBA B. JOHNSON, Philadelphia, former President Baldwin Locomotive Works, President Railway Business Association—A decent respect for the opinions of mankind," as Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Independence, suggests that discussions be renewed until it becomes known whether our reservations are clearly understood by ourselves and by them, and whether they constitute an irreconcilable bar to agreement.

NEWTON D. BAKER, Cleveland, former Secretary of War—The resolution introduced by Senator Gillett asking the President to continue negotiations in the matter of the World Court is the most helpful and encouraging thing that has happened in many months. The differences are not greater than ordinarily arise in any diplomatic matter. Patience and good-will can solve them, and if Senator Gillett's resolution is passed and the negotiations resumed, a basis of agreement can be found upon which America can safely and wisely become a member of a World Court which it has so long favored.

GENERAL JAMES GUTHRIE HARBORD, New York City—The resolution should commend itself to those who entertain even directly opposed opinions on this matter. There are so many people of all parties who are interested in one side or the other of our adherence to the Permanent Court and are in such doubt as to whether our reservations make a permanent barrier to agreement that this further exchange of views should be helpful to all.

A. J. VINJE, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin—I trust that Senator Gillett's resolution will be acted upon favorably by the Senate and that negotiations will be resumed and that our country and the signatory States will be able to adjust their differences.

HOWARD COONLEY, President Walworth Company, of Boston—I feel most earnestly that the people of this country favor the membership of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice. There can be no question that they will welcome the resolution introduced by Senator Gillett.

F. W. ESTABROOK, member for New Hampshire of Republican National Committee—Negotiations in the Court matter ought certainly to be resumed. The United States ought to declare that its debatable reservation is not intended to claim for us a privilege not open to other members of the Court.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, New York City, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy—I see no reason why Senator Gillett's resolution should not be supported by all members of the Senate, irrespective of party, who believe in the fundamental necessity of settling international questions by peaceful instead of warlike methods.

SILAS E. HURIN, Toledo, Ohio, former Judge of the Court of Appeals of Ohio—Senator Gillett's resolution appeals to me as the most sensible plan yet formulated for clearing up an unfortunately muddled situation.

JOHN H. LATANE, Dean of Johns Hopkins University—I heartily endorse asking President Coolidge to continue negotiations with a view to removing the obstacles that stand in the way of our adherence to the Permanent Court.

A. C. BALCH, Los Angeles, electrical engineer, President Midway Gas Company, Valley Natural Gas Company—I feel very strongly that the United States should show its willingness to continue negotiations with a view to reaching an agreement as to the entry of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice.

FREDERIC COUDERT, New York City; lawyer: The Gillett resolution points out the only way in which the World Court impasse can be disposed of, and is in line with the resolution of the New York State Bar Association. If there be in the Senate any real desire to have the United States adhere to the World Court, thus conforming to the American traditional policy of substituting judicial justice for force, there would be no difficulty in finding a way out."

ROBERT A. TAFT, Cincinnati; attorney; Senator Gillett's resolution arouses the widespread hope that the previous difficulties in the way of the United States entering the World Court may now be adjusted and that we may soon become a part of the Court which has so long been advocated by American statesmen.

COLONEL WILLIAM COOPER PROCTER, Cincinnati; President, Procter and Gamble Company; delegate-at-large from Ohio to Republican National Convention of 1924: I think the action of Senator Gillett in suggesting that the United States resume negotiations on the World Court matter is both timely and needed. He has my hearty support.

JOHN H. FAHEY, Boston; banker and newspaper publisher; former President United States Chamber of Commerce: It seems to me that Senator Gillett's resolution is constructive and useful. Certainly in view of the record of the United States in the past and the undoubted views of our people with reference to arbitration as a means of settling disputes, our Government should leave nothing undone in its effort to arrive at an understanding with the other nations and make possible our adhesion to the World Court.

NORMAN H. DAVIS, New York City; former Acting Secretary of State: Even if a further exchange of views with the signatory powers should not result in our adherence to the World Court, it would have a good effect for the Senate to pass the resolution introduced by Senator Gillett. Such an exchange of views would be helpful from an educational standpoint, and it would also be well to show that the United States, which so earnestly desires peace and a reign of law, is willing to try to do something tangible to promote it.

Others endorsing Senator Gillett's resolution include: Thomas M. Steele, President, First National Bank, New Haven, Conn.; H. F. O'Hare, Bismarck, N. D., member North Dakota Republican State Central Committee; Robert Fechner, Boston, Vice President International Association of Machinists; John D. Bellamy, President North Carolina Bar Association; E. J. Wallace, St. Louis, President Mid-West Retail Coal Dealers Association; former Governor Augustus E. Willson of Kentucky; William C. Redfield, former Secretary of the Interior under Woodrow Wilson; Samuel Mather, Cleveland, a director of the United States Steel Corporation; Gano Dunn, President of the J. G. White Engineering Co.; Mrs. Harriman N. Simmons, Acting President New Jersey League of Women Voters; Kenneth C. M. Sills, President Bowdoin College; John G. Agar, trustee Mutual Life Insurance Co.; James E. Davidson, member for Michigan, Republican National Committee; former Governor John Gary Evans of South Carolina, and Andrew J. Sordoni, Republican member of the Pennsylvania State Senate.

HONEYMOONERS LOCATED.

Aid Society Tells Schenectady Bride of Mother's Illness.

The help of the Travelers' Aid Society was invoked last night in locating a pair of Schenectady honeymooners, the mother of one of whom had been stricken with serious illness shortly after their departure.

Early in the evening the society was notified by telephone from Schenectady that the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Harris, had been married Saturday night and had left immediately for this city. Yesterday the mother of the bride, Mrs. Caroline Muhlock of 105 Washington Avenue, Schenectady, was seized with illness so serious that she was not expected to survive the night.

All that was known of the couple was that they planned to stop at a hotel in the Times Square section. The society telephoned to hotels in this section, and on the eighth call located the couple at the Cadillac.

MAN, 108, WOMAN, 106, DIE.

Kentucky Mountaineers Just "Wore Out," Neighbors Say.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 12.—News comes from the Kentucky mountains today of the death of two of the oldest persons in the South. In Floyd County "Uncle" Peter Wireman, 108 years old, died at his home in the Licking River section, and in Pike County "Aunt" Ginsey Moles, 106, died.

Wireman is survived by more than 100 descendants. His father came to Kentucky before it was severed from Virginia and was one of the earliest pioneers, helping to drive the Indians back into Ohio, West Virginia and the North.

The section in which Wireman and Mrs. Moles both lived was a favorite hunting ground of the Indians. Mrs. Moles's parents came through the Virginia mountains and settled in West Virginia near what later became Kentucky. The party of pioneers of which they were members had several fights with the red men, it is said. This was a little before George Washington died.

Mrs. Moles is survived by thirty-three grandchildren, 143 great-grandchildren and sixty-four great-great-grandchildren.

Her family was noted for longevity. A brother lived to be 125, according to accounts in that mountain section. He has been dead many years.

Neither Wireman nor Mrs. Moles had been ill long. They just "wore out," as the saying is in the mountains.

Reports Hospital Costs Soaring.

Maintenance expenses of St. Mark's Hospital have increased more than thirty-fold in thirty-six years, while the maintenance cost per patient per day has increased from $2.22 in 1900 to $7.25 in 1926, according to figures compiled by Maximilian Ruttenau, auditor of the hospital, who is the sole surviving founder and was at one time its President.

HITS SECRET CANCER WORK.

Dr. C. H. Mayo Backs Centering on Unified Research Program.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 (AP).—Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., says too much secrecy unshrouds research work for a cancer cure.

"Too much secrecy that is the main drawback in the search for a cancer cure as it is now being conducted by research scholars throughout this country," said Dr. Mayo, who is stopping here for a brief visit with friends.

A Government program of unified research, as outlined here recently at the American Medical Association meeting by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming of the United States Public Health Service, was advocated by Dr. Mayo as a means of casting off the "secrecy and mystery" in which research scientists have shrouded their experiments.
